

Charity covers a multitude of sins. So do closed cars.

Man's inhumanity to man, says "Cigar" Hoey makes thousands hesitate at the curb.

Even if a man does pass you with his auto, says Charlie Burrus he may be behind with his payments.

To be able to neck gracefully while driving an imported roadster 78 miles an hour may not exactly be a practical accomplishment, but one must admit that it is an accomplishment.

The average chauffeur certainly takes life easily.

Let those who never break the speed law cuss congressmen for breaking the dry law.

"Somebody put the hootch "In my car" sounds fine, But nobody's ever Put any in mine.

The noise an automobile makes depends more upon the driver than upon the machine itself.

It is not so much the living wage, as the flivvering wage that men demand nowadays, says Charlie Stroup.

If you drive fast you're a lawbreaker; if you drive slowly, somebody whams you from behind.

The consensus of opinion at the traffic conference in Washington was that pedestrians had better keep out of the way.

Placing an income-tax payment in June keeps many a bride from getting the usual forty gray ladies.—Lancaster Examiner-News Era.

A home garden and an automobile never work very well together.

Flying ants damage buildings. High flying uncles deface the landscape.

It is foolish, says T. W. Ebeltoft to pray for a high powered car when the Lord knows you can't afford the upkeep.

"Are you going away?"
"Yes, to Europe."
"By which ship?"
"Airship."
"But there is no airship service."
"There will be by the time my wife is ready."

Pedestrians should be thankful that they don't have to dodge bicycles any more.

Another advantage a closed car has is that it isn't so easy for drunks to fall out.

Most flivvers are filled with nuts, snaps Squire Eskridge.

HOEY MOTOR COMPANY

The Coastal Plain—

Famous for tar, peanuts, fish and cotton. Victim of many misfortunes. Now coming into its own, as a vast, rich truck garden, as a sportsman's paradise and as a resort country of unique attractions. Jefferson Standard is backing its great faith in Eastern North Carolina with substantial loans.

Over 14 MILLIONS OF DOLLARS of Jefferson Standard money is invested right here in North Carolina. There's hardly a village or a hamlet in our good old state where Jefferson Standard money isn't working for the good of the community.

Naturally, right-thinking Tar Heels are coming to insist, more and more, that their insurance needs be covered by a Jefferson Standard policy.

Doesn't it follow that the policies of this Big Home Company are

Practical Rules For Mothers

Literary Digest.

Every normal mother in the world strives earnestly to give her children the food she supposes to be "good" for them, and nowadays the elements of dietetics are pretty generally understood; and yet we are authoritatively assured that many a child develops bad food-habits through fault of a mother who perhaps is blissfully unaware of her own responsibility for conditions that give her no end of worry. According to Dr. Douglas A. Thom, writing in Hygeia (Chicago) every mother may advantageously ask herself certain questions calculated to reveal her possible mistakes. Here are the questions, with corrective hints that merit careful attention:

"1. Do you fret about what your child eats and whether he is getting enough? If so, very likely at every meal-time you make him the star actor in a little drama, and every child likes to be the center of attention.

"2. Do you talk about his eating habits to other persons in his presence? If so, any child would feel important and want to keep up being different.

"3. Do you insist on feeding him after he is old enough to feed himself, just because it is easier than to teach him? Better let him spill a little until he learns, than to become dependent and fretful.

"4. Is some one else in the family very particular about his foods? Of course, a child likes to imitate older persons.

"5. Do you choose plain, nourishing, easily digested foods and cook them well?

"6. Do you let your child taste everything that grown persons have? A child used to having tea, coffee and highly seasoned foods and too many sweets has lost a healthy appetite.

"7. Do you serve food as attractively as you can and not in too large quantities?

"8. Do you feed your child regularly? A child can not go too long without food, but eating between meals means that his little stomach is overworked.

"9. Do you find that he sleeps poorly, is irritable, has violent tempers or strange fears? If so, not only his eating but his other habits are probably disarranged.

"10. Do you know that a child who is angry, fearful or worried can not digest food properly? Overcome the emotion first and then let him eat.

"11. Do you create an unpleasant scene in an effort to make him eat?

"12. Do you create jealousy by denying to one child what another has? The child who is refused what the other children have should know why.

"13. Do you try to show your authority by making a child eat anything just because you say so? It is better to show that you are reasonable and expect him to be; that you consult his preferences when you can, but if a food is needed for health, he must try to learn to like it.

"14. Do you suggest to the child your own doubt as to whether he is going to eat? A child is quick to refuse if he senses that you expect him to, and as quick to eat what is offered without question.

"15. Are you so afraid of your child's missing a meal that when he refuses what you give him, you provide something else. Missing a meal will not hurt him. Leave the food twenty or thirty minutes and then take it away and give nothing else until the next meal."

Sympathy.

An untimely frost effectually completed the mischief done earlier by the insect enemies of Mr. Perkins' potatoes. The tops of the plants, which had served as a pasturage for the pests, were entirely destroyed, and with them Mr. Perkins' hopes of a crop. He was not selfish, however, and could think of others in the hour of adversity. In the afternoon he was accosted at the postoffice by a friend.

"Hello, Perkins! How's everything up to the corners?"

"Trouble enough, Williamson; trouble enough," was the gloomy response. "Ten million potato bugs, and nothing for 'em to eat!"—Everybody's Magazine.
