At home, November 21st, Shelby, N. C., 8-8.

Junior U. D. C.'s Meet. At the lovely home of Miss Mary Reeves Forney the junior members of the U. D. C.'s assembled on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock. Mrs. Mial Tiddy is the efficient leader of this splendid band of young people. The meeting began promptly and after the minutes and roll call the following interesting program was rendered: Paper by Miss Elizabeth Austell—Subject "John H. Morgan." Paper by Miss Dorothy King—"John Marmaduke, Concluding paper—"Thomas Frunge" by Miss Ruth Dellinger. The rooms where these juniors assembled were most artistically and beautifully decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums. When the paper were laid aside the young hostess assisted by her mother served the most appetizing collation.

Mrs. J. D. Lineberger Honors Mrs. Burgess. Mrs. J. D. Lineberger was a charming hostess on Saturday afternoon at Cleveland Springs Hotel in honor of Mrs. Gene Burgess. The lobby and parlors were a woodland scene with fall flowers, fall leaves and beautiful baskets of yellow and white chrysanthemums. The attractive young guests assembled at three o'clock and music was enjoyed for a while then the most enjoyable games were played at five tables during the afternoon. Dainty little score cards were used. Mrs. Lineberger greeted the guests in a beautiful red costume. Mrs. Burgess the guest of honor wore a black prince satin with gold trimmings and gold metal hat. When the games were concluded Mrs. Burgess was presented with a lovely card and luncheon set by the hostess. Delicious refreshments were served at five o'clock. Besides the young guests Mrs. Lineberger also had Mesdames William Lineberger, Mrs. Julius Suttle, Mrs. George Blanton, Mrs. McBrayer, Mrs. Rush Oates of Asheville, Mrs. O. Max Gardner the bride's mother and Mrs. S. R. Riley.

Mrs. Harrill Hamrick Celebrates Birthday. Mr. Harrill Hamrick celebrated his birthday on Saturday evening with a delightful party. The rooms were beautifully decorated with autumn leaves and lovely fall flowers. Quite a number of the teachers and Mr. Hamrick's friends assembled at eight o'clock and the most interesting and delightful games were played. Lovely music was furnished by Mr. Buchanan and Mr. Sinclair and Miss Bertha Bostick. At the conclusion of the evening the birthday cake was cut and delicious refreshments served.

Mrs. Charles Williams Entertains Ishpeming Club. Mrs. Charles Williams was the delightful hostess to the Ishpeming club on Thursday afternoon at her attractive apartments on West Marion street. The rooms were lovely with yellow chrysanthemums and greenery placed artistically in bowls and vases. Four tables of bridge was played as this was a social meeting. The tables were most beautiful with their little vases of yellow chrysanthemums and score cards, and place cards, in this handsome flower. The yellow color scheme was carried out in the delicious salad and sweet course served at the conclusion of the games. Little bud vases in crystal glass were given at each table for high scores.

Mrs. Grover Beam Gives Pretty Party. One of the loveliest small parties of the season was that given by Mrs. Grover Beam on Saturday afternoon honoring Miss Eloise Davis and Miss McIntyre the charming week end guests of Miss Thelma Young. The rooms were exquisite with their lovely decorations of ferns, potted plants and chrysanthemums. The most attractive little score and place cards pertaining to Thanksgiving with turkeys pointed on them were used. The little souvenirs were also Thanksgiving suggestions. Bridge was played during the afternoon hours and at the conclusion of the games Miss Davis was presented with the honor prize, a lovely hand-made handkerchief. Misses Elizabeth Webb and Matilda Lattimore tied for the high score, Miss Lattimore receiving a beautiful wall vase. The most delicious refreshments were served with the Thanksgiving decorations.

Department of the Woman's Club. The rooms were beautifully decorated with fall leaves and stately chrysanthemums.

Fourteen tables were played during the afternoon and fourteen at night the games being rook and bridge, lovely score cards were used and the most attractive little prizes pertaining to the kitchen were given as high scores at each table. The women had spared no time and put much work in getting these lovely parties up and the number who came enjoyed the most delightful times. When the cards were laid aside the most delicious salad and hot coffee, sweets and nuts were served. The Women of the department were beautifully gowned and received the guests on their arrival and piloted them to the tables. The most inspiring and lovely music was furnished by Mrs. Carey Boshamer at the piano and Mr. Boshamer with the violin. Mrs. Boshamer is truly a gifted musician and pleased all who had the pleasure to hear. Mr. Getchel is no stranger to Shelby now as he plays the violin with the Shelby orchestra. A neat sum was realized and this is just the beginning of series of parties this department will give this winter.

RED BUCK BRYANT TELLS EXPERIENCE

Well Known Washington Correspondent Writes Interesting Article For the Archive.

Durham, Nov.—Some interesting anecdotes and personal reminiscences are told by H. E. C. Bryant, noted journalist and former North Carolinian, in a special article appearing in the November issue of The Archive, a literary review published by undergraduates at Duke University. His articles are entitled "Breaking In to the Newspaper Game," and in it Mr. Bryant—our Red Buck, as he is known to hundreds of people in this state—tells of his early training before he became Washington correspondent to the New York World and to some of the prominent Southern newspapers.

"The best training I had in newspaper work was in Providence Township, Mecklenburg county North Carolina," he writes, "on the farm, learning human nature, mule tricks, and the ways of wild life.—rabbits, birds, foxes and kindred creatures. Then came a period of superb training under Joseph Pearson Caldwell, the brilliant, self-educated, self-made editor of the Charlotte Observer who taught me to play the game straight, and to know that nothing but the truth endures."

Owing to his love for the sport of fox-hunting, Mr. Bryant is moved to compare Congress with a pack of fox-hounds. He says:

"A party of congressmen is very much like a pack of hounds. It is composed of leaders, hangers-on, wild runners who fly the track and break up the race, workers, and idlers. My knowledge of fox-hunting has helped me with Congress, where much of my newspaper work is done."

He gives some good advice to youngsters who are anxious to begin newspaper work, and tells some of his early experiences, as well as some incidents in his life while he was attending the University of North Carolina. Continuing his article, the author states:

"A nose for news is very essential. A North Carolina business man invited me to become editor of a weekly paper he and some friends were about to launch in a fit of anger over an incident in their town, many years ago. I inquired the reason for the sudden notion to establish a new paper. My friend explained.

"Why, that fellow," he said, (meaning the editor of the old paper) "would rather see the town dwindle than to grow. I can prove that to you. Not long ago I announced I was going to build a four-story building surpassing anything heretofore undertaken. His paper had a tiny six-line item about it. Three weeks later, after the walls had been erected, the building fell down, and he printed a column—a whole column—about that."

"I did not take the job, for I felt that the newspaperman already there knew news when he ran into it."

In advice to aspiring journalist (Mr. Bryant, incidentally, expresses a vast preference for the word "newspaperman," rather than the term "journalist") the author of "Breaking into the Newspaper Game" says that it does not pay to look too high for news.

"Some of the important leads to big news come from humble sources," he says. "A man just out of an insane asylum walked into the New York Bureau at Washington one night and offered a story to a reporter, but he was rebuffed and went away. A month later The World carried a nine column story on the very facts which the unbalanced visitor had offered in document form."

Mr. Bryant believes that his ability to gather interesting news lies in the fact that he is able to "interview men and women of all walks of life."

Chinese Fight Queer Styles

Peking.—Alarmed by what he deems a growth of immorality, the minister of education of the Peking Government has issued an edict against all "flapper" forms of dress among Chinese girl students.

Horror-stricken by the sights near one of the universities, he declares that "some of the girls even purposely wear particularly short skirts and wide sleeves. Thus when they raise their arms the elbows may be seen. As to their skirts, when they walk their knees are sometimes exposed."

The wearing of flowery and colorful dresses also is deplored by the minister, although he does not ban their use—yet. He recommends in strong terms, however that a dark uniform be adopted by all girl students.

The students, who acknowledge themselves to be the chief patriots of China, declare they are being oppressed by a "capitalistic, imperialistic" government, which has taken away the right of every proletarian to dress as he, or she see fit.

She's a Jazz Baby

The doctor was peremptory about it. "You've got to quit the fast life," he ordered. "You can't stand the pace."

"I know it doc," agreed the pale patient. "Would you advise me getting a divorce and settling down."
