Big Andy Cloninger Killed In Runaway

Well Known Farmer of Dallas Section of Gaston County, Killed When He Falls From Wagon.

Gastonia, Nov. 25.—Mr. Andy Cloninger, of the Dallas section, was accidentally killed this afternoon about 2 o'clock near his home two or three miles north of Dallas when he was run over by a wagon after his mules had run away and thrown him out of the wagon. His neck was broken when the wagon passed over his body. He was hauling a load of wood to the house at the time of the accident.

Mr. Cloninger familiarly known as "Big Andy" was one of the best known characters in Gaston county.

One Pint Costs Four Over $200

For a gob of little eras the Yuletide cry has been "Shop Early; Do Your Christmas Shopping Now." And from the price a pint of kick cost Charlie Rudasill, colored, and three others the cry applies also to booze.

Florida may talk of how land enhances in value there and Hendersonville may chime in for a second honor, but neither has a look in with Shelby when it comes to mountain liquor. Florida lots double in price in one month, but Shelby liquor, doubles in price several times in one week.

One pine, $200! That's the price Charlie Rudasill and Frank Poston, colored, and Leroy Thacker and P. W. Harkins paid. That's not all, but just the tax imposed by Recorder Mull, the original purchase price not being included in the $200.

Only recently Charlie bought and imbued a goodly portion of a pint and as the result saw an open road where there was an automobile. Another result was that Charlie had a collision an deame to Shelby from Boiling Springs with Deputy Jolly. On reaching Shelby Charlie, volunteered to tell the source of his supply. An investigation brought Poston and the two white boys in the toils of the law. The white boys in the toils of the law. The white boys in the toils of the law. The white boys in the toils of the law.

proved a good witness for the state, was let off with a suspended sentence, while Harkins fine was $100 and Thackers was set at $50.

Makes a case of Scotch sound cheap.

THEATRES

Tonight and tomorrow (Thursday) Webb's present that marvelous screen drama, that stupendous and wierd picture "The Phantom of the Opera" The scenes were filmed in Paris, at a tremendous cost, and that imitable pantomimist, Lon Chaney appears as the Phantom. Without a doubt this is one of the most fascinating pictures Lon Chaney has ever appeared in. The mad, crowds chasing the phantom is worth coming miles to see. There will be a special orchestra for this great picture. And owing to the high cost of this picture the admission to it will be 25 and 50 cents.

Beam Brothers present at the Princess Wednesday "Havoc"—a woman with a soul who dangles men's hearts at her finger tips; who turns lifelong friends into bitter enemies, who laughingly leaves a trail of "Havoc" in her wake.

MINISTERIAL PLACES MAY BE OPENED TO WOMEN IN ENGLAND

London.—"Her grace, the archbishop of Canterbury," may be known by the present generation of children in England.

So evident is the lack of candidates for the ministry in the Church of England that authorities are being forced to consider the problem of admitting women to the holy orders.

Several leading churchmen have warned that the day of women preachers is in sight. This restraint of feminine equality will be removed in the next generation they said unless there is a revival of religious interest in the country.

The church has been restricted by the scarcity of ministers during the last 30 years and the situation now is acute, the bishop of Canterbury told the church congress.

I. M. M. Watkins curate of the fashionable church of St. Martins-in-the-Fields, Trafalgar square, has written in a parish magazine that it now is a necessity that the church move in progress with national life and allow the women to minister in the church of England.

In the congregations and law church offices; women already outnumber men and at a church conference the bulk of delegates are women.

AN INVITATION

November 25th to January 1st

The term "player piano" has been discarded as applied to roll-played, foot-power instruments of the Gulbransen manufacture. They are "Registering Pianos"—"Gulbransen Registering Pianos"—far superior to and capable of musical expression never even thought of in connection with "player pianos".

While the transition of the Gulbransen has been gradual—spread over a period of years—it may today be classed as a new invention, on account of its fidelity to hand playing and the ability of anyone to play it with personal "touch" and expression.

We are making a special showing of the Gulbransen Registering Piano. We do not ask you merely to hear it, we ask you to play it. Instead of being the innocent bystander you are the performer. Remember the dates, November 25th to January 1st. No obligations whatever.

"THE WORLD IS AGAINST ME" "The world is against me," he said with a sigh. "Somebody stops every scheme that I try. The world has me down, and is keeping me there; I don't get a chance. Oh, the world is unfair! When a fellow is poor then he can't get a show; The world is determined to keep him down low." —Grantland Rice. "The world is against me"—that is the cry of the weakling. And some men haven't the courage to say it in as many words—but they think it! The world was against Abraham Lincoln, as he split rails, and as he studied by the flickering flame of a candle in his cabin home. Not only the world, but Nature, too—all were against George Washington as he crossed the ice-choked Delaware. It is said that Benjamin Franklin went hungry to bed many times. Certainly the world was against him. The world was against Henry Ford in his younger days. The world is against every man who thinks of it that way. But the real man thinks of it this way: "The world is an aggregation of individuals, such as I am. They have no thought of combining against me; they can only attack single-handed and, one man at a time, I am a match for any of them." The world is not against a man—the man is against the world. As he goes forward with squared shoulders, he will not find a better friend than is to be found in a good strong bank. First National Bank OF SHELBY RESOURCES FOUR AND A HALF MILLION DOLLARS.
