Few of 1925 Brides Are Able to Cook
Chicago.—Less than half of the 1,250,000 brides who set up house-keeping every year in the United States are competent, when they get married, to plan or prepare a meal unaided, according to Miss Meta H. Given, home economist and research worker at the University of Chicago.
"If it were not for the culinary advantages at the disposal of brides, a husband's life would not be an easy one," said Miss Given. "Not considering the modern devices to lighten housework, the principal advantage the present day bride has over the one of 25 years ago lies in the wider variety of food products she can buy."
"In her pantry she stores a score of different kinds of food without fear of their spoiling. So the modern bride, even though she has little or no idea of cooking when she marries starts her job as well equipped as the bride of a generation ago who knew meal planning and preparing."

Spelling it Got Him
Two boys met in the street.
"What's that you've got in your buttonhole?" asked one.
"Why that's a crysanthemum," the other replied.
"It looks like a rose to me."
"You're wrong, it's a crysanthemum."
"What do you mean? Spell it."
"K-r-i-s . . . It is a rose!" ejaculated the first boy, as he took another look at the flower.
