

Around Our Town

SHELBY SIDELIGHTS
By Renn Drum.

Moses Taub likes horses. Somehow it just came natural back at the beginning for him to do so.

Moses, you know, has delivered Shelby's mail from the railroad to the postoffice for years, and has been in the employ of Mr. W. H. Blanton, perhaps for a quarter of a century. And during all that time Moses has driven a horse. Shelby's mail may be delivered by motor some day, but it Moses is living you may expect him to resign then—for, as we said before, Moses likes horses. In fact, the word "like" hardly expresses his affection.

And that quarter of a century has not been so long, come to think about. Years, no matter how many, are never long when a man likes a thing and Moses' work has had to do with horses. So, today there are few men any happier or more content than Moses as he goes about his daily tasks with his horses.

Getting back to the story: Taub by extract of race is a Russian-Jew. Years ago he walked down a gang-plank into what McIntyre calls "little ole New York" from the "old country" he bridged the gap into the new world of glowing accounts.

And the first impression Moses gained of the world's greatest city was—HORSES.

Somehow when men think of a town or a city they reflect on it in terms of something other than houses and men. So, when Moses thinks of New York he thinks in terms of horses. Hundreds of horses, thousands, pulling great delivery wagons, street cars, carriages, hansoms, horses everywhere through the traffic of busy streets.

And down through the years New York to him has meant horses, many horses, pulling on in their endless tasks to serve their masters.

And as the years rolled by Moses, with a pack on his back, wandered into Shelby. Like unto many others who roam about the face of the earth, Taub liked Shelby and set up his domicile here. Then he entered the employ of Mr. Blanton, some say a dozen years ago.

Naturally, there always has been an urge to go back to New York. The world has changed a lot in those years and Moses expected New York to be greatly changed. Though he never expressed it publicly one would surmise that although he wanted to see New York there was a conflicting emotion—a dread of going back. In these days of motor trucks and inventives genius surely New York would be moving on too fast for horses.

Then some months ago Moses was called to New York by the death of a relative. He's back now and not of a talkative nature has little comment to make on his trip and the city wherein he caught his first glimpse of the new world.

"But, you know, there's a lot of horses in New York," he says. "More horses than you think, pulling away at the wagons and other things. Of course, the street cars and railways rumble on and the horse has no part. But out in the warehouse district there are horses, lots of 'em."

And judging by that statement it's safe to say that Moses enjoyed the trip. Any little thing in the turning point of a man's life is always a cherished memory.

No biographies will ever be written of Moses Taub, but if they were the story would have to be told about horses. Moses doesn't say so. The public never knows the inner workings of a man's inner mind, and like wise may never know of the dreaming and the longing.

Many people get all their romance out of fiction books, yet no author is a success unless he can paint his characters "true to life."

Meaning, that there's romance in life. Romance in every man's life though the stories are seldom unfolded—and then merely by the passing of the years which after all is like turning the pages of a book. However, in life's book there must be a lot of reading between the lines to get all the romance.

Anyway, Moses Taub likes horses whether he will admit it or not.

Messrs. John Wells, J. A. Anthony and the others should find this week very dull about the court house with two of the big attractions missing out of the sheriff's office. Squire Eskridge and Sheriff Logan have departed seaward to keep company with the boys in Company K, and do some sea fishing on the side.

It will be old grounds to Sheriff Logan, who has drilled many days in the sand about Morehead City, while at the same time Squire Eskridge should thoroughly enjoy the vacation.

The region about Morehead City is ideal for a seaside vacation center and with late day development in this state Morehead promises some day to be famous.

SHORT HAIR HERE TO STAY, IT SEEMS

Bobs and Shingles More Popular Than Ever This Year, Says Barbers and Others

Charlotte Observer.

Will long tresses again favor in Charlotte?

"They will not!" says the working girl, the society girl, the athletic girl, the school girl, in fact, most all girls who have ever worn the short locks.

Furthermore, the older women, women around 40 and past, are strong for the freedom of the bob.

Of course, there are those who wish to be different—very different, say beauty parlor operators, and these are letting their hair grow.

As a rule, this type is the very, very young—flappers! Though only a few flappers are willing to forego the convenience of a shingle bob just to be different, they say.

"After all, who started this business of growing long hair again?" a well-known local beauty parlor operator was asked yesterday.

"Why, the hair manufacturers, of course!" the operator answered, emphatically.

"Certainly it was not the beauty shop operators. We had rather work on bobbed hair any time. About two years ago, when the fashion edict was long hair, I bought several hundred dollars worth of false hair. I still have it," she said, disgustedly.

"No, indeed!" a local barber declared. "Since women have found out they can sleep another hour by not having their long hair to arrange and fuss with every morning there will never be a return to the old style."

"It's not only the working girl that finds comfort in short locks, but all girls who have ever followed the style," the barber declared. "The shorter the better seems to be the preference."

Peculiarly enough, women prefer men barbers when it comes to shingling their hair, though beauty parlor operators say there is nothing strange about it, at all.

In the first place, they say, barbers have had so much more experience in cutting hair than most of the women operators, because of the many years they have been cutting men's hair.

Because of this, women seem to have more confidence in a man's hair cut. For this reason most local beauty parlors have a man barber to do this work.

And women—older women, both barbers and beauty parlor operators declare, are coming in every day having their long tresses shingled, even though the style has said to be waning.

"If it is waning, we certainly can't notice it in Charlotte," they say.

Girls and women with beautiful long hair are having their locks shorn and say they have borne the discomfort of the heavy tresses and the agony of getting a hat big enough, as long as they can.

Though the boyish bob has been most popular among children and very young misses, it is said, however, quite a number of older women have followed the style because of its convenience and comfort.

Couldn't Keep a Secret

"It's ridiculous to say a woman can't keep a secret—any woman can if she really wishes to," said Mrs. Gushit. "Why, I've kept a secret for twenty-five years, and it isn't because folks haven't tried to worm it out of me. But I've never told any one my age since the day I was thirty."

It is madness to curtail free speech. Almost any moral can talk his tongue to death.

Max B. Nahn, president of the Mammoth Cave National Park association, is securing options on 70,000 acres which he proposes to turn over to the government. Money for the purchase is being raised by popular subscription.

Mammoth Cave has been explored through various routes a total distance of 150 miles or more. Dr. W. R. Jilison, state geologist, believes it possible to extend the distance many hundreds of miles if all the sub-surface ramifications of the caves in this region were known and plotted.

An alignment of certain large sink holes and hollows of the region, with their intervening plateau sections, convinces him that large caverns will be found southeast of Mammoth Cave.

"It is quite probable that new caverns will continue to be opened during the next 50 or 100 years, some of which may equal both in size and beauty any of the caves which are now known," Dr. Jilison says.

Preacher Lowe Comes To His New Home

Rev. W. E. Lowe moved today from lower Cleveland to his newly completed bungalow home on Highway No. 20 beyond Cleveland Springs. Mr. Lowe is pastor of Mt. Paran, Old Buffalo and Pleasant Hill Baptist churches—Old Buffalo being one of the oldest Baptist churches in this section and where Tom Dixon, preacher so faithfully for many years. The preacher is like many other Cleveland county ministers of the Baptist faith, a great chicken fancier and with his family he moved some 200 birds which constitute his poultry yard. The preacher says his home is between the "jail and the poor house" and his effort will be to keep away from both, so no doubt his poultry raising as a side line is his means of keeping out of the poor house. Mr. Lowe married Miss Bechler of below Earl, a very charming woman who is a great help to him in his ministerial work.

The waterway bill that covered the most territory, however, was Volstead's.

BILIOUS ATTACKS
From Which Kentucky Man Suffered Two or Three Times a Month, Relieved by Black-Draught.

Lawrenceburg, Ky.—Mr. J. P. Nevins, a local coal dealer and farmer, about two years ago learned of the value of Theford's Black-Draught liver medicine, and now he says:

"Until then I suffered with severe bilious attacks that came on two or three times each month. I would get nauseated. I would have dizziness and couldn't work. I would take pills until I was worn-out with them. I didn't seem to get relief. After taking the pills my bowels would act a couple or three times, then I would be very constipated.

"A neighbor told me of Black-Draught and I began its use. I never have found so much relief as it gave me. I would not be without it for anything.

"It seemed to cleanse my whole system and make me feel like new. I would take a few doses—get rid of the bile and have my usual clear head, feel full of pep and could do twice the work."

Handsome Profits From His Shoats

Seventy-eight shoats placed on feed by J. E. Snider of rural route one from Lexington, on December 31, were sold in Salisbury on April 8 for a net profit above all feeding cost of $569.87. The pigs paid $1.98 per bushel for the corn fed them.

"The pigs weighed 4,351 pounds when they were placed on feed," says W. W. Hay, swine extension specialist. "When they were sold on April 8, they weighed 14,630 having gained 10,279 pounds during the 98 days while on full feed. They were sold for $13.25 per hundred pounds and the amount received for them was $1,937.15. All feeds were charged at market price including 589 bushels of corn at $1 per bushel. The profit was $569.87 above all feed cost and returned a value of $1.98 per bushel for the corn fed."

This demonstration was put on through the efforts of county agent C. A. Sheffield and amply justifies the faith of both Mr. Sheffield and Mr. Snider as to what the hogs would do. No charge was made for labor, states Mr. Shay, in reckoning the profit. Neither was account taken of the fertilizing value of the feed amounting to $170.16 left on the farm in the form of manure. Mr. Shay states, however, that the profit of $569.87 was a daily wage of $5.81 to the owner for the time spent in caring for the pigs. He didn't have to feed the pigs as self-feeders were used. The profit per pig amounted to $7.31.

Mr. Shay states that thirty cars of hogs have recently been fed and sold from demonstration-fed herds. All the work is being done under the supervision of the county agents and vocational teachers and according to plans promoted by the office of swine extension.

Rutherford Negro Passes Century Mark

Only Tasted Whiskey Once When He Had Measles. His Father Lived To Be 111 Years Old.

Rutherford County News.

Ephraim McGill, colored, who lives three miles south of Rutherfordton, with Ike Patterson, colored, on the lands of Mr. H. T. Green, is over 102 years old. He was born March 10, 1924, at Crowders creek S. C., 14 miles south of Kings Mountain and one mile south of the North Carolina line. He has been living in and near Rutherfordton for the last 30 years. He is the father of seven children. His wife died with old age some 30 or 40 years ago. He has a number of great grand children. He belonged to Squire Billy McGill during slavery times. Ephraim helped throw up bravest works in South Carolina during the Civil war.

Ephraim has a remarkable record. He has never been drunk, only tasted whiskey once when he had the measles. He has never been sick. He never took a chew of tobacco or smoked or dissipated in any form. He has waited on many sick people and has seen many people die. He can hear well and see fairly good. He is active and can work. He goes about where he pleases. He takes plenty of exercise and lives a simple life. His father lived to be 111 years of age, while one of his aunts lived to be 112 years old. Ephraim is an active member of the church and not an Evolutionist. He can remember four wars. The war with Mexico, in 1846; the Civil war, Spanish war and the World war.

His simple life, regular habits and clean living, account for his longevity. The writer predicts that he is good for eight or ten years yet.

THINKS MAMMOTH CAVE HAS FURTHER GLORIES

Bowling Green, Ky.—Many wonders may be brought to light from the faintly-lighted grottoes, caves and caverns of Mammoth Cave once the Federal government establishes it as a national park and provides means for extensive explorations.

Kentuckians hope to make it the second national park in the nation east of the Mississippi. When a minimum of 20,000 acres are given the government, the region legally may be designated for national park purposes.

Helen may not play much tennis this year, but she's now cut out for a champion.

State Booklet Is Soon To Be Issued

Volume of 80 Pages of Pictures and Reading Matter Will Describe North Carolina.

An attractively bound booklet, containing 80 pages of pictures and print and offering a general descriptive account of North Carolina, will be of the press within the next few days for distribution by the state department of conservation and development.

It will be the first publication issued by the state dealing with all the varied facts of interest concerning North Carolina. Different departments of the government have from time to time issued booklets and pamphlets setting forth some particular phase of the state's life, but conservation and development department has undertaken in the new booklet to cover briefly and attractively, North Carolina's pre-eminence historically, agriculturally, industrially and commercially and geographically.

The material has been prepared by R. L. Gray, sr., director of publicity for the department and a newspaper man of wide experience. There will be 7,000 words of printed matter and a great outlay of pictures.

Plans of the department looked originally to the publication of a year-book, but such a book, it was soon found, would be too voluminous. The department now proposes to follow the booklet containing the general descriptive account of the state with other booklets and pamphlets dealing with particular phases of subjects. The booklets, now being printed will have a circulation of several thousand copies.

Curstone Cowboy Gets Clothes Taken

Sister of Girl He Insulted Aided by Friends Take Revenge

Asheville.—In union there is strength, and sometimes revenge. Three Asheville girls tricked a curstone cowboy into a trip that lost him his self-confidence and his clothing following an episode last night during which he forced the sister of one of the trio to walk home from an automobile ride, according to reports Thursday. An Asheville girl had accepted a lift in the car of the youthful sprout, it is reported.

The youth drove out along the Leicester road and parked his car and started a battle that ended in the girl walking home. When she arrived there weary and slightly footsore, and told an older sister of her mistreatment, the old sister started on the war path and deliberately accepted a ride from the same youth who had picked up her sister.

A trip down the Leicester road followed and the car was parked according to the plans of the sister of the first girl, another car also drove up and parked. Two friends of hers both girls, were in it. The three seized the youth, stripped him of his clothing, put it in their car and
