COTTON MARKETS

(By Jno. F. Clark and Co.)

Eighty-five members of the New York cotton exchange have made guesses on the cotton crop and these guesses average 15,244,000 bales. Cotton is quoted in the Shelby market at 15c. On the New York exchange it was quoted at 11 o'clock today:

January 16.05; March 16.30; May 16.48; July 16.60; October 15.78; Dec 15.87.

Liverpool 12.30 p. m.: October 8; December 8; January and March 4; Ann points better than due.

Southern weather: last night clear west; cloudy central and east, heavy rains Macon, Montgomery and New Orleans. Forecast Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana generally fair, Arkansas fair except showers southeast portion. Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana and Carolina cloudy with occasional showers. Southern representatives are protesting to the department of agriculture that October New York is being manipulated to disadvantage of the grower. Leading spot people are supposed to have sold October against cotton coming here for tender. Continued pressure of hedge selling and expectation of bearish government tomorrow may cause further weakness today but covering and trade buying should act as a brake.

Two County People Killed In Florida and her family. She has a daughter living in Miami who married a prominent hardware dealer, a Mr. Frost and no name like this has appeared in the casualty list. Wires are congested with messages, so it is almost impossible to get any private communications through. All wires were down and only one line has been repaired since the hurricane.

Mrs. Dwight Carver, daughter of Mrs. W. H. Thompson of this place has been heard from and reports that no one in her family was injured, although all Cleveland county people suffered the loss of property.

Who Won The War?

(H. L. Mencken in The Baltimore Sun.)

A personal no opponent of war, but an advocate of it. All the peace propagandists that I have ever read or listened to seem to me to be dotty. Their case is not only maintained in a stupid and ineffective manner; it is intrinsically weak, and even ridiculous. The objection to war that it is cruel, seem to be too feeble and mainly irrelevant. The arguments in favor of it impress me as reasonable and sound. My one regret is that there is so much peace already.

But any cause, however bad, deserves to be carried on in an intelligent and persuasive manner and here the peace advocates fall down badly. At the moment their chief argument seems to be that war is unprofitable, even to the victor, and in proof thereof they point to the situation of France. But all that is simply nonsense. France did not win the war; France lost the war. She was so badly beaten when the United States went to her rescue that another six months would have seen the Germans bathing at Biarritz and listening to the band at Nice. England was faring somewhat better. She might have gone to a draw. But she could have no more won a clear victory, without American aid than she could have beaten the United States itself.
