Shelby Boys Go Good

Charity & Children.

Shelby boys have the habit of getting there. Lee Weathers is running the tri-weekly Star, which is one of the brightest papers that come to this office, while O. L. Moore, another Cleveland man, follows close behind with his Laurinburg Exchange. Each of these papers is a real credit to the towns in which they are published.

Fool-proof airplanes are predicted. Impossible as long as people continue to be made as they are now.

Toluca News Notes Of Present Week

(Special to The Star.)

Charlotte, Sept. 22.—A suit for $20,000 actual and $2,000 punitive damages was filed in superior court yesterday by Walter Clark attorney for Ernest L. Barton, manager of the Queen City employment bureau here, against Frank D. Grist, state commissioner of labor and printing.

The suit was the outgrowth of recent litigation between Barton and the state official.

Mr. Barton asked damages on the ground of false arrest and an alleged desire on the part of the defendant to injure the business conducted by the plaintiff.

The plaintiff contends that the state officer gave out interviews to the press, announcing he was going to have the defendant arrested for violation of the state law which forbade charging an initial fee for services of a labor bureau.

Recently Judge A. M. Stack dissolved the temporary injunction which Judge Michael Schenck had granted Barton, who sought this means of restraining the commissioner of labor and printing from interfering with him.

The first actual step in the litigation took place in July when Grist had Barton arrested for the alleged illegal practice of charging an initial registration fee for the services of his employment bureau.

A voluntary non-suit, however, was taken when it came up for a preliminary hearing before Recorder F. M. Currie, of Charlotte.

After this Judge Schenck signed the temporary restraining order barring the commissioner from further interference with the labor bureau until argument should be heard before Judge Stack as to whether the order should be made permanent and also barring the bureau from charging a fee until the hearing.

Assistant Attorney General Allen of the state appeared as counsel for Grist at the hearing, which resulted in Judge Stack's dissolving the injunction against the commissioner.

The civil suit filed yesterday afternoon will find its way to trial on the regular civil court calendar.
