

SAFE FARMING IS BEING TALKED BUT NOT LISTENED TO

One Of Biggest Farm Crowds Was At Shelby Meeting, Observer Farm Writer Notes

What's it all about anyhow. This campaigning and these speakings in every court house in the state in the interest of safe farming are about over, and seemingly a small per cent of the farmers have heard that such a thing is on, and many of them are asking "what is it all about?"

The Cleveland Star observes that in many of the counties when the campaign was started, as few as forty and fifty to a hundred farmers attended the initial meeting. In Monroe on the 12th, Dear I. O. Schaub made a brilliant effort for the future salvation of Union county. There were 110 farmers who heard him, and if the farm census for that county is correct, there were exactly 4,884 farmers in the county who did not hear him. The great majority of these will never know that he made a speech, and many who by chance may learn that he was in town will not learn what it was all about.

In his message to the general assembly, Governor Angus W. McLean said that North Carolina is spending for food and feed shipped into the state $250,000,000 annually, and that this same food and feed could be produced on North Carolina farms. Add to this the possibilities of the state in increased efficiency in North Carolina farmers made possible by economic independence. Sum up these three things. Speculate as to how far the sum total will go on the church, school and road programs, and in support of North Carolina business, and then answer becomes evident that this campaigning and these speakings are about the future welfare and prosperity of all the people of the state.

The North Carolina extension division has the remedy. It has worked out the plan which if carried to the farmers and impressed upon them will turn the trick, and this band of workers is doing all in its power to reach the masses, but there are too many farmers and too few extension workers for them to put the thing across unassisted. Whose duty is it then to assist? Is it not a part of banking to help make money for deposit in the bank? Is it not good business for the merchant to assist his customers in acquiring the wherewithal to buy? Is it not fine policy for the professional man, the teacher and even the preacher to assist their constituency in carrying a well filled pocketbook? Is it not the duty of the farmer, for the sake of his family, to adjust his farming to the times and conditions which confront him? It is clearly the business of all the people to put over this better farming program which the North Carolina extension division has worked out and is fostering.

Most anybody will sign a letter of recommendation, but few people are willing to take their own medicine.

ONE OUT OF 261 COLLEGE STUDENT

North Carolina Has 10,296 Men And Women In High Colleges Now

Washington.—One out of every 261 residents of North Carolina is a college student, it is disclosed by a study of higher education just completed by the bureau of education of the department of interior.

Out of every 189 men of all ages living in the state, one is now attending college. A considerably lower ratio is shown for the women, only one out of every 437 being a college student.

The report of the investigation of the bureau of education shows that there are 9,451 students attending North Carolina colleges, including 6,437 men and 3,014 women. Of this number 5,669 men and 2,389 women, a total of 8,049 are actual residents of the state. The colleges of North Carolina thus drew an excess of 1,402 students over their permanent homes in the state.

At the same time 21.9 per cent of the North Carolina collegians go to institutions of higher learning in states other than their own, while the remaining 78.1 per cent find the education they seek in the colleges and universities of their home state. The number of North Carolina students going to colleges in all states is 10,296 of whom 7,288 are men and 3,008 are women.

Looking at the situation from another angle, it was found by the educational experts who made the study that of students attending North Carolina colleges and universities, 85.1 per cent were from that state, 14.3 per cent were from other states and the remaining six tenths of one per cent were from foreign countries and United States possessions.

According to divisions of study, there were in North Carolina col-

PALE & PEAKED

Texas Lady Was Advised By Her Mother To Take Cardui, Which She Did With Good Results.

Hamilton, Texas.—Mrs. Gladys Poitevint, of this city, says: "At times I suffered awfully with pains across my back and through my sides. I would have to go to bed and stay two or three days at a time. It was very worrisome. I managed to keep going, but... did not enjoy myself at all."

"One day my mother remarked on how bad I looked. She said: 'You look so pale and peaked, why don't you take a bottle of Cardui?' She had taken it herself a number of times, and it had always improved her health, so she thought I had better try it."

"I got the Cardui and began taking it, and from the first dose or two I could see a change for the better. The first thing I noticed was that my appetite was improved. I began to be hungry and I enjoyed my meals. I slept better at night. My rest was so much quieter that I got the benefit from it. I kept on with the Cardui and look fit for several months. The pains in my back and sides grew less until they finally quit bothering me."

North Carolina boys and girls who do not go to colleges in their own state appear to divide their preference evenly between Georgia, Virginia, the District of Columbia, South Carolina, Tennessee, Pennsylvania and Maryland. There were 189 men and women from North Carolina in District of Columbia colleges at the time of the survey. 273 in Georgia, 166 in Maryland, 152 in Pennsylvania, 208 in South Carolina, 185 in Pennsylvania and 387 in Virginia. There were North Carolina students, it was found, in the colleges of 37 states other than their own.

Brazil, China, France, Guiana, India, Japan, Mexico, Persia and the West Indies are represented among the foreign students attending North Carolina colleges.

Epidemic Killing Henderson Mules

Hendersonville News.

Horses in Henderson county are suffering from an epidemic of botulism, which has been raging for six weeks. Dr. R. E. Taylor, veterinarian announced yesterday that in the past four weeks, there has been seventy-five horses died, and he declared that others have also been lost of which he had no first hand information. This is the first time an epidemic of this type has struck Henderson county and there is a tendency on the part of farmers to confuse it with madness or rabies.

Botulism is an epidemic which has been widely known for its destructiveness to human life in the past decade in this country. Some seven years ago, many lives were snuffed out from it by eating canned olives. It is also destructive to animal life, and Dr. Taylor explains it is in no way associated with madness.

Botulism is a poisoning which comes from toxina caused by the toxin produced by which the medical profession knows as bacillus botulinus. It is a poisoning in all kinds of food which the animals eat, and usually develops following seasons of either extreme drought or wet, or one or the other following each other suddenly.

The symptoms are of two kinds. One is where the horse becomes so weak, muscularly, as to drop into sleep. The other effect of the illness is that the horse becomes wild, losing its intelligence. In both instances, death follows in anywhere from 12 to 48 hours.

Dr. Taylor recalls that during his experience in Kentucky, when an epidemic was experienced there of the same kind, he applied a re-ventive serum to some four hundred or five hundred head of horses, with the result that not a single one of them was lost. This is not an infallible remedy, but works in a large number of cases, saving every horse in that instance.

Dr. Taylor gave serum treatment to 35 horses on Saturday and will give it to more than fifty on Monday.

Several horses, getting delirious have entirely destroyed their stalls, one running time and again through a barbed wire fence, until he had practically cut himself to pieces.

The World's Foster Mother

There is no more efficient producer of human food than the cow. For each 100 pounds of digestible feed consumed, she gives back in her milk six times as much edible solids as the steer or sheep yields in its carcass.

As the breed has improved throughout the years, so has the feed, and today Miami Dairy stands among the most productive of 16% protein dairy feeds. All of the ingredients necessary for the cow's body maintenance, for sturdy calves and heavy milk yield are found in Miami Dairy.

Whether you have one cow or one hundred, Miami Dairy will produce results. We recommend it. See us for a supply today.

A QUESTION

After reading a few of Machiavelli's essays on chicanery, one wonders how long he would last as a modern used car dealer. It would give him a great laugh, we know, to see how conscientiously we recondition our Used Cars before offering them for sale. But the proof of a principle is in its success—and the laugh would be on him, after all.
