State D. A. R. Meet Set for Wilmington.
The following announcement in regard to the 27th annual conference of D. A. R., which will be of interest to a number of people in this city:

The 27th annual conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution in North Carolina will be held during the last week in March in Wilmington. An unusually interesting program is being planned by Mrs. E. C. Gregory, of Salisbury, state regent, and members of the Stamp defiance chapter of Wilmington. Several speakers of national reputation will address the conference.

Among the most interesting annual reports to be made at the conference will be that on the marking of historic spots. Some of the markers erected during the year include: Tablet on Old Construction house, at Halifax; boulder to Colonel Alexander McAllister near Fayetteville in cooperation with descendants monument to Revolutionary soldier at Snow Hill; tall shaft marking the site of Camp Greene at Charlotte; and a bronze marker on the George Washington boulder where President Washington ate dinner while en route to Winston-Salem from Salisbury on May 31, 1791.

Another important report will be made by the committee on the correct use of the flag; Mrs. Frank Brantley Smith, of Charlotte, who will pay particular attention to the success of the flag lessons read at various monthly chapter meetings.

Splendid activity will also be reported in the formation of Living Flags, almost one-half of the North Carolina D. A. R. chapters having already formed or planned to form Living Flags whose purpose is to foster reverence for the flag of the United States.

Mrs. Joseph B. Tate, regent of the Edward Buncombe chapter of Asheville, has the distinction of being the first D. A. R. chapter regent to form a Living flag. She also has honor of having formed the first foreign-born Living flag consisting of naturalized Greek-American citizens who are members of the Land of the Sky chapter of the Ohepa. All members of this Living Flag are Greek-born American citizens with the exception of Mrs. Tate, who is the flag-staff, Mrs. Gregory, who is a star, and Mrs. Alfred J. Brosseau, D. A. R., president general, who is also a star.

Mrs. Charles R. Whitaker, of Southern Pines, will also present an interesting report for the Genealogical Research committee, which is collecting original early records of revolutionary soldiers and heroines. Copies of the findings are kept by the state historical commission, the various counties, in chapter files, the National D. A. R. library and the state library.

Harking Back In Years Gone Ahead

Greensboro News.
Twenty-six years ago, Charles Brantly Aycock, standing on a platform at the east portico of the State capitol, proclaimed in his inaugural address, the dawn of a new era, speaking in the first week of the first year of a new century, and concluding his first paragraph with the words: "A new constitution greets the new century." Further along he declared that henceforth in North Carolina the song of the mockingbird and the laughter of little children should be heard in place of the sound of the pistol.

COMMISSION OF TERM GIVEN

Raleigh.—Approval of the extension of the school term in the state to eight months by legislative enactment, but not by constitutional amendment is contained in the majority report of the educational commission in its report submitted to the members of the general assembly by Governor A. W. McLean. A minority report, signed by the seven dissenting members of the commission maintained that an eight months term by constitutional amendment was necessary and that it should be provided, even if the cost was heavy. The majority members of the commission held that the imposition of the eight months term by constitutional amendment would impose too great a tax burden on the state in that it would cost in excess of $17,000,000 to maintain the schools in their present scale for the eight months' term, and would require in addition a state equalization fund of more than $4,000,000 a year from the state as a whole.

On that glorious January day, no one could have foreseen the things that were to come between that day and this; the automobile which was then a rich man's toy; the flying machine which the scientist in that year proved could never fly; the moving picture industry; the prohibition amendment; or even our own state prohibition which came within eight years; that nearly two thousand of the North Carolina school children of that year would be killed in France; and that other thousands of them should fill our jails and penitentiaries and various other institutions.

It looks as if the people who heard and even remembered failed to carry on!

YOUTH SPENDS FIVE DAYS IN N. Y. SUBWAY

New York.—Louis Schleslein was at his home in Brooklyn after five days spent in the subway. Growing tired of school five days, Louis quit and crossed to Manhattan from Brooklyn to find a job but when his capital got down to 60c and two bars of chocolate and the prospective job still eluded him he boarded a subway train.

He remained in the subway all night and then invested another nickel and switched over to another line. This he kept up for five days and nights.

Louis might have continued touring New York underground indefinitely had he not overslept yesterday and been found in a car that had completed its run.

The wise thing for a pedestrian to do is to get a suit of armor, insure his life, and then stay home.

The worst faults about the signal lights for traffic control are that they can't arrest the men and women who won't obey them.

TRIFLES BLAMED FOR HOME WRECKS

Little Things Cause Friction And Rows, Woman Probation Officer Says

After fifteen years of observation on the front line trenches of New York's marital wars, Mrs. Viola Anglin, deputy-chief probation officer of the Manhattan family court, warns wives to "watch the trifles." In her opinion it isn't hefting, flirtations or fancy-lance pettings that break up happy homes. It is scorching the breakfast bacon, or leaving a shaving brush full of soap or mixing up the morning paper, etc. She thinks love can forgive brutality or infidelity or desertions, but let the small irritations of daily living go on too long and "Cupid will lie down and take the count." Last year 10,000 cases came into her court.

Her advice to married folks is "Don't be yourself." The little rough edges of living together, she says, "wear off the glamour of romance. I have seen more marriages benten by uncurled hair than by infidelity, and more hearts broken by forgotten birthday gifts than by desertion. If you value your mate, don't be yourself." Keep on being that charming, stimulating, high artificial fake you were during courtship. After a while you'll find it comes natural. Most human beings unadorned are pretty shoddy companions day in and day out. They simply must make the effort to be amusing, attractive, amiable, if they are going to keep the dust on the butterfly's wings. Romance is the most perishable of all known commodities.

"Don't be suspicious of infidelity. But use your energy to prevent it. Rolling pins and frying pans may tame recalcitrant husbands without being thrown at them. For good food is near to the heart of every romance. On the other hand don't let your own graces and beauty slip away under the burden of housework. There is no excuse nowadays for a slovenly house or a slovenly appearance, for woman's work has been vastly simplified by science."

Mountain Realty Causes Lawsuit

Tryon Development Company and First National Company Land In Federal Court.

Greensboro, News.
Suits for three judgments for a minimum of $13,633.31 or a maximum of $20,066.69, depending upon whether certain notes given in real estate transactions are returned, were filed in United States court for the Western district of North Carolina here yesterday by Mrs. L. Maurice and Kate Harrill, individually and jointly of Rutherford county against the Tryon Development company and the First National company. The suits were transferred from the Superior court of Polk county.

The plaintiffs were purchasers of lots in the development known as Lake Lanier, which was much heralded while the western North Carolina real estate boom was underway during the fall of 1925 and last spring. They contend, in their suits, that certain guarantees made in deeds have never been carried out. The plaintiffs made part payments in cash and gave their notes for the remainder, these being placed with the First National company for discounting by the real estate development concern.

ROUND SHOULDERS IN ADULT ARE DIFFICULT TO CORRECT

The condition of round shoulders is not always due to slouchy habits, but may be inherited as a characteristic family physique, or may be due to congenitally defective vertebrae or to debilitating diseases in childhood, according to Hygeia.

Braces and casts are of some use in the growing child to correct or restrict the condition, but they are not of much use for adults. Exercise, by giving a well developed musculature, which masks the condition, are of benefit. They should be given by a trained instructor.

Mrs. L. Maurice, in her individual suit, asks a judgment for $5,349.99 and interest from October 27, 1925; an order directing the First National company to surrender and cancel her notes, and if this isn't done, for a verdict of $8,400.01; the reconveying of lots to the Tryon Development company, and a restraining order preventing the First National company from disposing of the notes.

Kate Harrill, suing individually, asks $5,783.32 and interest from October 27, 1925, return of the notes and their cancellation, and if this is not done, for judgment in the sum of $6,666.68 and interest from the date of the transaction, and an injunction preventing disposal of the notes.

Together Mrs. Maurice and Kate Harrill, asks $2,500, return and cancellation of the notes or an augmented judgment of $5,000, reconveying of title to the lots of the Tryon Development company, and an injunction halting any disposition of notes.

We noticed quite a suggestive sign on a filling station in our travels which read, "Stop and Gas With Us."

The doctor opened the door of his operating room and looked at the line of waiting patients and asked, "Who has been waiting the longest?"

"I have," spoke up one individual very promptly. "I'm the garage man who fixed up your car about four months ago."
