

Living Models To Show Famous Paintings At Fair Shows Here, Other Features Of Next Week

When the big Johnny J. Jones Southern exposition opens its doors on the midway at the fair next week, visitors will have an opportunity to see the latest creation in the way of tented amusement. It is called "Superba," and is the latest production of Etsa Louise Blake. The performance consists of reproductions of famous paintings, with living models taking the place of the painted figures, the whole being embellished with scenic and electrical effects which would do credit to many a metropolitan opera house. Among the paintings will be found "The Rock of Ages," "Bubbles," "Flower Girl of Holland," "Daybreak," "Memorial Window to Nurse Edith Cavell," "The Wanderer" and others. In addition to the living pictures Miss Blake presents her own "Visions of Art," a series of exquisite art studies, and a clever and refined dancing number by Miss Virginia Brown concludes the entertainment. Newspapers in nearly every city have proclaimed "Superba" the prettiest show ever seen on a midway.

All of the shows carried by the Johnny J. Jones Southern exposition are strictly high class, clean and meritorious, and visitors this year will be amazed at the quality as well as the quantity of the attractions. Many new rides, including "Over the Alps," "The Skooter," English "Dangler" and the garden of kiddies will provide unlimited thrills, and music lovers will enjoy the band concerts that take place at intervals on the midway.

WILL JINX TRAIL TUNNEY IN 'CHI' AS IT DID OTHERS

Chicago Has Hoodoo Sign On Fistic Champs. Big Fight On Tomorrow Night.

(By Copeland C. Burg, INS Staff Correspondent.)
Chicago.—Will Gene Tunney fall a victim to Chicago's jinx on fistic champions when he meets Jack Dempsey in Soldiers' Field here September 22?

Within less than 18 months two champions have lost their titles in Chicago and a third world's title holder fighting at catch weights and his royal bonnet at stake, suffered a technical knockout. He didn't lose his crown because both he and his opponent were overweight.

Tigers—Flowers, middleweight champion, dropped his title to the present king in that division, Mickey Walker, in a bout here.

Rocky Kansas, former lightweight champion, was sent into oblivion by the present diadem-bearer Sammy Mandel, in a Chicago open show.

Mushy Callahan, Los Angeles boxer, was the fistic king who almost gave up his decorations to Sammy Baker, New Yorker, who fought Callahan here at 144 pounds, two pounds over the junior welterweight limit and thus lost all claims to the "light welter" title thereby, even though he stopped Callahan.

Both the Kansas-Mandel and Flowers-Walker decisions were hotly attacked. Mandell, some sports critics declared, was not entitled to more than a draw verdict and these gentlemen said the lifting of Flowers' head-piece was an act akin to the tactics of Chicago gunmen.

However, neither Tunney, the best of the heavyweights, or Dempsey, the former champion and now challenger for the title, or their respective managers, Billy Gibson, and Leo Flynn, are worried about the city's jinx for champions. Both Tunney and Dempsey have shown little interest outwardly in the selection of a referee and the two judges who will decide the affair. Both of the principals have announced they are certain they will "get a square deal" and that the verdict will be given fairly and squarely.
