

FIND HUGE CAVE IN GRAND CANYON

Workmen Travel Several Miles in Vast Underground Chamber.

Cedar City, Utah.—In addition to the world's mightiest canyon, Grand Canyon National park now offers the possibility of containing its largest cave.

The announcement was made following discovery of a cavern of vast proportions by workmen employed on Grand Canyon lodge, which opens this summer. The cave is located in Roaring Spring canyon on the north rim, and three men have penetrated it for two miles, to find further progress stopped by lack of a boat.

Like many other springs in the cliff regions of Arizona and southern Utah, Roaring springs emerges from openings in the faces of cliffs, and the water cascades down in falls.

Four Hours in Cave.

Unlike others of them, however, one of the apertures from which Roaring springs issues is large enough to admit a man. Bill Denton of South Dakota went in and found an absolutely unsuspected cavern of considerable extent. Denton had only a pocket flashlight, and the battery became exhausted before he could go very far, so he came out and told Mack Johnson of Soquerville, Utah, and Paul Sraun of Salt Lake City what he had seen. The three secured gas-lit lanterns and, carrying extra bottles of gasoline along for fuel, they did a thorough job of exploring the cave and have just announced their discovery.

"We spent four hours in the cave, and went back about two miles," relates Jackson. "There is a regular labyrinth of tunnels in there, and we didn't try to explore all of them. We followed back from the entrance for about half a mile until we came to a smaller tunnel branching off to the left. It went along for about 200 feet and joined three more.

One Big Creek.

"At the place where these four tunnels came together there's a big river coming down one of them and dividing among the other three. These divide again and again, so that all the waterfalls you see in the canyon that we call Roaring springs are just the ends of smaller tunnels. The one big creek supplies them all.

"We went up this creek as far as we could. One place we walked along with one foot on a ledge on each side of the stream, which narrowed down to about two feet, was more than twenty feet deep.

"Finally we came to a big room floored entirely by the river, and we couldn't go any further without a boat. As far as we could see, both the cave and the river got bigger and bigger. The river is too deep to wade, and too cold to swim, or we would have gone farther.

"The inside of the cave is very beautiful. It is full of stalactites and stalagmites, and there are places where it is frescoed with beautiful formations of crystallized limestone.

Whether or not the cave will be explored further is problematical at this time. Two difficulties stand in the way of such an undertaking. Since Roaring springs is the source of the water supply for Grand Canyon lodge, the national park service may forbid further exploration to avoid contamination of the water supply.

Gets a Boat into the Cave

Getting a boat into the cave would be a tremendous task, say the three who have been there. The boat would have to be shipped by truck from this town, which is 170 miles away.

Buy Valueless Stock for $3; Clears $116,000
Boston.—On an investment of $3, representing the winning bid for 3,000 shares of Wire Wheel Corporation of America common stock at a financial auction, L. Sherman Adams, security dealer, realized a profit of more than $116,000 within a year.

A shrewd student of security values Mr. Adams realized that the company had had scarcely a profitable year since its organization in 1917, but apparently he also knew that it controls a patent covering every type of automobile wheel demountable and changeable at the hub.

Less than a year after Mr. Adams made his purchase the Federal Appellate court upheld the Cowles patent in broad terms. Mr. Adams' stock rose to $250 a share and was then split up ten shares for one.

The sales of the company more than doubled and excited bidding drove prices to near its present market value of $350 a share. Late in 1923 quotations ranged from 42 cents to $3 a share.

Former War Prisoner Sells Meat to Captor
Kansas City, Mo.—Eleven years ago Tom Stephenson of Lexington, Neb., was a member of a scouting party of the Northumberland Fusiliers which assisted in the capture of a German outpost near Hargreave. Stephenson escorted a prisoner, Henry Warsaw, to the rear.

Stephenson, an American, and his former prisoner met the other day when Warsaw, a salesman for a Chicago packing company, sold him an order for his butcher shop.

California Has Monopoly
The bureau of fisheries says that the white shell is not found on any other Atlantic coast at all, and is traceable only near California.

Leaves Fortune to Nonexistent Heirs

Sydney, N. S. W.—John Payne, who died recently in Melbourne, left a fortune of more than $2,500,000. He made his will two years ago, and after making certain provisions he stated that the residuary estate should be held in trust for his children, each of his sons to receive three times as much as his daughters.

But he died childless. Another strange item was that his magnificent home should be destroyed by fire as soon as practicable. He gave no reason. His widow will get $15,000 immediately, and $25,000 each year. The gardener received $15,000.

CALIFORNIA MAY PLACE BOUNTY ON BANK ROBBERS

Official Warns Bandits They May Be Put in Same Category as Wild Animals.

Sacramento, Calif.—A new epoch of vigilante justice, with sudden death riding the trail of the plunderer—an epoch in which bank bandits will be worth more dead than alive—is impending in California.

Bank bandits must halt, Will C. Wood, state banking superintendent, declared in an ultimatum to the underworld fraternity. If the holdup men fail to heed the warning, Wood asserted, they may soon find themselves in the same category with predatory animals—worth a liberal state bounty dead and nothing alive.

Singling out the Texas system of paying $5,000 for dead bank robbers, the state official warned California desperadoes are inviting similar action unless the epidemic of bank holdups is brought to an end.

Wood's statement follows a succession of bank holdups in Courtland, Elk Grove, Woodland, Esparto, Oakland, Los Angeles and other California cities during recent weeks.

"Bank robberies are becoming so frequent that drastic action is in order to protect the banks," affirmed Superintendent Wood.

"The robbers are getting bolder in their holdups every day. A reversion to the swift justice of early California days, when bank robbers were seldom taken alive, is being encouraged by these desperadoes.

"Down in Texas I understand that the bankers' association offers a liberal reward for bank robbers, with the proviso that nothing will be paid for live ones.

"I hope conditions will not become so bad in California as to necessitate us following the Texas example." Crime is costing America the stupendous sum of $10,000,000,000 annually, according to data compiled by state investigators, with bank holdups showing one of the biggest increases.

"It is our task to teach the bandit, in the words of Jack Black, that you can't win in the business of crime," concluded Wood, "and it looks like these outlaws may require a drastic lesson."

Big Texas Ranch Will Cater to City 'Cowboys'
Alpine, Texas.—One of the most famous old ranches of Texas, located near this little city in the Davis mountains, has been purchased by local business men to be operated as a "dude ranch" for tourists.

Tourists from many parts of the world are expected to visit the ranch this summer and mimic the life of the pioneer cowboys of the southwestern plains, according to Pete Crawford, veteran cowboy and federal border officer, who has been made manager of the ranch.

Crawford has brought a string of cattle ponies to the ranch. The ranch, Valle la Chisera, covers 25,000 acres. The ranch house equipment is the same as has been used for the last 50 years.

Crawford has employed several experienced guides to lead visitors next fall on deer, bear, mountain lion, and turkey hunts.

"It seems like most grownups have an inward desire of getting out on a big ranch and playing cowboy for a while," said Crawford, in explaining his tolerant attitude toward "city dudes" who visit the ranch. He admitted, however, that most of the veterans have little to do with the "city cowboys."

Chair of Cheops' Mother Restored for Museum
Cairo, Egypt.—Queen Hetepheres' carrying chair has been restored after two years' careful work and delivered to the Cairo museum.

The chair was made by her son, King Cheops, some 6,000 years ago. It is carved in patterned gold and inlaid with solid gold hieroglyphics. Its great beauty is said to throw considerable light on the artistic sense of Egyptian craftsmen of the pyramid age.

When discovered the wood of the chair was entirely decayed or shrunk to one-sixth of its original volume, but the joints of tenons and mortises were in perfect preservation. New wood exactly like the old was used in reconstruction and the gold cases and gold hieroglyphics were mounted on it.

Original "Loving Cup"

The custom of the loving cup is traced back to the days of wassailing. It was continued after the introduction of Christianity. The monks called the wassail bowl the poculum caritatis, meaning "loving cup." The ceremony of drinking from one cup and passing it around was observed in the Jewish paschal supper.

Life's Friendships

We have to learn to do our loving in this world over a good many rough places and around a great many sharp edges. If we insist that our friends be made to order, we shall never have any friends. We must take people as we find them, and expend our desire for perfection in shaping the friendship we give rather than in expecting it in that which we receive.—Exchange.

Corner Cupboards

About 1710 corner cupboards were first seen. At that time they were built in and were finished to match the paneling in the room. It was almost 100 years later that they were made as separate pieces of furniture.

Refuge From Elephants

Some natives in the mountains of northern India live in huts during the day, but at night stay in little bamboo houses to resist the attacks of wild elephants.

First Telegraphist

Our first form of telegraphy was invented in 1836 by Charles Wheatstone, who also invented the concertina. His system of telegraphy was the "Single Needle," still in use on some railways.

Freak of Nature

The zebra is a hybrid offspring between a zebra sire and a burro dam. It was first obtained by an experiment of the United States Department of Agriculture, bureau of animal industry, at Bethesda Md., in 1909.

Highest Form of Laces

Church laces are usually the finest examples of lace-making which artists can design and fingers execute. Much of the finest lace has been made by nuns in convents. Venetian points are considered the most beautiful and elaborate laces known, made entirely with the needle.
