English Shieks War

Brighton, England.—English girls have declared war on young motoring shieks, who invite girls to go for a joy-ride in their automobiles. Two young men were walking along Marine Parade when a smart little automobile, carrying two attractive girls, drew up alongside them. "Care for a spin in the country?" asked the girl at the wheel, sweetly. The invitation was accepted with alacrity, and off the party speeded until they were about 20 miles from the town. The automobile stopped, and one of the girls asked the youths if they would mind picking some flowers for them. They did so, but when they were about 20 yards away they heard the engine start, and the girls drove off at great speed, laughing heartily. The two young men arrived home at 2 p. m., their only consolation being that scores of other similar cases had occurred during the week.

STONE COTTAGE IN IRELAND SMITH'S ANCESTRAL HOME

Cavan.—On the edge of a peat bog near here stands a one-story thatched cottage built of whitewashed stone, which has become famous as the ancestral home of the Democratic candidate for president of the United States. It is the birthplace of Governor Smith's grandfather, who set out to seek his fortune in America during the turbulent period of the Ulster farmers' revolt against oppressive landlords, in which he was a leading agitator. It is said here that the elder Smith had to flee the country on account of his activities. Around this district is a veritable colony of farmers named Smith, all of whom are very proud of the Democratic candidate who has brought their name into prominence in America. Proudest of them all is James Smith. He is sure that his little home will soon be famous. Nassau, Bahama Islands.—These prosperous islands have increased their whisky imports 10 per cent during the first part of 1928. Custom house figures show that every man, woman and child in the Bahamas would have the use of three cases of hard liquor monthly if all of the incoming bottles stayed in the islands, which they do not. Despite the massing of Coast Guard destroyers, cutters and seaplanes off the Florida coast, more than $2,000,000 worth of whisky was unloaded here during the first six months of this year. Meanwhile the export figures have been cut in half because of the growing practice of transshipping liquors to schooners and warehouses at Grand Bahama and Bimini Islands.
