The Aviator Absolute dependability is aviation's first law and that is why I use dependable Champion Spark Plugs.

Champion is the better spark plug because it has an exclusive sillimanite insulator specially treated to withstand the much higher temperatures of the modern high-compression engine. Also a new patented solid copper gasket-seal that remains absolutely gas-tight under high compression. Special analysis electrodes which assure a fixed spark-gap under all driving conditions.

Hollywood's 'Hardest Boiled Guy' Prows Around With Pockets Full Dynamite.

Hollywood, Calif.—This is to introduce "the hardest boiled guy in Hollywood."

No, you're wrong! It's not Lon Chaney, not Tom Mix, not even Bull Montana. Bull Montana is a Maypole dancer compared with this baby who goes prowling around the studio lots with his pockets full of dynamite, dangling a roll of high explosive fuse where Tom Mix dangles nothing more dangerous than a rope.

His name is "Slim" Hoffman—christened Walter—and his purpose in life is to blow up things. Oh, it doesn't matter what! He'll blow up the kitchen lamp or a square mile of movie battlefield with the same blasé gestures.

A correspondent for Photoplay Magazine ventured near enough this lean and sinewy walking arsenal the other day to elicit a few facts about one of the most colorful and least exploited careers in the cinema colony.

"Slim" he found, is old enough to have begun blowing up things in a small way 35 years ago—foundation jobs, railroad cuts and prosaic miscellany like that. He'd been playing with dynamite for several years when the San Francisco 'quake came along and gave him a chance at bigger things. "Slim" wallowed around in that maw of flames and tottering walls for days, literally blowing out the conflagration with dynamite. And then he got into the movies.

He uses a dynamite cap for toothpick and his vocabulary is as explosive as the stuff he deals with—it has to be, he explains, to keep away those simple-minded souls who invariably gather around when an explosion is due. But "Slim" is an artist in his way. He can blow up a 50-foot square area without cracking a tea cup placed six inches beyond the edge. He has perfected a chemical concoction that will make an entire building seem a roaring inferno without so much as scorching the wallpaper. He can supervise the mining of an entire make-believe battlefield, then sit back at his complex switchboard and play a crescendo of destruction that—so far as the eye can see—should dismember every living thing for miles around, but he has never caused a casualty.

Henry Walthall, according to "Slim," possesses more sheer nerve than any actor in the business. Once a Walthall script called for the actor to be buried in the debris of an explosion. Walthall walked in without turning a hair. "Slim" pressed his switch and, wham! It took ten men six minutes to dig Walthall out from twelve feet of dirt, but he didn't suffer anything more than loss of breath.

Gloria Swanson is "Slim's" choice for courage among the women. "No doubts for that gal; she'd eat a dozen sticks of dynamite to make a scene more realistic," he declared in the Photoplay interview.
