

Observer Praises Cleveland Springs

Charlotte Observer.

The Observer has been a stout contender that there is a fine future ahead of the Cleveland Springs hotel—ever since the days of Poston and Miller, who catered to the wants of the people before the automobile was known—and repeatedly since the institution was modernized and gilt-edged with the coming of good roads and fast travel. The opportunity has now been realized, by the long-anticipated outside talent, and the hotel goes under management of Beauregard, of New York, and Martin, of New Jersey, the latter having been connected with the Marlborough, at Asbury Park. These lessees will establish the Cleveland Springs hotel as both a summer and winter resort and are starting out on a program that gives inspiration to the people of Shelby.

KOCH EXPLAINS DRAMATIC ZEAL

Cities Renaissance Within The Last Ten Years, Due To Playmakers.

Chapel Hill.—North Carolina has had a remarkable renaissance in drama in the last 10 years, according to Frederick H. Koch, director of the Carolina Playmakers, who summarizes the work of the Playmakers in that renaissance in an article in the current issue of The Carolina Play Book just off the press.

The Carolina Play Book, begun last March, is published quarterly by the Carolina Playmakers and the Carolina Dramatic Association. Its purpose is to bring about closer fellowship among Playmakers and a continuing participation in the making of a people's theater in North Carolina. Professor Koch is editor of The Play Book.

"Ten years ago," Professor Koch writes, "Barrett Clark tells us that North Carolina was stricken from the mailing list of Samuel French, Inc., publishers of plays, as a dead state. It was so dead, in fact, in its dramatic interest as not to warrant the postage necessary for mailing their catalogues!"

Organized.

"Ten years ago the Carolina Playmakers was formed and our bureau of community drama was organized. Five years ago our Carolina Dramatic festival and state tournament organized.

"In this decade the Carolina Playmakers have produced 59 of their original folk-plays by 42 different authors. Eight of these are early plays by Paul Green, winner of the Pulitzer prize in 1927, for his epic tragedy of the negro, "In Abraham's Bosom." The highest recognition that can come to playwright in America has come to one of our own Playmakers, three other native North Carolinians—Lula Volmer, Hatcher Hughes and Anne Bridges—have made an important contribution to American folk drama on Broadway.

21 Tours.

"Our Playmakers have made 21 tours, playing in every nook and corner of North Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, Maryland, the District of Columbia, Pennsylvania and New York. We have played in 53 different towns in North Carolina and in 27 of the leading cities in other states. We have played to 347 different audiences, numbering in all more than 150,000.

"Two volumes of our Carolina Folk-Plays have been published by Henry Holt and company, and a third volume is now in the press. These plays have been widely read and produced in towns and cities all over the United States.

"We now have our own well-equipped building on the campus—the Playmakers theater, the first state-owned theater in America to be devoted to the making of its own native drama.

"Far from being dead today in North Carolina, we are very much alive to the drama in this year of grace—and our state-wide Carolina Dramatic Association."

To Ask Legislature For Part Time Job, Built Road Systems.

Raleigh.—State Highway Commissioner Frank Page, director of North Carolina $126,000,000 road program, announced his intention of taking up other work at the first of the year, at a meeting of the state highway commissioners here.

The commissioners expect to bring a measure before the next legislature seeking to make it possible for Mr. Page to continue as chairman without salary on a part time basis on which the nine district commissioners are appointed.

Asked if he would continue as chairman of the commission on this new basis, Mr. Page stated following the meeting that this would "depend on the action of the legislature and the wishes of the next governor."

On account of the diminishing program of construction on state highways, it is advisable to curtail the expenses of the organization, Mr. Page stated, and that after January 1, his services as full time commissioner would not be necessary.

Although Mr. Page refused to announce what work he would be engaged in after the first of the year, it was learned and confirmed by Col. H. F. Friess, of Winston-Salem, that negotiations for the Wachovia Bank and Trust company's branch here are under way.

The board of managers of the Raleigh branch will meet here November 8, and the general board of directors in Winston-Salem November 16, at which time the matter is expected to be definitely settled. An expansion of the Raleigh branch appears to be contemplated.

Announcement was made that on January 1, N. S. Calhoun, one of the vice presidents of the Wachovia, will be promoted and transferred from the Raleigh office to the Winston-Salem office of the bank.

David Clark Scores Conditions In Greenville Hotels While The Textile Exposition Was There

Declares Decent Women Were Insulted On Floors Of Hotel; Liquor Run Like Water.

David Clark, editor of The Textile Bulletin of Charlotte, recently attended the Southern Textile Exposition in Greenville. Mr. Clark was much disgusted with conditions in the hotel in Greenville to which he was a guest. He writes editorially in The Bulletin:

"The editor of this journal has often spent a night in a hotel, on the eve of a big football game, when it appeared that about 90 per cent of those present had imbibed freely and wanted to make all the noise possible.

"We have witnessed single nights of that kind but never until the Southern Textile exposition of last week have we witnessed an entire week of continuous drinking and carousing.

"The hotel in which we stayed in Greenville was wide open both as to liquor and women.

"While seated on Monday night in a friend's room with six other men, the door opened and two girls walked in, unexpected and uninvited, but left soon because the crowd was too large, and when we tried to sleep on Friday night we could hear the loud voices of women visitors in the next room.

"There were so many fast women in the hotel that a decent woman could seldom go from the elevator to her room without being insulted by men.

"There were so many fast women everywhere and apparently not the slightest effort to control it. On Wednesday morning a man was fast asleep on the floor in one of the halls and on Friday night in the main lobby, with ladies seated nearby, a man removed his coat and shoes and stockings and was stopped just when he arose from his seat for the purpose of removing his pants.

"We do not expect men who attend a convention or an exposition to behave as they would at home, but there is a limit to the extent to which they should go and many certainly exceeded that limit at Greenville.

"The only explanation, that we can see, is that the representatives of some firms secured considerable sums for the 'entertainment of customers' and then spent practically the entire amount on liquor and women for themselves and their associates.

"If some firms who made appropriations for 'entertainment' would call for the details of the entertainment and the names of the customers entertained we believe they would have an awakening.

"We say that the behavior of many men during the Southern Textile exposition went far beyond moderation and decency and we care not who these remarks hit."

BOTTLED BEAUTY MAKES FORTUNE

Theater Will Be Built With Money From Paris Shop.

Paris.—Beauty out of a bottle made a large fortune for Helena Rubenstein.

Now part of her profits from the beauty business are being devoted to art which is more than skin deep. She is going to build an English Little Theatre in the heart of Montparnasse, foreign artist's quarter. She calls it an investment, but she does not expect it to pay dividends for many years, she says.

Madame Rubenstein, in private life Mrs. Edward Fitus, has been investing in art movements and assisting struggling artists for years.

A development of this assistance which will materialize in finished form about the same time as the English Little Theatre, a year from now, is the erection of a studio apartment house in Montparnasse. She intends to rent a hundred apartments at minimum rates. On that investment also she expects her profits to be long in showing.

"Paris is full of talented artists who live in a pitiable fashion," Madame Rubenstein explained. "I can help them a little in a practical way. Undernourishment and discomfort do not aid art."

She is not lavishing her fortune to keep mediocre artists at work, however.

"I think mediocrity should be made to work at something useful," is her ultimatum. She applies the principle to her own life, for her two sons are to be fitted for professions and not the arts, "because I'm sure they would be bad artists," their mother says.

The Rubenstein Little Theatre in Montparnasse, which she hopes will prove the outlet in English for some of Europe's contemporary dramas, will have a seating capacity of 400. Madame Rubenstein's husband, publisher in Paris of books in English, is to be its manager. Madame herself is going to do the decorations. There are to be neutral backgrounds which will permit complete changes to be made in the walls of the interior decoration several times a year. Madame Rubenstein likes variety.

She gets variety in her busy life. She is at once a business woman, wife, mother and patroness of the arts. She rises at 5 o'clock many a morning to stir up concoctions in her experimental laboratory close to Paris. She writes personal letters before breakfast, which is a mere cup of coffee. At nine o'clock she is at her office, when she is not traveling.

But there are weeks out of every year spent in going and coming across the Atlantic. She does business in half a dozen countries and half a dozen languages.

In Paris she said she would be in London three days later, New York ten days after that, then back to London with a few hours in Paris soon afterward, and thence to Berlin.

Of homelife she gets none.

"I am a woman with many houses and no home," she explained. Some of her houses are at Greenwich, Conn., London, Paris and Vienna.

She prefers Paris to all cities, "because it is more central."

She eats lightly, and only at mid-day, drinks nothing but water and seldom smokes.

HOUSERS PLEASED WITH INSURANCE FROM GLAZE

Such was the satisfactory adjustment of the loss we suffered by the recent fire at our home that we wish to express our appreciation of the manner in which this adjustment was handled.

In less than an hour after the damage was estimated the adjustment for our loss was made. Such consideration as shown by the insurance adjuster is appreciated by us. Our home was insured in the Glens Falls company and the Virginia Fire and Marine company through Messrs. George and Frank L. Hoyle. Their prompt settlement of our loss aided us very much.

TERRIBLY ILL

Kentucky Lady's Health Was Very Bad, Had Severe Pains and Could Not Sleep.

Lexington, Ky.—Mrs. J. H. Nichols, who lives at 513 Elm Tree Lane, this city, says that Cardui has been of valuable assistance to her on two occasions, which she tells about below:

"Some few years ago, my health was bad. I had very severe pains in my sides. My nerves were in a terrible condition. I could not rest.

"The lower part of my body was very sore. I could hardly stoop over to lace my shoes. I would have to sit on a chair. I did not feel like eating, and did not sleep well at all at nights.

"A friend of mine recommended Cardui. I began taking it and saw quite an improvement in my condition. I kept it up until I felt strong and well."

About a year ago, Mrs. Nichols says, she found herself in a nervous, run-down condition. "I took Cardui again," she adds, "and it helped me wonderfully. It is a splendid tonic."

"Thousands of women have written to tell how Cardui helped them to get rid of pain and suffering. Cardui is a mild, medicinal tonic, made from purely vegetable ingredients. At all drug stores. NC-139
