

The Markets. Shelby Cotton 19 1/2 Cotton Seed, per bu. 64 1-2c

The Weather. For North Carolina, partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday. Slightly warmer in interior tonight.

King's Heart Weakens. Weakening of the heart of King George, reported by his physicians cause growing anxiety although the same report told of favorable progress in the lung infection.

Another Suit In Building Crash. Another suit has been filed in connection with the tragic building crash here on August 28, in which six were killed and the seventh victim later died.

Mayor Redd To Run For Congress Next. Charlotte. Mayor F. M. Reed, of Charlotte, will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress from the ninth congressional district in 1930.

Byrd Starts On Voyage To Pole. Wellington, N. Z., Dec. 2.—Commander Richard E. Byrd and an advance party of fifty left Dunedin for the Antarctic early today aboard the supply ship Eleanor Bolling.

Three Year Old Boy Dies In S. Shelby. Troy Ammons, three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ammons died Saturday at 3 o'clock in South Shelby. The child had been sick with influenza.

Santa Letters. Letters to Santa Claus, written by children in the thousands of homes where The Star goes each week, flooded our mails over the week-end.

With Flu In Family Star Limp Along. With two cases of influenza in The Star family, the staff is somewhat crippled.

Well Known Woman Of Oak Grove Community Passes This Morning At Age 68. Monday morning at 8 o'clock, Mrs. Mary Jane Champion of the Oak Grove community passed away at the age of 68 years after a lingering illness.

Mrs. J. R. Champion Dies At Oak Grove. Mrs. Champion is survived by her husband, one son T. A. Champion and two daughters, Mrs. Lester Canipe, Mrs. Clyde Reynolds, together with 12 grand children and five great grand children.

Children Who Write, are asked to be as brief as possible, using as few words as necessary to tell old Santa what you want him to bring. But be sure to give your name and address.

VOL. XXXV, No. 144

THE CLEVELAND STAR

SHELBY, N. C. MONDAY, DEC. 3, 1928

Published Monday, Wednesday, and Friday Afternoons

By mail, per year (in advance) $2.50 Carrier, per year (in advance) $3.00

SCHOOL BUS LAW VIOLATED NOW IN COUNTY-DRIVERS

Grigg And Drivers Want Children Who Ride Buses Better Protected.

J. H. Grigg, county superintendent of schools, and the near two score drivers of school buses are now waging a campaign in the interest of the safety of the 3,000 Cleveland county school children who ride to and from school daily in the 38 buses.

A recent meeting of the drivers of county school buses was held at the court house here, at which time the drivers consulted with each other about safety methods, all declaring that motorists in the county do not observe the state law about passing school buses when children are getting in and out.

Good Record Now. The school bus chauffeurs in this county have a good record so far, but they cannot hope to maintain their no-accident ranking unless more cooperation is given them by motorists.

In many instances when a bus is taking on or unloading scores of children, the bus drivers say that autos will whizz by without slackening their speed. Such was said to have happened in the county last week, bringing on the first accident when a child was struck, and, according to reports a suit may be filed.

Law Says Stop. A paragraph from the North Carolina laws regarding highways reads: "It is a misdemeanor for the operator of any motor vehicle to pass or attempt to pass any public school bus while it is standing upon any public road and taking on or putting off children without first bringing the motor vehicle to a FULL STOP at least 50 feet from the bus. The penalty is a fine not to exceed $50 or imprisonment not to exceed 30 days."

With the cooperation of the parents of the 3,000 children, who are deeply interested in them, Supt. Grigg and the drivers believe that a better observance of the law can be had.

Bus drivers at the meeting stated that they have noticed that when an auto from a northern or eastern state comes by one of their buses the driver always stops and moves by slowly due to the fact that the bus law is strictly enforced in their states.

Carrying 3,000 school children to school and back each day without accident is a good record for the drivers, who are complimented by Supt. Grigg, but unless motorists observe the law better than in the past the record will not likely stand, and a general appeal to the motorists is made by school officials who say the law must be observed.

MRS. J. R. CHAMPION DIES AT OAK GROVE

Well Known Woman Of Oak Grove Community Passes This Morning At Age 68.

Monday morning at 8 o'clock, Mrs. Mary Jane Champion of the Oak Grove community passed away at the age of 68 years after a lingering illness. Mrs. Champion was the wife of J. R. Champion, one of the staunch citizens of that section. She was a fine neighbor and wife, a devoted church member and will be greatly missed by her host of friends.

Mrs. Champion is survived by her husband, one son T. A. Champion and two daughters, Mrs. Lester Canipe, Mrs. Clyde Reynolds, together with 12 grand children and five great grand children. At the age of 15 years she joined Double Springs Baptist church and has since lived a consistent Christian life. Three brothers and two sisters also survive. Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 2:30 o'clock.

With Flu In Family Star Limp Along

With two cases of influenza in The Star family, the staff is somewhat crippled. Renn Drum, news editor failed to report for duty this morning and Paul Abernethy, who operates one of the type setting machines and sets advertisements, went home Saturday morning. With these two important positions unfilled, The Star is limping along under a great handicap.

Their Betrothal Now Official

No, pretty Florence Trumbull (above), daughter of Governor and Mrs. Trumbull of Connecticut, won't be a White House bride despite the many reports emanating from friends. She'll become the wife of John Coolidge (inset) in a simple ceremony in the home of her parents in Hartford. The photo above shows her as she arrived recently from Europe.

(International Newsreel)

Washington, Dec. 2.—A bristling batch of unfinished business and the regular load of routine labor awaits the reassembling tomorrow of the seventieth congress for its concluding term ending March 4.

Only the perfunctory formal opening with its roll call and immediate adjournment out of respect to members who have died during the recess is on schedule for tomorrow. Tuesday the last annual message of President Coolidge to congress will be transmitted and then the decks will be clear for the three months session.

But even before the senate swings into action again on the pending Swing-Johnson bill for construction of a dam on the Colorado river at Boulder canyon and the house takes up the first of the appropriation bills, leaders will be busy tomorrow conferring on the fate of two well known campaign issues—farm relief and tariff revision.

Several Tasks. As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

TAX VALUES FOR COUNTY INCREASE ALMOST $400,000

Total Property Valuation In Cleveland Now Goes Over 38 Million.

The total property valuation of Cleveland county now is $38,403,065, according to W. R. Newton, county tax official, at the completion of preparing the tax books for collections now being made by Sheriff Hugh Logan.

This is an increase over last year's total valuation of $36,751. Total valuation in 1927 was $38,066,314.

Two Year Club. The increase in general property valuation over a two year period totals more than one million dollars. The 1927 increase over 1926 was $816,952, which added to the $36,751 this year gives a total gain in two years of $1,153,703.

A little more than one-fourth of the near 38 and one-half million total is personal property, and it was estimated by Mr. Newton that slightly more than one-fourth of the total property value is within the corporate limits of Shelby.

Since 1920 until the present date there has been a steady decline in personal property listing with the result that due to the increase this year the total county valuation is higher than it has been since the boom period in 1920.

CONGRESS MEETS IN BRIEF SESSION

Batch Of Unfinished Business Such As Farm Relief, Tariff Revision Coming Up.

Washington, Dec. 2.—A bristling batch of unfinished business and the regular load of routine labor awaits the reassembling tomorrow of the seventieth congress for its concluding term ending March 4.

Only the perfunctory formal opening with its roll call and immediate adjournment out of respect to members who have died during the recess is on schedule for tomorrow. Tuesday the last annual message of President Coolidge to congress will be transmitted and then the decks will be clear for the three months session.

But even before the senate swings into action again on the pending Swing-Johnson bill for construction of a dam on the Colorado river at Boulder canyon and the house takes up the first of the appropriation bills, leaders will be busy tomorrow conferring on the fate of two well known campaign issues—farm relief and tariff revision.

Several Tasks. As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

Marriages Here Decline In Year

Dan Cupid had an "off year" in Cleveland county this year. Today at the office of A. F. Newton, register of deeds, was learned, that 33 or more couples were married in 1927 than in 1928 up to December 1, which is the end of the business year for Dan Cupid in North Carolina.

Up to December 1, this year, license had been issued to only 138 couples, while up to December 1, 1927, license had been issued to 171 couples. In 1926 license were sold to 135 couples.

Of the 138 couples securing license this year, 121 were white and 17 colored.

600 REGISTERED FOR ELECTION IN SHELBY DISTRICT

This Is Final Week For Registration. Sentiment Divided With Registered.

It was stated Saturday by Squire T. C. Eskridge, registrar, that more than 600 people have already registered for the special school tax election for the Shelby district to be held on December 17.

This is the final week of registration, the books closing Saturday, the 8th. In the opinion of Registrar Eskridge more than 1,000 people, perhaps 1,500, will have registered by Saturday night.

Is Opposed Now. Observation about the registration book was that of those registered so far opposition to the movement may be somewhat ahead, while others say that opinion on the issue seems pretty well divided. The former view may be correct in that opposition leaders have been active for a week in getting opponents to the measure registered while as yet there has been no visible movement on the part of those favoring the measure to get the voters registered. This movement is anticipated this week.

Meantime the election is being widely discussed over the city.

STATE WINS IN CROP JUDGING

State College Team Again Takes Honors At Chicago Show; Second Straight.

Raleigh, Dec. 2.—For the fourth time in six years and for the second consecutive year, the crop judging team from State college, entered in the inter-collegiate crops judging contest at the International Livestock and Grain exposition at Chicago, has won first honors.

According to a wire received at the college from Professor W. H. Darst, who had charge of training the men, the team entered in the contest Saturday made the highest score ever made by any team at the international show. Not only did the team win first place as a team, but E. H. Floyd of Fairmont, one of its members, made the highest individual score, J. E. Zimmerman of Lexington won second place and J. W. Davis of Harmony, fifth.

Scholarship. Professor Darst wired that the team won the trophy scholarship, which entitled a member to graduate work at some university, or college of his choosing. Eight ribbon prizes were also won. The team was first in commercial grading of farm crops; second in identification of all crops of economic importance, and second in seed judging.

Floyd was high man in crop identification in the entire contest and Zimmerman was first in commercial grading. I. A. McLean of Statesville accompanied the team, as alternate.

Nitrate Dressing. Top-dressing on an orchard with Chilean nitrate of soda at the rate of three pounds to the tree increased the growth of the limbs and made stronger fruit buds than where no nitrate was applied, reports G. E. Arney of Caldwell county.

Mr. and Mrs. Grady Lovelace returned Sunday from Raleigh where they spent Thanksgiving visiting relatives.

'Flu' Epidemic Now Spreads In County; 13 In Single Home

Many New Cases Over Week-end Twelve Sick, One Dead In Same House.

The influenza now raging over Shelby and Cleveland county threatens to become almost as serious as was the disastrous epidemic 10 years ago.

During the rainy weather late last week scores and scores of new cases developed in nearly all sections of Shelby and the county and every doctor is near exhaustion from overwork, while on Saturday one doctor—Ben Gold—was still confined to his bed from an attack.

Phifful Conditions. In some sections where large families are crowded into one home conditions are bad.

Saturday afternoon local police officers reported to J. B. Smith, county welfare officer for Cleveland, that two families in one house in South Shelby were sick with no one to wait upon them and one dead.

An investigation by the welfare officer revealed that of the 13 people in the two families one was already dead, another had pneumonia, the remaining eleven being down with the "flu."

The home was that of Enos Freeman and in the house with the five members of the Freeman family was the family of Carl Rogers, eight in number. The Rogers family, which also lives in South Shelby, was just over for a visit when all became ill with influenza and colds, and so quickly did the attack develop that no member of the Rogers family was able to return home. The child who died Saturday was the three-year-old granddaughter of Freeman. After his arrival the welfare officer secured ambulances and moved the Rogers family to their own home and secured a nurse to wait upon them.

When the home was first called to the attention of officials it was said that the twelve people were in their beds, or not able to move about much, and were without aid for a major portion of the time.

Becomes More Serious. The epidemic which is in full swing in Rutherford county, necessitating the closing of some schools there, first hit this section a week or more ago and at first the cases seemed to be of a mild variety. Later, however, scores of those suffering with influenza have become seriously sick and one or two deaths were reported. Practically every doctor in and about Shelby has been going at break-neck speed for a week, hardly taking time to eat, and with the recent damp weather the epidemic seemed to increase considerably.

Physicians already overworked urge all citizens to catch, be careful about their colds at the outset as the big danger of the epidemic at this season of the year is the likelihood of pneumonia developing.

Phonograph Record On Shelby Disaster

Blind Man Writes Poem In Disaster And Company Sets Its To Music.

It is to be supposed you have heard it—meaning exactly the record entitled "The Shelby Disaster." Pendleton reports they got a hundred in Saturday morning, and when the smoke of the business of the day cleared away Saturday night, there was not one left—no even one.

Which is to say they went like hot cakes. The record tells the story, set to music, of the collapse of the McKnight building. Many have wondered how it happened that the record makers got the dope; how the accident happened to be recorded.

Here's the story as told to The Star: A blind man in South Carolina his heart touched by the sentiment of the sad event wrote a poem about it. The poem found its way to Shelby. Among others, Roy McBrayer got a copy. He took it to O. A. Pendleton, son of W. A., to read. Otis read it, and got an idea. His idea was to have it recorded. He sent it to Atlanta, and in two days got it back, all filled up with music.

He got the first batch Saturday morning, with the result you have read. He says he is going to sell four thousand.

One County Couple Married In Gaffney

Only one Cleveland county couple secured marriage license in Gaffney Thanksgiving day, according to the Gaffney Ledger.

The couple was listed as follows: Talmadge McBride Bridges and Laule McCurry, both of Kings Mountain.

Left Two Shirt Studs

Stubborn loyalty of a son for his mother cost Allan A. Ryan (above) more than $50,000,000, it became known when will of late Thomas Fortune Ryan was filed for probate. After disposing of estate totaling roughly $250,000,000, the will adds: "I give and bequeath my white pearl shirt studs to my son, Allan A. Ryan."

(International Newsreel)

Attorney Chas. A. Burrus, who is temporarily in charge of arranging the Cleveland county special to Raleigh for Governor-elect O. Max Gardner's inauguration in January, is of the opinion that the best method of transportation for those who go is by train.

For several weeks now there have been indefinite plans for a motorcade to accompany Mr. Gardner down for his inauguration, but last week Seaboard railway officials announced that they would run a special train to Raleigh from Shelby if 125 passengers could be secured. As yet, nothing has been done about either matter with opinion as to how the majority wish to go still being somewhat divided.

"Since it may be bad weather in January and since considerable time can be saved by the train trip I believe that would be the best way for us to get our crowd of home folks down to the governor's inauguration," Mr. Burrus declared.

He pointed out that those who go on the special train could leave here about 8 in the evening on the day before, reach Raleigh during the night where they will be permitted to remain in their berths until morning, thus saving hotel cost for the night. The train, he added, will leave Raleigh coming back at midnight following the inauguration ceremonies and will get local people back home the next day before noon. This would mean that the entire affair would take those attending the inauguration out of the county only one day and two nights. Furthermore, Mr. Burrus stated that on such occasions the Raleigh hotels would likely be filled and rooms could not be secured for those who go down by motor unless application be made in advance. With these going by train they are able to spend both nights in their berths. The total cost would not be any more than the motor trip and hotel bills, if that much.

Mr. and Mrs. Grady Lovelace returned Sunday from Raleigh where they spent Thanksgiving visiting relatives.

CONGRESS MEETS IN BRIEF SESSION

Batch Of Unfinished Business Such As Farm Relief, Tariff Revision Coming Up.

Washington, Dec. 2.—A bristling batch of unfinished business and the regular load of routine labor awaits the reassembling tomorrow of the seventieth congress for its concluding term ending March 4.

Only the perfunctory formal opening with its roll call and immediate adjournment out of respect to members who have died during the recess is on schedule for tomorrow. Tuesday the last annual message of President Coolidge to congress will be transmitted and then the decks will be clear for the three months session.

But even before the senate swings into action again on the pending Swing-Johnson bill for construction of a dam on the Colorado river at Boulder canyon and the house takes up the first of the appropriation bills, leaders will be busy tomorrow conferring on the fate of two well known campaign issues—farm relief and tariff revision.

Several Tasks. As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to find a place for action at this session on a farm relief marketing bill designed to meet the wishes of President Coolidge who last session vetoed the McNary-Haugen measure.

As soon as the house concludes its opening meeting, the Republican members of the ways and means committee will meet to determine if they shall undertake upward revision of the tariff promised by their party heads in the campaign, and, if so, when.

Leaders of both the senate and house also are scanning their calendars to