A Thought! Typewriter! And One Bottle Of Scotch---Then!!

To the Editor:

You seem to take a good deal of delight in telling other people how to live and perhaps that is your business, but it seems to me that you exceed your duty when you arrogate to yourself the right to inform all of those who may happen to enjoy an occasional drink of "Scotch" on occasions.

I have been presented a fine bottle of Scotch whiskey for Christmas and it is before me as I sit at my typewriter and indite this letter to you. It bears the label of Sandy MacDonald—a good, fair, well-bodied liquor which I am assured was bought before the war and has been in my friend's cellar ever since. What right has any form of Law to make me a criminal if I partake of this gift as it was intended that I do by the giver.

I claim that any such law is an invasion of my personal liberty. I notice that you have referred often in your excellent column to the so-called Bill of Rights which secures to all men and women certain inalienable rights to their personal liberty, which, as you say, are not inconsistent with the rights of others. How do you reconcile your statements?

I have just tasted of this bottle of liquor, I will confide to you, and I cannot see where or how I am invading the rights of any other person on earth. I find it excellent. It warms my stomach; it inspires my thought; I cannot feel, Mr. Editor, that I have wronged the community or added to the lawlessness of the general society in so doing. It makes me tired to be classed as a criminal for any such occasion, and I notify you that before long, there will be a revolt against the sort of stuff that you are writing.

Just to show my independence of such truck as you are writing, I have taken another drink of the aforesaid most jubilant Sandy MacDonald, and I will say to you that it is about as smote a drink as a Criminal ever put into his system. The second drink, which I shall soon follow by a third, makes me more certain that those who feel their systems require stimulant, should band together; organize, and start a campaign to floor this Volstead business if it can be done.

Now, Mr. Editor, I am no bum and you can't make me a bum. I like a little drink now and then and I have taken a third or maybe it is a fourth and I am more than ever convinced that any man that doesn't is a big idiot. You say that this evasion of the law is producing a state of affairs in our Great and Glorious Country. You are wrong. This country is just as good as it ever was and was a great deal better country and I will leave it to you if it wasn't when we had free rum.

I want to say to you that this Scotch is all right. A lot of it wouldn't do us harm. When we need stimulant we need it. My grandfather was brought up on rum. They had it in the house all the time. They drank it freely and even the minstrel drank it when he came to our house. It's a pretty kind of a country when a grandson is better than his grandfather. I can drink this sort of Scotch all day and not be no worse a citizen than I was before. I could drink the whole quart and need never quiber an etelash.

Drunkenness Shows An Increase In U. S.

Far More Intoxications Now Than In 1920. New York Gain Is Not High.

New York—A survey by the Moderation league, made public, says that police records in 388 cities show that arrests for intoxication rose from 235,612 in 1920 to 557,369 in 1927.

The fourth annual report of the league, which has for its announced aim "the restoration of temperance," declares that the figures have brought the organization to the conclusion that "the Volstead act has failed utterly to do what it was intended to do, namely, promote temperance and sobriety."

Tables of total arrests by years in the 388 cities as compiled in the report indicate a decline in arrests for drunkenness beginning in 1918 when the figure at 530,367, to 235,612 in 1920, the year national prohibition went into effect. An exception in the decline is noted in

Flu-Grip Checked at the start

RUB your chest with Vicks before your little cold gets BIG. Vicks acts two ways at once to check the cold and prevent complications: (1) It is vaporized by the heat of the body and inhaled for hours direct to the inflamed air-passages; (2) It acts through the skin like an old-fashioned poultice, "drawing out" the tightness and pain.

1916 with 559,364 arrests, which is explained in the league report as the result of the pre-war prosperity boom.

Beginning with 1921 the table shows rapid annual increases in the number of arrests from 319,528 to 557,369. The report declares that a marked increase in drinking by minors has been noted throughout the period.

The increase in arrests for intoxication in New York City, the report says, has been at a slower rate than in other centers from which figures were drawn. Birmingham, Ala., and Atlanta, Ga., both show increases of 500 per cent for the period.

The figures, the report goes on, indicates a greater jump in states which were dry before national prohibition than in the so-called wet states. The police reports from 268 cities where liquor was sold legally prior to 1920 gave 424,295 arrests in 1914 as against 423,042 in 1927.

In 120 cities in states that had dry laws before the passage of the 18th amendment the league says the figures show an increase from 106,072 in 1914 to 134,327 in 1927.

Mr. Fel Babington has returned home after an extended business and pleasure trip through the states of the far west, including a visit to the coast, and much intermediate territory.
