Forsyth's Roads.

From The Twin-City Sentinel. With the addition of thirty miles of new roads during 1928 Forsyth county now has 563.7 miles of all weather roads, according to the annual report of C. M. Miller, engineer for the county highway commission. The soil roads total 386.7 miles. A significant thing about the annual report by Mr Miller was contained in the assertion that the county forces did enough work for the state in clearing the right of way for the Stokesdale road to receive $16,663. With that amount the county was enabled to organize a new camp and to purchase additional mules and equipment.

Copeland's Health Talk

Milk Best Of All Foods

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

(United States Senator and Former Health Commissioner of New York.) By all odds the best food for persons of all ages is good, sweet milk. Nature has been kind indeed to make this substance available for the use of the human family.

As cities have grown and suburban life has driven families into the country, the dairy farms, many of them at least, are far removed from the consumers. Modern conditions, then, have made it necessary to care for milk more attentively than was the case when every family had its own cow.

I smile as I write, thinking about conditions in the town where I lived as a boy. In that day everybody buy a cow. The "commons" and near-by pastures were filled with animals belonging to the neighbors. It was the daily task of almost every boy in the community, and an occasional girl, too, to take the cow to and from the pasture.

I recall the "cow-stable," long since torn down to make a place for raspberry bushes. That was the scene of my own daily discontent.

DR. COPELAND.

How different it is today! Now the scientifically conducted associations and dairy companies are delivering milk to every family in the great cities as well as the smaller ones. A bottle of the purest and best of milk is to be found on the doorstep every morning. Neither rain, nor snow, nor heat, nor gloom of night interferes with these regular deliveries.

There are many elements entering into the production and distribution of good milk. There are many things that must be guarded against in order to have this chief food of man palatable and wholesome. Unless it is normal in flavor and odor it would not be acceptable.

The first consideration is its sweetness. To begin with, clean receptacles are essential. But these are not sufficient. The souring process would take place anyway. To prevent this, pasteurization is practiced. The souring germs, as well as the germs of disease, are destroyed by this treatment. But there are other matters of importance. The wrong feed stuffs, or feeding the cows at the wrong time, may result in objectionable flavor or odor. It is important to feed the cattle after milking, if this danger is to be avoided. Certain weeds, as well as the regular feeds, may damage the milk. Garlic-infected pastures, for instance, impair the flavor of the milk.

Milk is easily tainted by contact with tainted air. Unless the barn is sweet and clean and unless the milk is kept cool in a cool place, there will be trouble. The mixture of air with the milk purifies the fluid. If the dairyman uses one of the modern methods for doing this, and then submits the milk immediately to the cooling process, he has done his part.

In every home provision should be made for proper care of the household supply. Without such care the most precious of foods will be destroyed. On the contrary, proper attention to the protection of the milk will render it the palatable, body building substance Nature intended it to be. I hope to live to see a quart of milk per person the daily ration of every man, woman and child in North America. I can think of no one thing that could be better for humanity than the practice of taking a quart of milk every day.

Answers To Health Queries. N. S. Q.—What should a girl of 15, 5 ft. 2 1/2 ins. tall, weigh? Also a woman of 41, 5 ft. 1 in. tall? A.—They should weigh respectively 115 and 132 pounds.

B. S. Q.—Would eating five bananas daily be responsible for pimples? I am 19 years of age. A.—Yes, probably too rich for your system. One or two a day should be sufficient.

VANDEBURG HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

True Bills Returning Charging Murder of Family And Burning Home.

Gastonia, Jan. 16.—Jacob Vandenburg, 17, was charged with murder and arson today in indictments returned by the Gaston county grand jury in connection with the death of five members of his family and the burning of their home December 28.

The true bill against the youth contained five counts and named his father, J. W. Vandenburg, his mother, two sisters, Pauline Vandenburg and Louise Vandenburg and his brother, Robert Vandenburg, as the persons it is alleged he murdered.

A special term of court will probably be requested by Solicitor John G. Carpenter to try young Vandenburg. It is believed that after a conference with defense counsel he will ask Gov. O. Max Gardner to order a special term, as the next regular session at which the case could be tried in Gaston county will not be held until April.

The indictment containing the five counts of murder was returned at 11:40 this morning, shortly after the grand jury had completed hearing witnesses. The arson true bill was returned late this afternoon, after further study of the evidence.

Jacob, the state contends, killed the five members of his family, evidence having been introduced to show the deed was done with an axe and then burned with his father's farm home in an effort to erase evidence of the crime.

WANTS 8 MONTHS SCHOOL IN STATE

Appeals For Eight Months Term For All School Children In State Of N. C.

Editor Star:

What I regard as pure and unadulterated Democracy is a freedom of thought and expression. Every man or woman has the inherent right to study problems and give them vocal or written expression. A newspaper that fails to allow space for discussion of social, civil and political questions has no claims on real and sublimated Democracy.

The legislature is in session, and the minds of people are agitated as to wisdom of having a school of eight months duration for every normal child in North Carolina. No child is responsible for its existence; but as he was called into being, the parents and the state owe that child a duty as to training his hand, heart, and head for use and efficiency. Every mortal has a spark of the divine essence; but is born more helpless and dependent than inferior animals, showing that the Providence of God intended human beings to be inter-dependent upon each other and to practice co-operation. To sum up this advancement, the general name of education applies. Books and schools are not the only means of improving the mind; but are a very efficient source of knowledge. Real genius is a precedent maker and cannot be restrained by unfavorable environment. We see Elihu Burritt, with no school advantages, studying at his forge, becoming a renowned scholar and contributing a book on science that was a blessing to the world. We see Andrew Jackson, "the widow's son," rising by his own efforts to eminence as a soldier and a statesman. We see Lincoln, the brown-hand, and the same as to James A. Garfield, Andrew Johnson and other bright stars in the constellations of national glory. But these men were giants, and very few of the sons and daughters of men are blessed with their native gifts of brilliancy, fortitude and determination.

For the dazzling genius and for the mediocre we must apply different rules. Thousands of men raised tobacco for the market; but to Washington, Buck and Ben Duke was revealed the secret of amassing stupendous wealth and being a blessing to mankind in philanthropy and princely benefactions. It will be noted that their most magnificent gifts were to churches, colleges, universities; and schools of lower degree.

We are confronted with the problem of providing a school of eight months for every normal child in our favored domain. We claim that in mental endowment and energy, the child of North Carolina claims equality with any mortal in Christendom. Generally, they are a noble strain of Caucasian lineage, and are preeminently foresighted and liberty-loving. They are descended from the bold barons that forced the arbitrary King John to sign the Magna Carta at Runnymede; and their sires with rifle, axe and Bible, conquered the wilderness for the all-conquering Anglo-Saxon race. Wise men have ever seen the blessings entailed by education, and their clamor for longer terms of school, consolidation of districts, better equipped teachers and school buildings has risen upon the hills and valleys of our commonwealth like the wail of Jghovah.

In 1882 I came here, and began my experience as a teacher in common schools of North Carolina. Terms lasted from 3 to 4 months, temples of knowledge were wretched hovels in many instances, educational helps were beech limbs, harness-tugs and barrel staves. Corn produced upon an average 11 bushels to the acre, and cotton required three acres to produce a bale. Roads were execrable, and it required an expert in profanity and the use of whang-leather to cause a horse to pull 600 pounds on a tar-axe wagon. By the eloquence of Aycock, McIver and others we had a term of four months; but the reactionary howled like the whang-doodle mourning for his first born. When people clamored for six months, the same crowd bewailed the woes of unjust taxes; but we have among best roads in the world, the country is dotted with painted framed and brick houses, cars are used for transportation; more money in banks than ever; while there are at least five banks to where one existed before. Radio service, phones, libraries, electric lights abound in country homes; but still the wail of the whang-doodle and the time server abideth in the land. If people can dress well, make a bale of cotton to the acre, provide the means of culture and luxury; what prevents them from having a length of school commensurate with those enjoyed by other states?

Right here, permit me to disavow a selfish motive. My health is shattered and I am not teaching. None of my children are likely to be beneficiaries of the Cleveland county schools; for all have finished

L SMITH MAKES PLEA TO MEMBERS DEMOCRATIC PARTY

Thinks Rank and File Should Pay Off Debt. Keep Power From Few.

New York, Jan. 16.—Alfred E. Smith, recent Democratic presidential candidate and former governor of New York, appealed to the rank and file of the Democratic party by radio tonight to help raise the $1,500,000 deficit that stands as an aftermath of "the copper warriors" defeat. He spoke over a coast-to-coast hookup of 30 stations under the auspices of the national committee.

Mr. Smith announced that his contributions would be the gift to the Democratic committee of his campaign speeches, for which he said he had several offers from publishers. A bound copy of the speeches, illustrated with photographs taken on his campaign tours and published by the national committee with no profit for the former governor, will be sent to each contributor who sends in $2 or more.

In making his appeal for funds, the former governor seconded recent assertions of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt that the Democratic party needed more consistent national publicity between campaigns.

Problem To Be Met. "Immediately following every national election," he said, "there is always apparent a general lack of interest in the welfare of our party. It has been the habit of the Democratic party to function only six months in every four years. This is demonstrated by the fact that no attempt was made to liquidate the deficit left from the national campaign of 1924 until the spring of 1928. When the Democratic party finds itself facing a national convention, it begins to shop around the country for the place likely to put up the most money towards the liquidation of the deficit."

"More than that, it has been the high school course and three have had collegiate training. My school tax is $7 higher than last year for Polkville high school; and I am an invalid unable to earn money. But, as wealthier men than I paid a school tax to help educate my children; I am no evangel of reciprocity."
