

Nails In Head.

London.—The amazing case of a woman who lived after hammering nails into her brain is reported in the British Medical Journal.

Joseph J. Levin, honorary surgeon at the Johannesburg General hospital, says: "A married European woman, aged 27, was admitted to the hospital with the head of a nail visible in the right temporal region of the scalp."

She was conscious, though dazed, and said that she had driven a nail in herself with the back of a chopper. The nail was removed and was found to be three inches in length.

The wound was cleaned with ether, painted with iodine, sealed with a collodion dressing and healing.

A few months later the woman was again admitted to the hospital. To the doctor's astonishment, on examination he found the head of a nail half an inch to the middle line of the scalp.

An X-ray photograph showed a long nail right through the brain. The woman was conscious and there were no signs of paralysis. She stated that she had driven the nail into her head with the back of a chopper, and asked him to remove the nail, as it was painful.

The surgeon, under anaesthesia removed the nail and a button of the skull round it. The nail proved to be four inches long, and, physically, the woman recovered.

PERSON ADDS AMENDMENTS TO HIS WHISKEY BILL

Raleigh, Jan. 22.—Colonel W. M. Person, senator from Franklin, tonight made public several amendments he had planned for his drug store liquor bill and which, he said, had received the endorsement of the senate committee on health.

One of his amendments provide that before a prescription is filled for liquor it shall be examined and approved by a regularly licensed physician nominated by the county medical society and appointed by the state health officer.

Such a health officer must keep a record for the state board of all prescriptions filled and approved by this amendment.

The health officer must make, in addition, a monthly report of all liquor sold for medical purposes. In quarterly intervals the state board of health must publish in its periodicals the amount of liquor sold this way and other information.

ASK ASSEMBLY TO LEGALIZE WHISKEY

Lexington, Jan. 24.—The Davidson County Medical society, at a meeting here last night, unanimously adopted a resolution recommending to the legislature that it pass a bill to legalize the sale of whiskey in North Carolina on physicians' prescription. The 20 members of the society were either present to vote or voted by proxy.

(Special to The Star) Boiling Springs, Jan. 23.—In a game here last night the Spindale Athletic club defeated the Boiling Springs quintet 35 to 29. Although the Boiling Springs boys were outclassed they showed their ability in passing and shooting throughout the game.

Several of the visiting boys did spectacular work. The line-up follows: B. S. Jr. College Spindale Moore (6) F. Harding (14) Haynes (2) F. Sherrill (5) McDonald (6) C. Turner (7) Coble G. Williams (4) McEntire G. Perry (5) Subs. Champion (4) for Moore, Epps for Haynes.

Blanton Mistaken
On Schools, Says

Mr. Editor: Upon investigation I find that I was mistaken in one statement I made in the last issue of The Star. The donations made by the mills to the South Shelby school were made before the local tax was levied. The mills used to extend the school beyond the six months term each year. The mills did provide the buildings for the school without expense to the school and there was a deficit of $1,500.00 when the Shelby school board took over the schools, which had accumulated from year to year.

Respectfully,
HERBERT BLANTON.Raleigh Man Wants
Gardner To Dodge
"Swell Head" Disease

To the Editor of The Star: Our new Governor has brought to his job the poise of the experienced executive, the sagacity and discretion of the finished politician and the wisdom of the statesman. His independence and deliberation in action is a delight to his friends and the despair of those seeking favors at his hands.

The gubernatorial bridegroom is still riding the crest of the wave of popularity, whether this will continue after he has disposed of the furnished pack of patronage seekers now yelping at his heels remains to be seen. If he is at all conscious of the terrible anguish of this crowd he has shown no sign. He goes serenely along his way apparently enjoying his daily contact with his Raleigh friends and neighbors and living up to his reputation as the genial Shelby gentleman.

He has proved himself to be a very good listener but his actions subsequently have not indicated his belief in or acceptance of the advice he has been overwhelmed with since taking office. Not even Frank Page, who has developed one of the most tremendous superiority complexes, by reason of the adulation and flattery heaped upon him the past ten years, and who honestly believes he is the first cousin to God Almighty, could convince Max that the great highway department could run itself without a head.

The governor's inaugural address was chock full of good recommendations and it was well received by the legislators and the people at large. If he succeeds in translating his wise recommendations into laws that do not contain many loopholes his success as governor will be of greater magnitude than any of his immediate predecessors has been.

No ruler ever came into his kingdom with the affectionate sympathy and regard of a greater number of his subjects than Max Gardner. The people of North Carolina irrespective of party wish him well and will uphold him loyally as long as he remains true to the ideals he has always championed.

It would be a good plan if he would go over to the state laboratory and have Dr. Shore vaccinate him against that dread malady, known as exaggerated ego and swelled head, his two immediate predecessors were so terribly afflicted with before he is exposed to the germ of this disease. The wolves of privilege are on his track and if he escapes them it will not be their fault.

Very truly yours,
JAMES H. HOLLOWAY,
330 North Person Street,
Raleigh, N. C.

At The Theatres

"The Road to Ruin," a propaganda picture, designed to let in moral light on the evils of the current jazz age, is on for another day at the Webb, concluding the two day bill tonight. It is being shown to adults only. It is an especially made film.

Tomorrow Bill Cody tops the bill in a fast action picture—"The Price of Fear." Also "The Wells" will appear in a bill thrill feature. A Pathe comedy and the popular Fables, with chapter No. 2, "The Scarlet Arrow" are also to be featured. It is an especially big and interesting program.

Announcement is made in the Princess advertisement today that the Lyric has been remodeled to take care of all road attractions. The playhouse has been completely renovated and modernized, and it will henceforth be the home, the brains announce, of all vaudeville attractions. Meantime the Princess will continue to be reserved for pictures only. "Blindfold" is the Princess attraction again today—a big Fox sensational feature which got a fine reception from a big house last night.

Number On Baseball
Uniforms Of Yanks

New York World. Babe Ruth and the other Yankee baseball players will wear numbers on their uniforms next season.

This innovation was decided upon yesterday by Col. Jacob Ruppert, President, and Edward S. Barrow, business manager of the world's champions. The "Home-Run King" will be No. 3.

Now that the Yankees have gone in for numbering their players, other big league clubs probably will follow suit, college and professional football players have been numbered for years and so have professional hockey players.

However, the experiment of numbering baseball players will not be new. Five years ago Branch Rickey, at that time manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, had numbers sewn on the sleeves of his players' uniforms. The figures were small and on the gray traveling uniforms did not stand out clearly. Rickey discarded the numbers after two years' trial. The Yankees will have bigger numbers than the Cardinals wore.
