DENONCES CRAZE FOR JAZZY MUSIC

Noted British Musician Urges Return To Old Masters.

Chapel Hill.—You have great work to do in music in this country," an Englishman told an American audience in a lecture at the university on musical history. "You've got to raise your standards of musical taste all the way through. It is not enough to have musical power. You must have taste.

"You are crazed for modern music. Get back to the classics. Know your Bach, your Handel, your Beethoven, your Mozart, your Haydn, and all the other masters. Get a foundation to understand music, and then it will be a great message to you."

The Englishman who made these pertinent observations had been in this country three weeks.

He was no less personage than Sir Ernest Fowles, fellow of the Royal Academy of Musicians and one of Britain's most outstanding musicians.

He spoke under the auspices of the student entertainment committee on "A Bird's-Eye View of Musical History" and at once delighted and charmed a large audience of students, faculty members and townspeople.

Playing selections from time to time to illustrate his lecture, Mr. Fowles took up musical history with the Stone Age and traced it down to present times.

Maj. Chester P. Mills promptly received the $25,000 check for his prize-winning solution. At a late hour last night, however, bootlegging had received no check whatever.—The New Yorker.

MODERN SKIRTS IN STYLE OF JUNGLE

Designer, Back From Tour, Says Styles Will Be Exotic.

New York.—Jungles and harems will furnish the chief inspiration for spring fashions, and the keynote of new frocks will be exoticism and brevity, Miss Ethel Traphagen, designer, said, adding the remark: "The briefer they are the better I like them!" according to the Brooklyn Eagle.

Miss Traphagen, who conducted a school in cooperation with the clothing trades under the auspices of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, in addition to her evening classes at the People's Institute at Cooper Union, has just returned from a seven months tour that took her from jungle huts to the sultans' harems in South Africa in search of inspiration for chic costumes this coming season.

She found it, and predicts that everything from the necklace of Nairohian women that furnish charm but no warmth, to the veils of Arab women that furnish warmth but no charm, will be seen in adapted versions on Fifth and Park avenues this season. More than that, they may even be seen on Forty-second street and on Broadway. Miss Traphagen predicted, for, she insists, it's the shop girls who are really abreast of the mode these days.

"The new mode will mingle the primitive and the Oriental," Miss Traphagen said. "Evening gowns will be modeled on the alluring robes of the Kikuyu women of British East Africa, though the designers will not use the cowhide treated with castor oil and red mud that the native women use for frocks."

Jewelry, particularly for sports wear, will be a combination of primitive baling wire coils and the heavily carved jewelry of the South African Arabs. Heavy brass coils worn by the native women around their shins may be adapted to our mode. Belts will be popular, wide and heavily beaded after the fashion of best-belted warriors of Zanzibar and earrings may assume the proportions of cold cream jars.

Skirts will be modeled after those of the jungle warriors, some of whom wear a ruffe attached to their ornate belts, while others fasten two long and sweeping "fish-tails" of leather over either hip, bringing them to the overlapping point in front and back.

Extra Bales - EXTRA DOLLARS

Start now to make them

It is the extra yield per acre that makes real cotton profit.

Say you made one-third bale per acre last year. Feed your next crop plenty of Chilean Nitrate of Soda and you ought to at least double your yield, for Chilean Nitrate sets a larger crop, then helps it through to early maturity. Stronger plants. Better cotton too. More strength to fight bad weather and early bolls to beat the weevil.

L. D. Moseley of Edgewood Farms, Simpson, N. C., has had good results year after year with Chilean Nitrate of Soda. On one crop he made 96 bales on 75 acres. On another crop he made 100 bales on 100 acres. On both of these profitable crops he used Chilean Nitrate of Soda liberally.

Chilean Nitrate is the old, original "Soda," the natural product—not synthetic. Used profitably for over 50 years. Last year every cotton champion used it to make his winning crop. Place your order now for all the Chilean Nitrate you need and be sure of extra bales from your new crop.
