JOHNSTON AVERY WRITES an editorial in his Hickory Record defending the wearing of spats by men—contending that spats are not effeminate and dandified, but common-sense wearing material.

A JOKE RELATED RECENTLY by Clyde R. Hoey indicates why he is such a good lawyer and can discover loopholes for clients when there doesn't seem to be either a loop or a hole about.

As Mr. Hoey tells it a certain minister asked once if the Bible had anything to say about a man having more than one woman friend, or more than one wife at a time.

"Yes," replied the minister. "The Bible does say such. Recall that line saying 'Man cannot serve two masters at the same time?'"

MAYOR DORSEY AND SOLICITOR P. Cleveland Gardner of recent weeks have been receiving quite a bit of anonymous or unsigned mail, according to the news columns, and what's more they are more or less troubled by such.

We can comprehend somewhat their worries. What man in recalling his boyhood does not remember little unsigned verses he found on his school desk reading somewhat like this:

"Roses are red, Violets are blue, Sugar is sweet, And so are you."

Down below the verse would be several cross marks, denoting, oh, yes—kisses. Then would come a period devoted to gazing calf-like around the schoolroom wondering just which little pig-tail wearer wrote it, your heart going thump-thump thump meantime.

Since that time, however, very few of us grown-ups have received such letters. Just like a lot of men can recall that they were kissed frequently as babies because they were such "cute little things," but haven't been considered overly cute since babyhood.

Which should not be construed to mean that we would insinuate that any of the unsigned letters received by the mayor and solicitor are love missiles. Still it must be great to hold public office and be the recipient of letters which at the least remind of pleasant by-gone days. But there are draw-backs even to the heights of fame. Some of the anonymous letters right often refer to the recipient as "you big hunk o' cheese," or something to that effect.

WE SEE BY AN "AD" IN THE Star that they're going to have a "Trade Day" up to Casar Saturday. If whoever borrowed that knife with corkscrew attached, when Ebeltoft gave us for a Christmas present a year or two back, would return it we may decide to go up and "throw knives" with some of the boys.

"BUGS" BAER, NEW YORK'S best known wisecracker and wit asked recently as to the secret of his success declared that wisecracking was more or less a natural gift, so to speak. A fellow just can't sit down, he said, and decide to think up a good wisecrack and do it successfully, for wisecracks must be natural.

Somehow, after hearing Cameron Putnam, Bass Suttle, Roy Newman, and George Wray spring their jokes, we're inclined to agree with "Bugs." More good wisecracks just slip out of those fellows mentioned above than an entire faculty of college professors could think up in six months of serious study.
