

Mexican Revolt Bears Earmarks Of Gold Brad And Brass Origin

Military Element Wants Presidency Regardless Of People's Welfare

El Paso, Texas.—Being here with a Mexican revolt in progress is even better than occupying a ringside seat at a circus. One gets not only a closeup of the performance from in front but a lot of low-down as to what is going on backstage—some of it pretty low, writes M. E. Tracy in the New York Telegram.

Locally, the situation is one of rumor and guesswork, with comparatively unimportant names and places claiming the spotlight. Such and such a town has been captured or gone over to the rebels, one learns; such and such a general has revolted; such and such a garrison remains loyal; such and such an emissary is trying to "negotiate" with such and such a commander.

The governor of Chihuahua calls up long distance telephone to say that he has decided to join the rebellion; the commandant at Juarez calls up to say that he will stick by Portes Gil; some one else calls up to say that revolutionary agents are in town, and so it goes.

Not A Popular Uprising. As the atmosphere clears one is able to get something of a line on this latest and most unexpected upheaval.

In the first place, it is not a popular uprising in any sense of the word, but a military revolt. Civilians have had no hand in it. It was obviously conceived within the army, and just as obviously has for its aim the establishment of an administration at Mexico City which the army can control.

The secrecy with which it was planned, the precision with which it has moved and, above all else, the peculiar kind of strategy it is pursuing, identify this revolt as born of gold brad and brass buttons.

Thus far no one has called for rebellion except officers of the regular army, and few have rallied to the call except regularly enlisted troops.

It is quite commonly believed that the revolutionary leaders would restore the church and throttle or organize labor if victorious, but they would do this to gain popular favor rather than as a well considered policy.

What Is Back Of Commotion. Whatever else may be thought of it, General Jesus M. Aguirre's statement, as given to the United Press, leaves little doubt as to what is really back of the commotion.

"The reason for it," he says, "are the open and insulting methods by which Plutarco Elias Calles and Emilio Portes Gil are trying to impose Pascual Ortiz Rubio on the people as president."

In this connection it will be remembered that Portes Gil is serving as an interim president in place of General Alvaro Obregon, who was assassinated after being elected, and that he was chosen to act as such by the Mexican congress.

Military Rule Is Objective. It also will be remembered that a convention of the revolutionary party was recently held for the purpose of nominating a presidential candidate, that Rubio and Aaron Scaenz were the chief contenders, and that Scaenz bolted because, as he claimed, delegates favoring his opponent had been illegally enrolled.

Last November, and while Calles was still president, so the story goes, seven generals called on him with the demand that he have Perez Trevino, also a general, named as his successor.

Of those seven generals at least five are taking prominent part in the rebellion, while one, Essobar, is its accepted chief.

Rubio, whom Aguirre says the rebellion is designed to prevent from becoming president, is an engineer, a former ambassador to Germany and Brazil, and a recognized leader of the Liberal party, but not a military man.

Putting two and two together, the conclusion seems inescapable that this is not only a military revolt but one which has military rule for its immediate objective.

U. S. Opposed Army Rule. One naturally recalls the unhappy fate of Victoriano Huerta, whom the late President Wilson drove from power on the ground that he represented military rule, and that the United States would not stand for military rule in Mexico.

Was Wilson right? For one I have never thought so. I have never considered it this government's business, or duty, to boss Mexican politics.

But the present situation involves more than that. After Wilson and Huerta came Coolidge and Calles, with the development of a policy intended to assist the regularly constituted government of Mexico and discourage revolution.

Principles Deserve Consideration. Now as between a military faction which goes forth to dominate politics by force of arms and a provisional president elected by congress according to provisions of the constitution, which comes nearer the type of government we favor?

Putting that aside, which promises more for the liberal progressive movement in Mexico? The fact that this revolt has assumed formidable proportions should have little to do with our attitude. Principles deserve consideration as well as strength.

Political Gratitude, Hoover Brand. (Philadelphia Record.) The south gave up its solidarity, and plumped for Hoover. The south figured its desertion of the old standards honored by its people would be appreciated and rewarded.

Cabinet appointments were made and published. The south was conspicuous by its absence from the list. Texas thought interior would go to Cato Sells. It went a long way past him.

Now the south is honored by having Mr. Jahncke, of New Orleans, named to the navy department, and Mr. Hurley, of Oklahoma, (near-south) to the war department.

As assistants to secretaries from the Middle West and Massachusetts, Good and Adams. Has the south bartered its birthright for a mess of pottage that is not to be delivered? The marked disproportion between the voting and the patronage talk away down south in Dixie.

Prosperity or poverty? Ask the southern polls.

Another Endurance Record By Woman

Lands On Airport At Oakland, After Flying 22 Hours, Four Minutes.

Oakland, Calif., March 17.—A new endurance flight record for women was set here Sunday when Louise McPhetridge landed at the Oakland airport from a continuous flight of 22 hours and four minutes. The gasoline supply of 196 gallons was exhausted.

The aviatrix took off at 3:51 p. m. Saturday. She made a perfect landing and taxied to the hangar where Oakland chapter A. A. A. were waiting to certify the landing time as 1:54:47 p. m. Her first words after emerging from the cockpit were: "Gosh, I'm tired. Rest will sure feel good."

"Has someone a cigarette," was the reply given when asked if she wanted anything.

The flyer's full name is Mrs. Louise McPhetridge Thaden, but she is known to the flying world under her maiden name.

Borah Foresees End Of Under-Cover Men

Washington.—Severely condemning the use of "under cover" agents in the federal penitentiaries, Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, in a statement predicted that the new attorney general, William D. Mitchell, would discontinue the practice.

This confidence in the course to be pursued by Mr. Mitchell was expressed by the senator after a conference with the attorney general this week. Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, was not so ready to give up the system.

Mrs. Willebrandt, who is in charge of the administration of the prisons, declared that "the system means the only way at present to find the facts necessary to keep conditions wholesome in the penitentiaries." She believed the "under cover" system had been "fairly and equitably applied."

She is not responsible, she said, for institution of the practice. It was instituted by former Attorney General Sargent.

The present row was stirred up when John Snook of the Atlanta penitentiary refused to cooperate with the department in the use of "under cover" agents in his institution. His resignation within 30 days was asked for on March 5 but it was declared at the department that this was not the only complaint against Snook's administrative ability.

MR. BRIMLEY, HERE'S PROOF OF SNAKE STORY

Goldsboro.—"This here Mr. Brimley of Raleigh can say that no naturalist ever saw little snakes run into the mouth of another snake if he wants to," remarked Jim Powell to the Goldsboro News reporter. "But I know better. I remember when I was working at the Wayne Agricultural works, Cleve Derr had gone down to feed the horses, and he came back telling about hearing a hissing noise, like he said he looked down—he's just turned over a bale of hay—and there was a large snake and a great bunch of little ones were squirming into her mouth. I did not believe him, so I had him go get the snake and bring it to the office. We cut it open and there in the stomach of the reptile—a blount tail moccasin—we discovered 21 little snakes about the length of a lead pencil."

WEAK AND THIN

Virginia Lady Was Just Dragging Around. Health Improved Steadily After She Took Cardui.

Bristol, Va.—"I was just about down in bed and so weak I was past going," writes Mrs. Jennie Goodman, of 716 Portsmouth Avenue, this city. Mrs. Goodman says her family was very uneasy about her condition, as she seemed so weak and thin.

"Iached all over," she explains, "and my back and sides hurt most of the time."

"I dragged around, and did not see a day of good health. I went to call on one of my neighbors, and she remarked about my looking so bad. She told me to get a bottle of Cardui and take it. Next Saturday night, my husband brought it home to me.

"Before I had taken Cardui a week, I was feeling much better. I continued taking it for awhile, as my health kept on improving. I gained in weight, and soon was feeling like a new person. Since then I have taken Cardui several times, and it has always done me good. I can recommend it to others."

Cardui has been in use so long that its merit has been proved by the experience of several generations of women.
