Copeland's HEALTH TALK

Feeding Infants
 By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
 (United States Senator and former Health Commissioner of New York)

Fortunate indeed is the babe born in an enlightened land. With popular education and wide-spread instruction in the care of infants, the American baby is blessed indeed.

When we contrast the scientific feeding of our youngsters with what is done in certain lands, we must rejoice that we know how to care for the little ones. I want you to read how a recent writer describes the care of infants in one part of the Orient.

After a beautiful tribute to the mother love, telling how the child is idolized, the author laments the ignorance of the uneducated and uninformed parent. The mother "would never discipline the child, even though she knew the meaning of the word." Listen:

"She has not the vaguest conception how to feed him or develop him. Her idea of a sufficient meal is to tie a string around his little brown body and stuff him till the string bursts."

Isn't this terrible?

Thank God, the mothers of modern civilization are not limited in their knowledge of how to feed a baby. Neither are they bound by the blindness of tradition. Our mothers are eager to find the very best way to deal with their children and they are free to apply their knowledge. That is why the infant death rate is steadily decreasing.

I have often said that the degree of civilization is measured by the infant deaths. That standard determines the progress of a community.

I shall never forget the quiet and modest admonition of the chief personal assistant to the commissioner soon after I took charge of the health department of New York city. This good woman called my attention to a graphic chart, showing the infant deaths. "The success or failure of your administration will be determined by what is added to this chart during your administration."

The full significance of this statement did not dawn upon me at once. But the more I learned of public health work, the more I became convinced that the way we care for the babies determines our humanity, our scientific knowledge, our real civic progress.

There is little more to say today. It is enough to add that the foundation of health is laid in the early years of life. The usefulness of the adult, the ability to think straight and to work hard, the physique to meet successfully the contests of life—all these depend on the mother wisdom applied in those early years.

From time to time, infant feeding will be discussed in this column. No American mother will depend on the breaking of a string as a test of sufficient feeding. She will know exactly what must be fed, how much must be fed, and what must not be given her baby. By the application of simple rules of hygiene her precious infant will wax strong.

COULDN'T SLEEP

Louisiana Lady States That The First Bottle of Cardui She Took, Helped Her.

Montgomery, La.—"I was in a dreadfully run-down condition," says Mrs. Charles L. Lacroix, of this city. "I suffered a great deal of pain. I was in misery all over. I could not sit up and I could not lie down. I couldn't sleep and at times I would have dreadful vomiting spells. The aches and pains seemed to cover my whole body."

"I had taken Cardui, off and on, since 1903. It had always done me good, so when I got in this bad condition, I thought I would take it again."

"One night, my husband brought me home six bottles of Cardui and I began to take it. I could tell that I was improving from the first bottle, but I kept on taking the medicine, for I knew that I needed a tonic that would build me up and strengthen me where I was weak and run-down. That is exactly what Cardui did for me. After I had finished the sixth bottle I felt fine. I feel truly thankful for what Cardui has done for me, for I could not have gone on living in the desperate condition I was in."

Cardui is a harmless extract of valuable medicinal herbs, and acts as a strengthening tonic. NC-300

ASSEMBLYMAN BALKS AS BREECHES MODEL

Trenton. — Assembly - woman Agnes C. Jones of Essex county willingly acted as a model for part of the proposed new uniform of the state police, but bolted when it came to trying on the breeches. First showing how the new grey shirt looked and then the blue-grey French blouse, Miss Jones blushed when asked to be a model for the breeches, and returned to the role of a lawmaker.

The measure authorizing the adoption of the new uniform by the state police was immediately adopted. It provides a misdemeanor for any one copying the uniform.

Chickens are What you Make Them

WHAT you feed them, in other words. And for making big, husky, healthy eager-to-lay pullets or delicious meat birds there's nothing better than

Quaker FUL-O-PEP GROWING MASH

Take our word for it—it's a winner! It fairly pushes birds over the non-productive period and cuts feeding time and costs. Contains oatmeal, minerals, proteins, choice grains, molasses (in dry form). We have it—very reasonably priced.
