Three Sets Of Twins In Richmond Family

Rockingham.—There was born to Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Dewitt, of Richmond county, a third set of twins, May 11. This last pair are boys, weighing 8 and 8 1-2 pounds each. Mr. Dewitt is foreman for the big Foodley farm in the northern part of Richmond county. He and his wife have 12 children, with three sets of twins. The oldest are twin boys, age 19. The next set of twins are 6 years old, and consists of a boy and girl. And now this last set, born last Saturday night, are twin boys. A challenge is issued to any county in the state that can beat this record.

Strikers Charge Soldiers Guilty

In Letter To Governor Say There Is Plot To Wreck New Building.

Gastonia.—Striking cotton mill workers in a letter to Governor O. Max Gardner charged that members of the National Guard looked on when their headquarters was destroyed on the night of April 18 and charged a plot to destroy their new headquarters which will be dedicated Saturday night.

The letter, which is signed by Roy Stroud, chairman of the strike committee, follows: "The textile strikers of Gastonia are building with their own hands new union headquarters to take the place of the one demolished by thugs while the state militia were looking on. The new building is almost finished and the dedication will take place next Saturday, May 18, before thousands of workers.

It is rumored around Gastonia that enemies of the workers, inspired by the mill owners, are plotting to wreck the new headquarters within three days after completion.

The strike committee took the matter up today and decided it is useless to expect the one-sided manville-Jenks law to protect the life and property of the many strikers of Gastonia. Every striker is determined to defend the new headquarters at all cost."

Will Envoy Take Knickers, It's Dawes Of Old Replying

Washington.—Gen. Charles G. Dawes new ambassador to the court of St. James's flashed across the horizon of the nation's capital last week, running true to form in all particulars. The general did not carry himself with any outward show that the burdens of his new post were pressing upon him. Once the contrary, he walked with jaunty step as he entered the state department for a conference with Secretary Stimson during which he received his instructions. The famous underslung pipe was carried at the regulation angle.

On emerging from the state department, Gen. Dawes bore visible evidence that he had received his instructions, which apparently were safely stowed in a well-filled brief case. But even this surplus baggage did not cause any halt in the general's stride. The ubiquitous newspaper reporters were on hand, not to mention a heavy barrage of cameras. "His excellency" declined to discuss reparations, disarmament or other matters of international import. Indeed, he was a model of discretion and for a moment the scribes and picture grabbers feared that he had been tamed.

Then a youngster asked, "Are you taking any knickers with you to London?" and the lid was off. "Do you want a diplomatic answer or the answer that deserves?" shot out of the squared jaw. "Shoot," grinned the reporter. "Then you go plumb to hell—that's my business." For a moment Gen. Dawes fumbled with his celebrated pipe as the photographers were about to do their stuff. He seemed to be in doubt as to the propriety of having the pipe photographed along with the new ambassador to London. "I had better take this pipe out of my mouth—I'm a diplomat now," said he. Then, remembering that Premier Baldwin is one of England's famous pipe smokers, the general straightened up and added: "No, by gosh, I won't," and the pipe remained on the job.

Plowman Finds A Purse Gone A Year

Newton.—R. G. "Bert" Rhyme was made happy Tuesday afternoon when a plowman turned up a purse containing $27 that Mr. Rhyme lost while plowing in the same field last year. The purse contained a $20 bill, a $5 bill and two $1 bills. Mr. Rhyme stated while plowing in a field on his farm near Maiden last year he reached in his hip pocket, where he always carried his purse, for his knife. He at once missed the pocketbook and began a diligent search for it. Not finding it, he plowed the field five times with a cultivator plow but was still unsuccessful in finding it. He then gave up all hopes of ever seeing his money again, until it was turned up yesterday afternoon. Mr. Rhyme bought the purse and money to the Farmers and Merchants bank in Newton and asked that it be sent to Washington and replaced with new money. While the purse was badly damaged, the money had deteriorated to an almost unrecognizable condition.

Lloyd's Pays $43 When Toy Boat Sinks On Its Owner

London.—Another disaster has befallen the great underwriters' corporation which suffered so heavily in the burning of the German liner Europa, a toy steamboat owned by fourteen-year-old Richard Levy of Cricklewood, turned turtle and sank in the Round Pond of Kensington Gardens, and Lloyd's paid Richard $43 insurance less brokerage and plus salvage charges.

Richard, whose father is a physician, took no chances with his toy vessel, for she had lines as smart as any ocean greyhound and he had her underwritten at Lloyd's on a valuation of $40. Altogether the insurance cost $125 as a premium for twelve months, with 40 cents extra for a policy fee and duty stamp. Under an ordinary policy he would have been guarded against fire and damage by collision, but for an additional 62 cents Richard protected himself against the risks of stranding and sinking as well.

Blood-Selling Is A Late Day Trade

Selling blood for transfusions is the latest thing in vocations. This strange profession is the subject of an article by Herbert G. Harlan in Hygeia (Chicago) Says Mr. Harlan, in substance: "The professional donor may give as many as forty transfusions in one year. He is paid from $20 to $50 for each transfusion. He must submit to considerable discomfort, however. He must live on a scientific diet of blood-producing foods and must go through life with a sore arm. Hospitals keep records of available donors, according to the four types of blood. Unfortunately all blood is not alike, and unless that of the patient is like that of the donor the two bloods will clot when mixed. Every donor is registered as belonging to one of four groups—1, 2, 3, or 4. When a transfusion is necessary or advisable, a donor belonging to the same group as the patient is called in without delay or confusion. There are two methods of transferring the blood. In one, known as the Percy method, an incision is made in the arm of the patient and a similar incision in the arm of the donor. The blood is removed by means of a tube, which is then inserted into the patient's arm. In the other method a needle is used and the blood flows into a container. In this method an anticoagulative substance must be mixed with the blood. A donor of blood suffers no serious consequences. His arm is slightly sore, and he is not up to usual endurance for a day or two. The blood is made up within a week or ten days. He must be careful not to overwork, or he will run the risk of developing tuberculosis."

Boiling Springs Man In Gaffney Collision

Gaffney.—An automobile occupied by Broadus Hamrick, of Boiling Springs, and Jim McSwain of Gaffney, was in collision here Friday afternoon with a Chevrolet closed car driven by a man whose name could not be obtained, at the intersection of Frederick and Grand streets. One wheel of the Hamrick machine was demolished, and a fender on the stranger's car was bent. No one received personal injuries. Both cars were proceeding along Fire'st street to the intersection, where the stranger turned south just as the Hamrick car came into the crossing from alongside the Smith Hardware company building, it was reported.

Oh! It Was Pitiful.

From Tit-Bits. Tears were streaming down the cinema actress's face. Reverses had come—she was in a pawnshop. Slowly, silently, she drew from her pocket a little package and laid it down on the counter before the eyes of the hardened pawnbroker. "How much?" she asked, and wiped her eyes with a tiny handkerchief. She was pawning her six wedding rings.

Gaffney School Boy Paroled By Gardner

Youngster Involved In Killing Of Alleged Burke County Blockader Is Freed.

Gaffney.—Wells Greene, former Gaffney high school boy who was serving a 9 to 10 years sentence in the North Carolina penitentiary at Raleigh for manslaughter, has been paroled by Governor O. Max Gardner, according to newspaper dispatches from the capital.

Greene was involved in the killing of Frank Butler, an alleged blockader of Burke county, in January, 1926. He and three others were convicted at Morganton a few weeks later. The others were Charles Kendrick, Otis Jolly and Roy Hill, all of this city.

Greene and Kendrick both admitted firing pistols and received heavier sentences than Jolly and Hill. Since being in prison Greene has learned the printing trade and is said to be an expert pressman. Numerous Gaffney people joined in recommending a parole for him.

Beason Killing Case To Be Tried During This Week

Martin Davis Convicted In Rutherford For Slaughtering His Son.

Rutherford.—The jury returned a verdict of guilty of manslaughter here Saturday in the case of Martin Davis, of near Henrietta, who was tried for the shooting of his son, Leland last summer. The jury was out about three hours. Judge J. L. Webb gave the case to the jury about noon after a two-day trial which attracted much attention.

The case was called Friday morning and all day there was not standing room in the large new courthouse. Attorneys F. D. Hamrick of Rutherford, Clyde R. Hoey of Shelby, and C. O. Ridings and B. T. Jones, of Forest City, represented Davis, while O. J. Moneyham of Henrietta assisted Solicitor Pless in prosecution. It was a hard-fought case. The courthouse was filled again today. Judge Webb will pass sentence on Davis Monday morning. Criminal court will run most of the week, when George Comer is to be tried for stabbing Clyde Beason on Easter Sunday at Cliffside.
