Sentiment Causes Seniors To Hold Their Final Program In Building Where They Worked

The graduation exercises and the awarding of diplomas in the Shelby high school will be held this evening in the Central school building rather than in the First Baptist church due to the sentiment 68 boys and girls hold for the old school building in which they spent their school years, and in which many other Shelby high classes have graduated before them.

Vote It Down.

Since Governor Gardner was coming home to make the address and since it was to be one of the city's biggest high school commencements the suggestion was passed about some time back that the final exercises be held in the First Baptist church where more people could be accommodated.

But the night was to be the big night and not only the big night but "their night" to the youngsters who leave the school forever this evening, and the decision was left to them. In a way it was quite a problem for the happy youngsters. Of course they would want as many people as cared to see them graduate. Ambitious youth could want nothing else. But there was another angle. The old Central school building meant much to them. In it most of them have been struggling and studying, playing and laughing for ten years and longer. Through it all the old red structure on the hillside came to mean very much to them. In it their older brothers and sisters have received their diplomas on "commencement night" for many years gone by. So, finally they decided to take a vote on it. And then sentiment won out over pride—the vote gave an easy victory to the old Central building.

Tonight the exercises will be held there.

of the senior class and was enjoyed by a very large audience of parents and friends of the graduating class. On Thursday afternoon at four o'clock the regular class day exercises were given in the auditorium of the high school.

Fine Banquet.

The Kiwanis club entertained the senior class Thursday evening along with the members of the band and the football team. One hundred and fifty guests enjoyed the program along with the sixty members of the Kiwanis club. The exercises were more or less informal but full of interest throughout. President Lattimore called upon Miss Brown of the high school faculty to present the seniors individually. The program was then turned over to Kiwanian Bill McCord, who in turn called upon Superintendent Griffin to present the guests of the evening. The high school faculty was presented by Principal Andrews, the band by Director Sinclair and the baseball team by Coach Morris. Mr. Forrest Eskridge presented letters to six members of the band: T. B. Gold, John McBrayer, Will Arey, Jr., Herman Best, Edwin Smith and Henry Lee Weathers. To receive a letter, a member of the band must complete two years of service in the band and take part in a state wide contest.

Rankin Here.

Mr. E. R. Rankin of the University of North Carolina was present as guest of the Kiwanis club, and presented the trophy cup won by the baseball team at Chapel Hill, May 25. Mr. O. M. Mull presented each member of the team with a miniature gold baseball, the gift of the Kiwanis club.

Commend Griffin.

Mr. C. R. Hoey with appropriate remarks offered a resolution of commendation of the services rendered by Superintendent I. C. Griffin as a charter member of the Kiwanis club and as superintendent of schools for the past thirteen years.

GAINES ANSWERS THEORY OF WELLS

Can't Agree Time Will Come When Colleges Won't Be Necessary.

Columbus, Miss. — Three arguments were advanced here by Dr. Frank P. Gaines, president of Wake Forest college, against the theory recently advanced by H. G. Wells that with the development of civilization the college will cease to exist, in addressing the graduating class of Mississippi State college for Women.

Dr. Gaines, formerly a member of the faculty of Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical college commented at length on Wells' theory in the baccalaureate address.

"The supporting argument is that since education represents at best merely an opportunity for the individual to discover fact, and since facilities for spreading information, like the radio, the public library and the public lecture will expand enormously, there will actually be no justification for the institutions that cost large sums of money and demand great expense of energies on the part of students," Dr. Gaines said.

"The adoption of any such program for education must be at the expense of certain immeasurable values," the speaker argued. He summarized the values as follows:

"The stimulation of personal contact, that effect of living in a swirl of personality which rubs off sharp corners of temperament, which puts forth from time to time emergent giants of personality who inspire the youthful student to a new resolution of purpose.

"The perfecting of personal competence by the slow routine of performance; this value of education lies not at the end of the journey but along the road, the slow, hard road; herein pupils acquire masteries of mind and will and they later transfer this academic training, relatively trivial, to the tasks of life, immensely significant.

"The establishment of life's loyalties, the scope of our loyalties expands as though a series of concentric circles, each fairly definite in itself, but leading naturally into another and a larger.

"The first is the home circle; but no individual is fitted for life's loyalties until he has had some existence in a circle of the social group, where he ceases to think importantly of himself and begins to enter into the welfare of the group. Herein come devotion to group ideals; herein comes dedication to the great ends toward which the group struggles; herein comes the power to share vicariously the triumphs earned by other members of the group. The cohesiveness of youthful enthusiasms, represented usually as college spirit, is the training link that leads into fine moods of citizenship, into the committal of life to all holy emergencies."

LADY'S SUFFERING

She Writes That "A Friend Told Me To Take Cardui and I Know It Helped Me."

Greenville, Miss.—In describing how she suffered several years ago, Mrs. Mattie Dalton, of 213 Walnut Street, this city, recently wrote: "I would cramp, and my hands and feet would draw, so I came near having convulsions. I would have to stay in bed a week, and when I would get up, I just dragged around, and did not feel like doing my work. I suffered a great deal with my back.

"A friend came to see me and saw how I suffered. She told me to try taking Cardui, which I did. I seemed to have more strength, after my first bottle. After I had taken about four bottles of Cardui, I saw a great improvement. "I quit having such bad spells, and was stronger and better than in a long time. I gained in weight. I took a few more bottles of Cardui, and felt so well that I quit taking it. "I certainly can recommend Cardui, for I know what it is to suffer, and I know that Cardui helped me." Thousands of women have written to tell of the benefit Cardui has been to them, in helping them to build up their health.

SCHOOL FINALS FOR WASHINGTON ARE HELD TODAY

Lucille Whisnant And Colbert McKnight Win Medals, Other Awards Made.

Commencement exercises of the Washington school, of the Shelby city system, were held today with the annual contests and class program.

The chief ushers were Charles Wray and Veva Armour assisted by Jack Hulick, Sam Ledford, and Catherine McMurry.

Judges for the C. C. Blanton Recitation and Declamation contests were Mrs. Harry Camitz, Mrs. Harry Speck and Mrs. J. J. McMurry, Jr. The $5 saving account for the recitation winner was awarded Lucille Whisnant, while Colbert McKnight won the savings account in the declamation contest. Other participants in the recitation contest were Nellie Reed, Sadie Laughridge, and Cornelia Sparks. The other contestant in the declamation contest was J. B. Crow.

Other Honors.

Other awards and medals were: Mrs. T. W. Hamrick spelling medal to Louise Ramseur of the fifth grade; prize for best headmarks in arithmetic to Frederick McBrayer; Mrs. Ed Post prizes for the most improvement in fourth grade arithmetic to Annabeth Jones, and in geography to Katherine Wellmon; the gold piece for winning the preliminary music memory contest for the city school system was awarded Ed Post, Jr. Certificates of perfect attendance were awarded to S. M. Blanton, Jr., Ray McKinney, and Cornelia Sparks.

As a part of the program an ice cream treat was given the children by the fathers and mothers of those enrolled, while the sixth grade pupils showered their teacher, Miss Sara Thomas, who is to be married in June.

The class exercises included the history by Margaret Ford, the statistics by Dorothy Leonard, the will and testament by Wray Hoffman, and the prophecy by Cornelia Sparks.

Brummitt And Ehringhaus In Lead, Is Belief

long distance prognosticators here believe that Fountain will overshoot his mark, if he has not done so already; that he will not be able to hold his present organization intact for three more years; and that when the actual campaign gets under way that the real contest is more likely to be between Brummitt and Ehringhaus.

Some think that General Albert L. Cox of Raleigh may become a candidate, while others hint broadly that Josiah William Bailey may get into the race, especially if he should not become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for U. S. senator against Senator F. M. Simmons. But at present, even Raleigh is not taking the prospective candidacy of General Cox seriously, while the Democratic leaders are also discounting the possibility of Bailey getting into the race, although they admit that Bailey may do anything.

It is generally agreed, however, that Brummitt will become a formidable candidate. He will have had eight years in office as Attorney general of the state, having been elected to this office twice by large majorities. Thus his name will be familiar to voters everywhere, which will constitute a valuable psychological advantage. But Brummitt has the additional advantage of having had three terms in the general assembly, one of these as speaker of the house, serving in the legislatures of 1915, 1917 and 1919, being speaker this last time. As a result, he is acquainted with influential men in every county of the state, is familiar with the peculiar local problems and state of mind in every county and almost every community, that comes only with long service in the general assembly. This knowledge of local conditions in the various counties and the contacts with local political leaders has been kept fresh and green through the natural and continuous contact maintained through the office of the attorney general.

There is still another thing strongly in Brummitt's favor. And that is that as long as he has been attorney general, he has looked after the interests of the state fearlessly and courageously, has refrained from playing politics and consequently has won the confidence of the people, his friends claim. In addition, he was for a time chairman of the state Democratic executive committee, which brought him additional valuable contacts: He is plain, unaffected—a "small town" man, rather than a "high hat" "city feller." He is also from the eastern part of the state.

Then there is Ehringhaus, also a "small town" man—but not too small. He is also from the east, which is both good and necessary. Ehringhaus has perhaps a more striking and magnetic personality than Brummitt, and is a public speaker of undoubted power and attractiveness. He also has the esteem and confidence of all who know him. But there comes the rub. Not enough people know Ehringhaus outside of the northeastern part of the state, according to the political prophets here. Some also maintain that his name does not have quiet the proper sound or spelling for some, despite his unquestioned intellectual ability and fitness for the office of governor. So unless Ehringhaus is able to sell himself to the Democrats of the state as few have been able to do in campaigns, the edge at present is awarded to Brummitt.

Lookahere, Annette Kellerman To Give Treat In Charlotte

Her Exhibition There Sunday Will Be Free Attraction For Those Who Attend.

(Special to The Star.)

Charlotte, May 30.—As a feature of the international campaign to develop and maintain the highest standards of health and beauty, Annette Kellerman, world famous aquatic beauty who is conceded universally to have the most perfect figure of any living woman, will give a free exhibition of swimming, diving and physical culture exercises and poses, accompanied by a highly entertaining lecture, at West Lake Park in Charlotte on Sunday afternoon, June 2.

There will be no charges or fees of any sort, it is announced, and a gallery of seats will be provided on the shady slope overlooking the pool, to insure the comfort of all who attend. In addition, the park is equipped with a radio broadcasting and amplifying hook up which will not only carry Miss Kellerman's voice to every corner of the vast park, but will broadcast an entertaining musical program as well.

It is expected that thousands of women, girls and men will be present, as Miss Kellerman has made a special change in her itinerary in order to be able to appear at West Lake in the course of a world tour which has already brought her before vast audiences in the leading cities of England, France, Belgium, the Scandinavian countries, Germany, Italy and elsewhere, where she has been acclaimed enthusiastically.

Miss Kellerman, whose activities in the development of high standards of health and beauty among women have made her name a household word throughout the entire world, will begin her demonstration with an exhibition of fancy diving in the big West Lake pool, following with a series of poses illustrating correct postures and a group of exercises calculated to develop the figure properly. She will accompany these exhibitions with an illuminating discourse on the principles of correct living and the attainment of an enviable form.

Free parking space will be provided within the park for all automobiles.

for some, despite his unquestioned intellectual ability and fitness for the office of governor. So unless Ehringhaus is able to sell himself to the Democrats of the state as few have been able to do in campaigns, the edge at present is awarded to Brummitt.

Charlotte Decorates For Big Reunion Of Confederate Vets

City Decorates Itself In Preparation For Countrywide Event.

Charlotte.—Charlotte has decked itself in flags and bunting in preparation for the general Confederate reunion, to start here June 4 and last through June 7. The official decorators, to whom the contract was given by the reunion management, hung Confederate and United States flags for a total of 50 blocks, and private business houses, as well as public buildings, were decorated. It was announced that Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, will be the chief speaker at the opening meeting of the reunion. He sent a message saying he would arrive here on the afternoon of June 4, speak that night and leave the next day for Washington.

Requests for reservations of hotel rooms continue to pour in here, but, as space has been filled by reservation, a reply is sent to those asking now for reservations, directing them to apply to the housing committee and the best available rooms will be assigned them.

Paul R. Yount and the military affairs committee of the reunion today arranged the line of march for the parade, which will be the climax to all the reunion activities and which will be held the morning of June 7. This is expected to be a gorgeous event. The National Guard units will be on duty keeping the streets clear the morning just before the parade and when the remnants of the Confederate Army line up for parade they will have a clear track. Companies of National Guard cavalry will be in the line of march, as will representatives of other organizations.

The United Confederate Veterans, Sons of Veterans, United Daughters of the Confederacy and Confederate Southern Memorial association will all have some separate meetings here, but will unite for other meetings and will have parts in the parade.

It is already known that Bloxi, Miss., and Washington, D. C., will invite the Confederates for the 1930 convention, with the odds now favoring Bloxi, in the opinion of reunion management officials.

In this great land of opportunity, any little girl may grow up to be a vice president's sister.—San Diego Union.

VOL. 1. MAY 31, 1929. No. 19.

Congratulations to the members of our High School baseball team. We are very proud of each of you. You proved last Saturday that we were absolutely right when we made the statement, in this column, last week that Shelby had the best baseball team in the state.

We also made the statement that we had the best automobile that money could buy, but we did not have to wait till this week to prove that we were right. It is a known fact that we can give you more for your money in an automobile. We have many satisfied customers to prove it.

"Billy, don't you love driving on a night like this?"
"Yes, girlie, but I thought I would wait until we got farther out."
