BOOTLEG QUEENS USUALLY "MYTHS" SAY DRY AGENTS Those Who Become "Bootleg Queen" Reach That Estate Often By Circumstance. Washington.—Prohibition officials have decided that the "bootleg queen" is a myth. Only 35 women have been sentenced to federal institutions for bootlegging since January 1, a check up by them showed today, indicating they said, that as bootleggers women were good stool pigeons. "Women are the bootleg helpers," officials said. "They play their minor part answering telephones, keeping accounts, and occasionally as blinds in transportation. But none has been convicted for taking cargoes to sea, leading bootleg rings, or engaging in big time rum-running on their own." One high official explained the situation by suggesting that in this as in other activities women are too new to the practice to lead it. Only since the organization of bootlegging as a business, he said, has there been opportunity for the leaders to engage in it without braving physical hazard. This development has made it conceivable that women should become leaders; but they have not done so. Follow Rather Than Lead. Extenuating circumstances recite in women's applications for clemency reveal their practice of following rather than leading, it was said. One 18-year-old girl sentenced to two years for possession, for instance, has brought evidence to show she merely took the blame for an aunt, who had been bootlegging regularly but on a small scale. Another woman recently convicted for selling liquor, went into the line after her husband died. So little success have "bootleg queens" had, officials said, that they are not classified as are other types of prohibition violators. No necessity for devising special tactics to apprehend and punish feminine bootleggers has been seen and the only occasions on which women are employed in secret work are when masculine agents need a woman companion to gain entrance to a scene of violation. Even this use of women, it was said, is discouraged.

A Request For Big Service

SHOWS HIS SPITE IN ODD MANNER

Angier.—John Kippett, of Virginia, about 21 years of age, is charged in a warrant issued at the direction of Jim Wilkins, a tobacco farmer on the lands of W. H. Stephenson, president of the Angier Bank and Trust Co., with destroying about two acres of tobacco.

The story dates back some three months. In early spring Mr. Wilkins was needful of a tobacco hand, and employed Kippett. Kippett, it is alleged, was responsible for a four-acre growth, and likewise he was to share on halves; that is, if he completed his job two acre of the finished product would be his crop. Bad weather intervened. To make matters worse, Kippett, whose real name is said to be Moore, was taken slightly ill. But all the time Mr. Kippett found it necessary to eat, and Mr. Wilkins was boarding him at a specified price, it is said. Wilkins also reports that he advanced the young man something like one hundred dollars or more in cash. But Kippett did not like the atmosphere, so he left for other parts. Messrs. Stephenson and Wilkins were left holding the proverbial bag. A few days ago, after the tobacco crop was set and well on its way to maturity, Kippett returned. It was explained to him that his services were not needed, but he insisted that his employers were indebted to him. It is further stated that he told Mr. Wilkins that unless some recompense was forthcoming he would "pull up" his two acres of tobacco.

Mr. Wilkins and Mr. Stephenson felt that they were not further indebted to the young man, and consequently refused to pay him. Tuesday night, it is alleged, Kippett carried out his threat—and the tobacco—two acres of it—has been plucked and is withering in southern sunshine.

Officers are still searching the wilds of Black river and adjacent territory for Kippett. Soon after he learned that the warrant had been issued for his arrest, he fled.

Protect Against Diphtheria Now

Many local health officers are now busily engaged in vaccinating large groups of people against diphtheria and smallpox. The old idea, which never did gain credence among reputable health officers, that summer is not a good season to be vaccinated against smallpox, has been forgotten. Any day in the year is a good time to be vaccinated. And the only two classes of people who ought not to be vaccinated are dead people and those who have experienced a recent successful vaccination. The people who are fortunate enough to live in counties where special campaigns are being conducted against diphtheria this summer should cooperate with the public health officials and the family physicians in an effort to make all such efforts fully successful. Get your children out to the clinics arranged by the health authorities or carry them to your family physician and have every one of them protected against diphtheria. The disease is prevalent every year and now is the time to secure maximum protection.

TORTURING PAINS

Ceredo Lady Tells How She Was Unable To Find Anything to Relieve Them Until She Took Cardui.

Ceredo, W. Va.—In telling how she was benefited by taking Cardui, Mrs. Perlie Yelkey, of this place, says: "At one time, I had a very serious spell which left me weak. At times, I would suffer such intense pains across my back and in my side that I could hardly stand it."

"I endured this over and over again. Every time the pains were worse than before."

"I was in despair because nothing helped me. I tried several remedies, but I continued to suffer."

"One day, I read about Cardui. Other women told how they had gotten strong and well after taking it. I have often been thankful for that day, for after I had taken Cardui for awhile, I felt like a different human being."

"It did not seem possible, but I did not suffer the old, torturing pains, and I really felt well. I can heartily recommend Cardui, for I know how much I improved after I took it. Since then, I have taken it several times when I have needed a tonic, and I have always been benefited. It is a wonderful help."
