Around Our TOWN Shelby SIDELIGHTS

By RENN DRUM

PUT IT DOWN in your record books that the years 1928-29 have been and are big years in the history of Shelby achievements. With the chamber of commerce on the blink and no paid publicity agent to herald the town's remarkable accomplishments, the coliseum takes it upon itself to do the broadcasting. Perhaps if there is a balance in the city treasury at the end of the year Hizzoner, Mayor McMurry, will reward us, but more than likely he will not, so we do it for our own gratification. Those of you who care to listen may stand by others may sign off at their own pleasure.

The majority of the things which a chamber of commerce booklet would list in the booster pamphlet have actually been realized in 1929 although some of the achievements got underway in 1928.

First of all, there is the 1928 cotton crop, the actual figures of which were not known until this spring. Those figures, you know, carried the information that Cleveland county produced more cotton than any other county in the state.

In 1928, too, Oliver Maximilian Gardner, up to that time generally known in the public prints as "The Shelby lawyer-farmer," was elected governor of North Carolina, but he did not take office as chief executive of the state until 1929.

A pretty good start so far, eh? Another Shelby citizen, Odus M. Mull, in 1928 became head of the Democratic party in the state and today retains the chairmanship with no one calling for his scalp as some are for the forelock of Mr. Raskoo.

Last week our boss, Lee B. Wetters, gave up the reins as president of the North Carolina Press association, having served in that capacity during the recent year.

Then along early in the spring this year Prof. W. T. Sinclair took a group of young Shelby high school musicians down to Greensboro and won the state band championship for class B schools.

Just a few weeks later Casey Morris' Shelby high baseball team travelled down to Chapel Hill and won the state high school baseball championship for all groups with all comers welcome.

Then last week a freckle-faced young Shelby boy, who held the Junior Carolinas golf championship, borrowed an automobile and carried his kid brother with him down to the Sedgfield golf course at Greensboro for the annual Junior Carolinas tourney. When they returned back with him—this time not in the possession of Pete Webb, but in the keeping of the younger brother Fred.

This week Vera Arwood, 14-year-old local girl, by virtue of her essay on cooperative farming and marketing here, was one of the four contestants in the entire state to compete for national essay honors at Raleigh.

In the two-year period Shelby people and institutions have carried off numerous other honors of lesser importance than state titles and offices, but the above list is pretty good material for the booster to tell his hearers just what Shelby has contributed to the state in one year.

A LOT OF TASKS FALL TO this department, some of them pleasant, and others not so pleasant. For instance, the other day after Mrs. Hoover entertained the negro congressman's wife at the White House it was reported that Senator Cole Blease had introduced a resolution concerning the event on the senate floor. We looked in vain in the newspapers for the resolution which was entitled "Nigger in the White House" but we failed to find it. And it seems as if others also looked as quite a number have asked that we try to dig it up in some manner.

Well, after a search, here it is, and for the benefit of the critical we'll add that it was published by the New York Herald-Tribune, a Republican paper and staunch supporter of Mr. Hoover and not by some pesky Democratic sheet:

"Whereas, it has been reported in the press and otherwise that on Thursday, June 13, 1929, Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the president of the United States, entertained at dinner the negro wife of a negro congressman named De Priest, who represents a negro congressional district in Chicago, and that the wife of the attorney general and of the secretary of the navy were seated at the table, and that the negro woman sat on Mrs. Hoover's right as her equal and as the guest of honor; now, therefore, be it resolved, that in order to keep the condition at the White House becoming as follows:

"NIGGER IN THE WHITE HOUSE"

Things at the White House Looking mighty curious. Nigger running everywhere. White people furious.

Niggers in the hallway Taking off their wraps. Niggers in the billiard room Shooting game of craps.

Not a room in the White House Without niggers many; Baby in the nursery Nigger pickaninny.

"That the President and Mrs. Hoover be requested to remember that the house in which they are temporarily residing is the White House and that Virginia, Texas, Florida, Tennessee and North Carolina contributed to their becoming its custodians."

Slowing Up The Workman.

(From The Wall St. Journal.)

Normally there is very little desire in industry to slow up the speedy workman, but in Hawaii an instance occurred where it was necessary to slow up a workman to teach other workmen how to work. In a sugar cane field, one workman's output exceeded that of the others, and the company which employed him desired to have the other laborers follow his example. His movements, however, were too rapid to follow, and it would have been difficult to explain verbally to the other laborers his method. Therefore, a motion picture of the fast worker was made, and run off in slow speed to show the others his method of operation, with very excellent results.

COULDN'T SLEEP

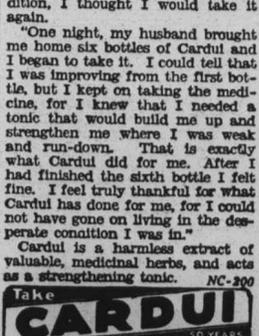

Louisiana Lady States That The First Bottle of Cardui She Took, Helped Her.

Montgomery, La.—"I was in a dreadfully run-down condition," says Mrs. Charles L. Lacroix, of this city. "I suffered a great deal of pain. I was in misery all over. I could not sit up and I could not lie down. I couldn't sleep and at times I would have dreadful vomiting spells. The aches and pains seemed to cover my whole body."

"I had taken Cardui, off and on, since 1903. It had always done me good, so when I got in this bad condition, I thought I would take it again."

"One night, my husband brought me home six bottles of Cardui and I began to take it. I could tell that I was improving from the first bottle, but I knew that I needed a tonic that would build me up and strengthen me where I was weak and run-down. That is exactly what Cardui did for me. After I had finished the sixth bottle I felt fine. I feel truly thankful for what Cardui has done for me, for I could not have gone on living in the desperate condition I was in."

Cardui is a harmless extract of valuable, medicinal herbs, and acts as a strengthening tonic. NC-300
