Blood On Hands.

No blood was on the dead woman's face, and the back of her hands, but there was blood in her palms, between the fingers and beneath the finger nails, she said.

King, the witness declared, complained to her that his wife had gone off that day and had not left any food for him.

She then got a glass of milk for him

Under questioning of Attorney Marion, the witness said that the sheet on the bed where King was lying was freshly laundered. the iron creases being plainly notice-

King's pajama coat, she said, was also newly laundered, the crease also being noticeable

Mr. Hoey quizzed the witness closely about the cut on Mrs. King's forehead and the ring on her throat. Under questioning of Mr. Hoey, the at $1.64 per ton. witness said she saw burns in Mrs. King's mouth. The bottom of the tongue was burned but the top appeared more natural, she said.

Man Cut Finger. Mr. Hoey asked the witness if one of the women at the King home that night had not cut her finger. "Yes, Plaxico cut his finger after we had prepared the body.' said Mrs. Saye

Mrs. Allen Plaxico, of Sharon, and ubstitute matron at the Thornell Orphanage, at Clinton, S. C. who aided in the preparation of Mrs. King's body, was next on the
