

Graham Cites Weakness In Farm Relief Measure

Ways Marketing Overstressed. Four Members From One Section.

News and Observer:

Undue stressing of the marketing problem, when there are others equally as important, and the grouping of appointments to the farm board in one section of the United States, when there are other vast agricultural areas without representation were pointed out last night by Commissioner of Agriculture William A. Graham, of North Carolina, as weaknesses in the Hoover farm relief plan.

"I am fully aware of the fact that marketing constitutes one of the vital phases of agriculture," said Commissioner Graham. "But it is not all, as Mr. Hoover and Secretary Hyde seem to think. There are other vital problems confronting the farmer which 'farm relief' ought to seek to remedy.

"Further, it will be noted that four of the appointees announced are grouped in Oklahoma, Missouri, Kentucky, and Illinois whose agricultural interests do not necessarily represent those in other sections which have been omitted. In Kentucky, for example, they raise burley tobacco by the hundreds of million of pounds. However, it is not the kind of tobacco raised in this section, and the tobacco growers' problems in that state are not necessarily the problems of the tobacco growers of other states. Take cotton—Oklahoma is a cotton state, to be sure, but from the information I gather the cotton problems of that state are not coincident with those of this section of the South.

"I am for farm relief; but I am for balanced farm relief, and I am for diversification of appointments. There are other sections to be considered besides the central west and the valley states."

King's Counsel Give Eight Reasons For New Trial

Judge Henry Answers These Eight Reasons Before Denying New Trial.

In arguing for a new trial in the Rafe King case wherein he was convicted of murder on Tuesday evening and sentenced to die in the electric chair Sept. 20, the counsel for King set forth eight reasons why he should have a new trial:

1.—That the verdict of the jury is contrary to the evidence.
2.—That there was insufficient evidence to warrant the verdict of the jury.
3.—That his honor should have directed a verdict of "not guilty."

4.—In reading the request to charge submitted by defendant's counsel to the jury in such an inaudible tone of voice that the defendant could not hear same, and the jury could not hear same clearly.

5.—In reading the request to charge as submitted by this defendant's counsel to the jury in such an inaudible tone of voice and in delivering his charge to the jury along other lines in such strenuous tones as to impress the jury. With the idea that there was little or no merit in the request to charge submitted by the defendant's counsel.

6.—Failure of the presiding judge to instruct the jury that the failure of the defendant to take the witness stand in his own behalf, could not be construed against him.

7.—In permitting a hostile audience to crowd in and around and show their hostility to this defendant by reason of their position before and demeanor in front of the jury as shown by the defendant's affidavit.

8.—In permitting counsel for the state to comment in their arguments to the jury upon the fact that the defendant, Rafe F. King, failed to testify in the case; the portions of the arguments of various counsel referred to are shown in King's affidavit.

Jury Heard Charge.
In reply to the statement of the grounds for a new trial, Judge Henry said that he was confident that the jury heard the charge.

"I was not instructing the defendant; I was instructing the jury," he asserted.

He further declared that he saw no effort to influence the jury and regarded the conduct and behavior of the audience as remarkable. He said that he has never seen such a patience as was exercised by the jury and such excellent demeanor as shown by the audience.

"I think this defendant has had a fair and impartial trial. I regard the verdict as a just and true verdict," declared Judge Henry, as he concluded his remarks, and ordered the defendant be placed in the dock.

The lawyers of King, who were present at the hearing of the motion for a new trial, requested early last night when the jury returned its verdict of guilty, included John M. Hemphill, Paul Hemphill and Mr. McDow, of York.

The state did not make an argument against the motion, as no formal arguments were advanced by the defense, which contented itself with the reading of the grounds and the affidavit from King.

King set forth in his affidavit that during the presentation of part of the state's evidence that Sheriff Howze stood between him and the witness, and at other times Solicitor Hines, as well as others obstructed his view, and interfered with his hearing.

He also asserted that the judge's charge was delivered in such a low, inaudible voice that he could not hear and expressed the belief that the jury did not hear that part of the charge, which the defense had requested.

The affidavit, further set forth, "that His Honor refused to consider this defendant's request to charge except as to one request and did not read this defendant's request to charge until urged to do so by defendant's counsel, although same had been properly submitted in writing and then read the same as herein aforesaid in such a low voice that this defendant was able to hear but a few words of the said request."

Crowds Attacked.
He also declared in his affidavit that crowds, apparently hostile to him, were permitted to push into the bar and before the jury, and that this fact was plainly visible to the jury.

Judge Henry, in making reply, said that he had attempted to make himself understood and that when it was suggested by defense counsel that the jury might not be hearing, he went and stood within six feet of the jury, and reread that portion which the lawyers said the jury might not have heard.

No Influence.
He also declared that he had not seen an effort to influence the jury and that the crowd was remarkably well behaved.

In replying to the allegation that attorneys for the state had been permitted to refer to the fact that King had not taken the stand and that he had been called a murderer in counsel's argument, Judge Henry said that he had not heard any such reference and recalled that he had instructed the jury to disregard the statements of lawyers referring to the defendant as a murderer.

King's Lawyers Here Are Silent

Shelby legal counsel for Rafe King, Clyde R. Hoey and B. T. Falls, returned to the city late last night from Chester, S. C., where they made one of the most determined fights on record to clear their client of a charge of murder. Returning to Shelby last night also were immediate members of Rafe King's family, who have been at the side of the accused ever since the case began.

The Shelby attorneys this morning refused to discuss the case. They said that they did not care to commit themselves on the subject of whether or not they thought King received a fair trial, nor would they divulge the points on which they will argue before the South Carolina supreme court in Columbia to have the verdict set aside.

Mr. Hoey said he was very much pleased with his legal associates in South Carolina. He paid high tribute to other members of defense counsel, both as attorneys and as gentlemen, and spoke warmly of the hospitality extended by South Carolina people during the course of the trial.

Scholars at Cambridge have invented a language containing only 500 words, called "panoptical English." It is said that nearly all ordinary conversation can be carried on with this limited vocabulary. But it will never be popular in the United States senate.

LADY'S SUFFERING

She Writes That "A Friend Told Me To Take Cardui and I Know It Helped Me."

Greenville, Miss.—In describing how she suffered several years ago, Mrs. Mattie Dalton, of 213 Walnut Street, this city, recently wrote: "I would cramp, and my hands and feet would draw, so I came near having convulsions. I would have to stay in bed a week, and when I would get up, I just dragged around, and did not feel like doing my work. I suffered a great deal with my back.

"A friend came to see me and saw how I suffered. She told me to try taking Cardui, which I did. I seemed to have more strength, after my first bottle. After I had taken about four bottles of Cardui, I saw a great improvement.

"I quit having such bad spells, and was stronger and better than in a long time. I gained in weight. I took a few more bottles of Cardui, and felt so well that I quit taking it. "I certainly can recommend Cardui, for I know what it is to suffer, and I know that Cardui helped me."

Thousands of women have written to tell of the benefit Cardui has been to them, in helping them to build up their health.

Costs More To Be Married Now

It costs more now to get married in North Carolina than it did prior to July 1, according to a statement made this morning at the office of the register of deeds for Cleveland county. The register points to a recent act of the North Carolina legislature under the terms of which all counties are required to levy a fee of $4.00 for issuing a marriage license, $3.00 of this going to the state and $1 to the county. The law likewise requires that the register submit on the first of January, April, July and October a record of all marriage licenses issued together with fees collected for same, this record to be filed with the state treasurer.

The following licenses have been issued recently in Cleveland county: John C. McLean, Transylvania county, and Julia Martha Skinner, Thomaston, Ala.
Edgar Newton and Mozell Canipe, both of Cleveland county.

Clingman's Dome Tops Mt. Mitchell

Asheville.—A second mountain in the Smoky Mountain Park area towers above Mt. Mitchell, hitherto considered the highest peak in eastern America, measurements made by the United States Geological survey indicate, it has been learned.

Not only is Mt. Guyot higher than Mitchell, but Clingman's Dome likewise rears its head above Mitchell. Preliminary figures, which must be checked in Washington, show Clingman's Dome, in Swain county as standing 6,842 above sea level, as compared with Mitchell's 6,711—a difference of 131 feet.

These latest figures would place Mt. Guyot, 7,025, as the highest mountain in the east, Clingman's Dome, 6,842, second and Mt. Mitchell, 6,711 as third.

The figures are subject to checking and correction in Washington, but it is believed that they will stand.
