

Home Coming July 28 at Beulah Church

All Former Pastors Asked To Be Present. Miss Harmon Gives Tacky Party.

(Special to The Star)

The revival meeting begins at Beulah church July 21. Rev. C. A. Baker will do the preaching.

The home coming day at Beulah church will be July 28. All former members are asked to be present. All day meeting. Dinner served.

A vacation Bible school is in progress. The teachers are Rev. C. A. Baker, Mrs. Geo. E. Gorforth and Miss Mary Pearl Wolfe.

Miss Lillian Harmon gave a tacky party last Wednesday night. A large crowd attended. All reported a good time.

The Epworth league gave a social honoring Rev. C. A. Baker last Thursday night at L. M. Wolf's. Ice cream and cake were served.

Zella Gorforth and Mildred Hord spent the week-end in Kings Mountain visiting Mrs. J. L. Wolfe and Miss Lottie Gorforth.

Mary and James Goode are spending a few days with their sister, Sarah Virginia Goode.

Heavy Rains Visit Polkville Section

Editorial Cleveland Star

This is to inform all and sundry what we have received a manifest and striking token that God rains signs and the government lives.

We fervently believe in the inspired truths of Revelation and comfort ourselves with the solace that the sun of Jehovah rises upon the evil and the good and the benevolent rains fall upon the just and the unjust. But for two weeks the inspiring showers have bedewed Shelby, Fallston, and even faraway Elizabethtown while we felt the brightening effects of the east wind and suffered in the tolls of a desolating drought. But yesterday the clouds were prodigal of their hoarded showers, the twisting corn has taken on the vigor and hue of vitality, the gardens bloom this morning like pristine Eden; while pastures take on new vigor.

CORN CRACKER.

PAINFUL INDIGESTION

"Turned from indigestion; everything I ate gave me heartburn," says Mrs. Matilda Mullins, of Pound, Va. "For months I did not see a well day. I worried along, but never felt well."

"I got a package of Thedford's Black-Draught at the store and began taking it—a dose every night before going to bed. I had been having an awful pain. After I had taken Black-Draught, this pain entirely stopped. I began to gain in weight, and rested well at night. In a few months I was feeling fine. My health was better than it had been in years."

"I keep Black-Draught in our home, and we all take it for constipation and upset stomach."

Two Members of Crew Saved as Subs Crash

The British Navy submarine L-24, below, is sister ship to the L-12, which collided with the H-47, above, in St. George's Channel off the Fembroke Coast of England, causing the latter to sink immediately in 270 feet of water. Navy experts and divers entertain only the slenderest hope of saving any of the 21 men aboard the H-47, although 20 British navy ships rushed to the rescue. Only two members of the crew of 23 were saved. The fatal ship was serving as a training ship and this was her second collision since 1926 when she collided with the L-22 in the English Channel. No lives were lost at that time, however,

Merger Rumors Denied

With the taking over of the Bankers Trust and the New York Trust companies by the First National Bank, George Baker, above, of New York, financier and banker, would head the largest financial institution in the country. Heads of all the banks mentioned have denied that the merger will take place despite persistent rumors to the contrary. (International Newsreel) desirable and trustworthy his most intimate friend from a den called on him. If he should express a desire to join the Klan, his friend would tell him that he thought he knew where the Den would meet. He then cautioned the man to say nothing about it and that they would go and see. Of course the meeting was always found and the man admitted into the Klan. The candidate was blindfolded and really knew nothing except what he heard. All the important business was transacted by signs, so after a candidate had taken the oath, and before the Klan unmasked itself, they sometimes had a little fun at his expense. If the candidate was a good singer he was compelled to sing, so when he came to the guard he was halted and asked to sing a song. Once the candidate was what he wanted. He said "I want to join the Ku Klux Klan." The guard answered "I suppose you want to betray us, but the man protested vehemently, so they blindfolded him and marched him over logs, rocks, bushes and all kinds of rough places. Finally he was told that he was in the presence of the Grand Cyclops. He was then sworn in and told that he would have to repeat a verse of original poetry before he could see the faces of the members. He was quiet for a few moments and said: Here I stand, as you see. At the hospital it was said she would recover.

For the purpose of joining the Ku Klux Klan.

And if I betray them, I will be D...d.

"That was enough and they were soon shaking his hand and welcoming him into the Klan. The Ku Klux flag was of yellow silk and bound with red. It was a pennant with a black dragon across. The dragon's head pointed toward the flag pole, and its tail toward the point of the triangle. Its mouth was open and a red tongue protruded. Its eyes were also red. Above the Dragon was this inscription: Quod Semper Quod Ubique." And below was written "Quod Ab Omibus." This means "What always, what everywhere, what by all has been held to be true."

"Now since the negro is very suspicious of his credibility was easily worked up. In this way the plan of the carpet baggers were thwarted. The Klan began to take notice, and especially in any community where there was a Union League. They never stopped to talk to any one, but rode like the wind. The members of the Klan changed their voices by talking down in their throats. They soon became experts and no voice could be recognized except by the Klan. Their work was carried on by these night riders. For instance, if a negro talked too much a squad would call on him and ask him for a drink of water. This was usually brought in a large gourd. The Ku Klux would drink five or six gourds full, and then pick up the bucket and drink every drop. He would then call for more, and tell the astounded negro that that was the first water he had since he was killed at the battle of Shiloh, and that it was mighty hot where he came from. By this time another bucket of water had been brought and he would stand there and drink five or six buckets full. This was made possible by a rubber sack with a long hose attached. He dropped this on the ground so that the water would run out. This of course, was concealed under the robe.

"Sometimes a doctor would take the arm of a skeleton and arrange it so that it would work. He put strings on the fingers and fastened them down with small staples, and let them unite at the wrist. He held this skeleton hand out with his right hand and pulled the cord with his left when he shook hands with the negro. Or sometimes the man would take off his skeleton hand and give it to the negro to hold for him. They always gave the negro some wholesome advice as to how he should conduct himself and one admonition was generally enough.

"The names of the six young men who organized the Ku Klux Klan are now on a bronze tablet on the wall of Judge Jones' old office which still stands in Pulaski, Tenn. Capt. James Crow, the last of the organizers of the Klan, died last in 1919. He had a son in France during the World war, bearing his full name and title, Capt. James Crow.
