

Casas Team Has Fine Record For Season; To Play Union

Has Lost Only One Game Out Of Six. Wants Cloth Mill Game.

(Special to The Star.) Casar, Aug. 19.—The Casar baseball club is not in the Cleveland county league but it has a season's record which it is willing to stack up against the best of them in the county. In the six games played so far the Casar crew has lost only once. The following scores back it up: Union 2, Casar 0. Lawndale 0, Casar 1. Knob Creek 5, Casar 8. Lawndale 10, Casar 12. Polkville 0, Casar 6. Lawndale 4, Casar 10.

This shows that Casar has scored 37 runs to a total of 21 for the opposition. Bonnie Lee Walker, slugger extraordinaire, is the outstanding player of the Casar team. In two games recently he drove out three home runs, two against Lawndale and one against Knob Creek pitching.

Tuesday of this week the Casar boys will play Union at Union. Before the end of the season the Casar team is also anxious to get hold of the Cleveland Cloth mill team now leading the county league, and Casar is willing to play the game in Shelby, if the cloth mill's aggregation will accept the challenge.

Cloth Mill And Eastside Hold To Lead In League

The Eastside and Cleveland Cloth mill baseball clubs held their dizzy position at the top of the Cleveland county league by winning again Saturday. ### Candidates For Congress Talked In Section

(Continued From Page One) congress once, and isn't likely to be anxious to go back. Mecklenburg Candidates. It is likely, the political dopesters say, that a candidate from Charlotte or Mecklenburg would have the best chance to unseat Lincoln's Mr. Jonas, although there is talk of another Lincoln man, W. A. Graham, being the proper person for the job. It is only logical that a Mecklenburg candidate may have the upper hand over any other Democratic nominee, for Mecklenburg casts a big Democratic vote ordinarily—the only county, in fact, which tosses in more Democratic votes than Cleveland, and Cleveland never goes Republican even when Mecklenburg does. But Mecklenburg has one handicap. About every other lawyer and statesman there wants to be the county's candidate. If they all run, or a greater portion of those who want to, they will kill off each other and some Democratic nominees from another county will likely come out with the nomination on his brow.

The Young Folks. Of recent years, and the trend will be more so when the next ballot battle opens, the young voters—the fellows considered mere boys a few years back—will have much to do with the outcome. Things have changed since the World war, and it's hard any day in the year, or any year in a lifetime, to beat the enthusiasm of youth. And a funny thing about youth is that the young voters, who are rapidly getting control of things, do not care so much about where the candidate is from as they do about his pep, personality, and ability. And right at that point is a new factor which must be considered in the oncoming congressional fight. The leaders among the young voters, those of them expressing themselves, are all inclined, so the writer hears from several sources, to get behind one man when the proper time arrives. That particular young fellow, a veteran of the war, may not even know about it, but he is likely to wake up one of these days to find a congressional boom centering about his head. He is, if you haven't guessed, Wilson Warlick, young attorney of Newton, Catawba county. In legal duties young Warlick has made many friends, for the most part because of his ability. Young blood likes young blood and the Newton barrister is a couple of strides ahead of the starter's gun. If he cares to make the race, and if one considers the conversational trend among the young voters and considers that trend worthy of consideration. Yet all prospects indicate that the next congressional fight in this district will be much of a fight, one equalling that of last November, both in the primary and the election—and before it gets here and gets over many new angles will have entered along with the names of many new candidates.

Kill Snake With Twenty-Two Rattles

Lowman Bros. have on display in the window at the Cleveland Hardware company, a huge rattlesnake which they killed in the mountains a few days ago. The snake was crossing the road in front of the Shelby men as they were driving along and was about to escape when one of the men caught it by the tale and retarded its progress until it was killed.

Thousands Attend Rutherford Event There On Friday

Josephus Daniels, The Principal Speaker At Sesqui-Centennial Celebration.

Rutherfordton.—With Josephus Daniels of Raleigh, publisher of the News and Observer and secretary of the navy under Woodrow Wilson, eulogizing Rutherford county, its history and its traditions, thousands of persons gathered here Friday for the sesqui-centennial celebration of the formation of the county.

Mr. Daniels was the principal speaker of the day though a parade and other entertainment features were provided for the amusement of the thousands present.

Mr. Daniels, in glowing terms, vividly pictured the history of Rutherford county from the days when the followers of Hernando De Soto visited the valleys of the county down to the present time when cotton mills, well kept farm, industrial plants and hydro-electric plants dot the landscape. He carried the county through every struggle since the Indian wars before the Revolution down to the World war citing the deeds of immortal names to Rutherford county, especially the name of Griffith Rutherford, for whom the county was named.

The deeds, the hardships and the lasting monuments erected by hardy pioneer school teachers and ministers of the gospel were lauded by the speaker.

Mr. Daniels, in his recital of the venerable history of the county, cited numerous individual names of prominent Rutherford county residents but did not neglect to pay tribute to the unheralded and unsung "average citizenship."

Starting with the arrival of De Soto's men in 1539, Mr. Daniels carried his audience through to the settlement of the section by the Scotch-Irish of the sixteenth century.

In 1776 the large county of Tryon was elected from a part of Mecklenburg county and then, just 150 years ago, he said, the county of Tryon gave way to Lincoln and Rutherford counties.

In the days of the revolution, and in other days, the people of Rutherford county were divided in opinion. Tryon county was one of the three counties in the state to give strongest support to the British in that war and yet more than 800 men bore arms for independence.

Mr. Daniels again turned the years back before the revolution to trace the life of General Griffith Rutherford. His exploits in stamping out Indian uprisings and his work against Ferguson in Western North Carolina were recited.

Indicative of the part played by heroes of Rutherford county in the great war for independence Mr. Daniels cited the gravestones in Britain Presbyterian church nine miles northeast of here, where the graves of many who were soldiers of the revolution are yet marked today.

When it came time to select a new name to replace "Tryon," the name of the "royal governor" who had thwarted where he could the early dreams of independence of the people of North Carolina," the names of two American patriots, Lincoln and Rutherford were selected. Among places where Griffith Rutherford saw service were against the Indians, against the Scovellite Tories in South Carolina and under General Lincoln at Savannah. Mr. Daniels quoted from Ashe, North Carolina historian, "he rendered immediately to the people of North Carolina more original service than any other North Carolinian during the war." Rutherford, after the war, moved to Tennessee and there a county also bears his name.

Horse Show Plans Complete For Event Here This Thursday

The Iron Man of the Diamond

Joe Sewell, Cleveland veteran, earned the title of "The Iron Man of Baseball" when a recent double-header brought his total of consecutive games played up to 1,036. No other big leaguer even approaches this mark. Everett Scott still holds the record with 1,307 consecutive games, but his string has been broken and with a little luck Sewell should reach this mark early in June, 1931. (International Newsweek)

Why He Suicided. Havana—Angel Estrada, veteran editor, a suicide, explains that his action is caused by "deceptions of life, filled only with grief." It is interesting to note that China and Russia saw the wisdom of peaceably settling their own dispute as soon as Japan offered to arbitrate for them.—Southern Lumberman.
