

Prize Winners At Lattimore Community Fair Of Last Week

Lattimore community fair held last week was a most colorful and interesting exhibit, well attended and marked by an increase in the quantity and quality of entries. The exhibit of farm products, livestock, school work, etc. were unusually good.

Several grades in school had a booth while several individual booths by students and others attracted much attention. The Art exhibit was especially good. Paintings of famous citizens of the state and nation were easily identified.

A collection of 45 varieties of grasses and legumes made a most interesting exhibit. Mr. Walter Davis, president of the North Carolina Tar Heel Farmers club had a most interesting exhibit. The boys' work, under the direction of Mr. P. M. Coley, teacher of agriculture, Boy Scout booth and the individual farm exhibits of Mr. Aston Adams and G. L. Hamrick were interesting and well planned.

There was a large collection of canned goods, corn and cotton. We saw one stalk of cotton that had 150 bolls, 85 per cent of the cotton grown in the Lattimore community is Coker's No. 20.

The school auditorium was filled about 10:30 a. m. for the exercises. Prof. Lawton Blanton, principal delivered a short and enthusiastic address which was followed by a most instructive program by the students of Lattimore school. Health, farm life, aprons and dresses made the girls of the domestic science department were features that the big audience enjoyed.

Mr. A. L. Calton, president of the fair spoke briefly and introduced R. E. Price who spoke on "cooperation and education."

In the afternoon athletic events, cotton fashion show and a baseball game were held.

Probe Attack On Preacher In Church

Little Rock, Ark.—Rev. C. P. Walters, Baptist preacher of the Mount Holly community near here who was struck down from behind by a hooded clubber in his pulpit Wednesday night continued to improve in a hospital today while police centered their investigation of the attack in questioning three men arrested late last night.

Rev. Mr. Walters was preaching a revival sermon in a "brush" arbor, when his assailant, believed to have been actuated by rivalry between two Baptist congregations in the same community, suddenly appeared behind him and struck him over the head with a club.

The attacker was shrouded in a white sheet. The congregation was thrown in a panic immediately after the attack by a shot fired near the arbor and the welder of the club escaped. It was believed that he and confederates escaped in an automobile parked nearby.

W. M. Polster, George Qnabe and Herbert Avery, all said to be members of the rival Mount Holly Baptist church were arrested following the incident but were released last night after long questioning. Information given by one of them, officers said, led to the arrest of three other men, Leonard Knabe, son of George Knabe, Alan Brown and Sam Anderson, all residents of the same community. They were held without charge pending a complete investigation today.

Evangelist Ross B. Palmer who has been making headquarters in Cherryville leaves Oct. 1st for Tennessee to visit his brother Walter and sister Gertrude and after a visit with them he goes to California. Mr. Ross is a holiness preacher of note.

Opening Up A Mint.

A preacher said to his congregation. There is a certain man among us who is flirting with another man's wife. Unless he puts five dollars in the collection box his name will be read from the pulpit. When the collection box came in there were 19 five dollar bills in it, and a two-dollar bill with a note pinned to it saying, "This is all the cash I have, but will send the other $3 Wednesday."

Simmons Is Right Handed Tyrus Cobb

Old Master Taught The Modern Sluggish While With The Athletics.

Philadelphia.—Tyrus Raymond Cobb will be only a reporter at the world's series of 1929 but from his press box seat he may see his baseball spirit marching on.

A roundabout compliment was paid the Georgia Peach when Cub pitchers were given their riding orders in two words: "Stop Simmons."

Al Simmons, the No. 1 hitter of the Athletics and of the American league as well, is a righthanded Ty Cobb. There is no physical resemblance between the great batsman of yesterday and his current successor, and their batting styles are vastly different, but in many ways the Simmons of today reminds spectators of the Cobb of yesterday. When Cobb joined the Athletics to have his last fling at baseball Simmons was a good hitter. When Cobb finally left the game he dropped a bat full of base hits and Simmons picked it up. The good batsman had become great. Simmons and Cobb were "roomies" with the Athletics and the young man sat at the feet of a baseball Gamaliel as words of wisdom dropped to be eagerly gobbled up. Al now has practically all the famous mannerisms of Ty. He has that tense alert position in the batter's box and more important to the house of Mack, gets hits as did his mentor, not quite so many, perhaps, but for even great distance. When Simmons came to the majors he was tagged as a player who "puts his foot in the water bucket," meaning that he stepped away from the plate. However, there was a catch in it. Simmons' batting style was unorthodox but he stepped into the ball.

Some close observers have suggested that the Cubs fast ball pitchers will annoy the great Simmons. Al himself was asked for an opinion. "Yeah?" he replied. "Well maybe not. There are some fast ball pitchers in our league, too. Sometimes you can't hit any of 'em. One thing I know, I'll be up there swinging." His efforts probably will not be lessened any by the knowledge that his idol, T. R. Cobb, is looking on.
