Circus Shows In Prison.

Capper's Weekly.

When advance agents of a circus sought permission to show on the outer grounds of the Federal prison at Leavenworth, Kas., the warden, who may have been a horse trader in his day, gave his consent provided the circus agreed to give a performance inside the prison walls, too.

The circus management approved the trade. The warden kept his deal a secret until 4 o'clock on the afternoon of circus day when he ordered the 3000 inmates out to the ballpark inside the walls. Then the surprise was sprung.

There was only room for one ring of the circus, but the pick of all acts were presented and for two hours these 3000 men sat and forgot where they were. Men actually wept as the once familiar scenes brought back memories of home and youth.

"Give us a circus once a month and crime waves for this bunch will become a thing of the past," said Dr. Frederick Cook, himself an inmate, after the performance.

Kill Cotton Stalks, Stop Boll Weevil

Said To Be One Of Best Boll Weevil Control Measures. No Warm Beds Then.

Destroying cotton stalks as soon as possible after the crop is harvested is one boll weevil control measure of immense value in which the entire community could join.

"It is generally admitted that the boll weevil has done more damage over North Carolina this season than ever before," says C. H. Brannon, extension entomologist at State college. "This means that there are tremendous numbers to go into hibernation this winter and to the extent that they survive to that extent will be the early infestation next spring. Unless the weevil has plenty of food just before he goes into hibernation, the pest will not live through the winter. For that reason every cotton grower should destroy the cotton stalks as quickly as possible after the seed cotton has been harvested."

Mr. Brannon says that the earlier the cotton can be picked and the stalks killed, the fewer weevils there will be to survive the winter. But one man alone can do little in controlling the weevil. It must be a community affair because nearby fields are quickly infested from those on which this control has not been followed. Destruction of the stalks is as much a control measure as poisoning and should be considered a regular item now in cotton cultivation.

If it is impossible to harvest the cotton and plow under the stalks before frost, Mr. Brannon suggests the sowing of green cover crops between the rows and later knocking or cutting the stalks. Boll weevils dislike to spend the winter in green and growing crops. They want a warm, dry place protected from the cold.

Wilson Named Captain Of Highs For Contest Today; Wall May Play

Star Veteran Of Line Succeeds Gold As Captain. Injured Quarter May Help Eleven.

Hubert (Newberry) Wilson, veteran line player, is the new captain of the Shelby high football eleven and is next in line behind Milky Gold in the group of grid stars who have been named by their teammates to lead them in battle.

Wilson was elected captain by the golden-jerseyed lads this week preparatory to the crucial clash of the year with Charlotte in Charlotte this afternoon. For two years the hefty, hard-hitting Wilson has been a star guard on Shelby high eleven, and this year with no center to be found Coach Morris transformed the big guard into a ball-snapper and in every game of the season so far he has been a star.

The naming of a captain before the Charlotte game may have a psychological effect on the Morrismen. In years gone by it has been in Charlotte games that Shelby players have risen to the heroic heights of stardom; and it may be that Captain Wilson, leading the weakest eleven Shelby has known in years into action in the big game, will put up such a great underdog scrap that he will emerge a star as did Gold, the captain he succeeded, who became an all-state player by his great end performance against the mightiest of all Charlotte elevens three years ago.

Another factor which gives Shelby fans some hope of getting at least a close contest today is the announcement that Zeno Wall, veteran quarter, who hasn't been in a game this year, may be used at intervals against Charlotte. Young Wall has a trick knee and Coach Morris has been adverse to using him this season because he realizes that ahead of him in college the wiry youngster should have a great football career; but the doctors now say that he can play and all this week the youngster has been roughing it in scrimmages to show his coach that he is fit for the fray.

Despite the doctors and despite the boy's eagerness to help his team battle Charlotte, the Shelby coach declares that he will not send him in as a regular, but that he may use him to run the eleven if Shelby ever gets in striking distance of the goal.

"I know," says the Shelby coach, "that he can gain ground with the best of them even when he jumps along on one leg, and I know, too, that he would fight his heart out for Shelby high, but all of that isn't worth getting him bunged up. If we get anywhere near the Charlotte goal I'll likely use him then to call the proper plays, and I'm telling you if things do break that way Charlotte will have a hard time keeping us from crossing the line."

As it is the Shelby eleven will likely stake its scoring chances today on a passing attack with Rippy flinging the pigskin to Farris and McSwain. But just how the inexperienced Shelby eleven hopes to stop the speedy running of Charlotte's famous little Funderburk and Capt. Laney is another matter. On that factor the size of the score depends.

Farmers And Cooperation.

Nash County News.

It takes faith, strong and a plenty for a physician to labor over a patient when hope of life is all but gone; it takes the same faith for the patient and for the loved ones gathered around. Just so, do those men who took their time and paid their expenses to Washington in an unselfish effort to aid a bad situation, come in for more than usual credit and commendation. Let us hope that the farmer himself will take the matter equally to heart and lend his own cooperation to any means by which his plight can be bettered. The "patient" in this case must first give his own consent to being helped and then lend his own will-power and strength, before very much can ever be done for him.

INDIFFERENCE TO LAW IS DEPLORED

Concord.—Describing indifference to crime as a growing menace to the state and country, Judge A. M. Stack, of Monroe, presiding jurist at the October term of Cabarrus superior court, admonished members of the grand jury to do everything in their power to aid in the cultivation of a local consciousness against lawlessness in his charge.

The presiding officer pointed out that indifference on the part of the public has been a boon to the criminal and that our entire legal structure may be rendered invalid unless a sentiment against wrongdoers is created by our populace.

"Our judges are made helpless when the juries fall to convict. The criminals have neither the fear nor the respect for our courts that they should have and they are growing to be a dangerous factor in our business and industrial life," said the speaker.

Judge Stack impressed upon his hearers the necessity for men and women to think of our laws as applying to themselves rather than solely to the other fellow. He pointed out that in many cases crime is actually condoned and that many good citizens, circumspect in other respects, break certain laws because

Run-Down

"About seven years ago, I was all run-down, worn-out and never felt good," says Mrs. Harry Cantrell, of Cape Girardeau, Mo. "A chair would be more welcome any time than my work."

"I was so tired when I would arise in the morning. Instead of being rested, I felt terrible."

"At last, mother told me to take Cardui, and I did. After the first bottle, I could tell a difference, and when I had taken five bottles the tired feeling was all gone. I felt like a different person, thanks to Cardui. I hope that other mothers will try Cardui. I have been wonderfully benefited by it."

It suits their purpose to do so. People of any community, by their attitude, may determine whether their locality is to be law-abiding or lawless, he said. An overwhelming desire for law observance can make our statutes effective and our courts feared, he pointed out.

"A whole-hearted desire for law and order by the masses would quickly bring about an end to the crime wave and make our courts much more efficient. Mass consciousness of the prevalence of crime will do more to put an end to disorder and lawlessness than anything else," he said.
