Mistress: "I see that another soldier has called for you, Mary. I thought you had only one young man?"

Mary: "Oh, no, mum—two. You see one's a regular and the other's a reserve."

In Peoria, Ill., a drugstore advertised dollar bills on sale at 89 cents each. Four hours elapsed, many saw, passed by. A Scotch barber, on his way to church, entered, bought the lot.

PLANES TO BEAT FOG SOON, LINDY

Noted Flyer Predicts Danger. Poor Planes Within A Period Of Five Years.

New York.—Airplanes capable of taking off and landing with perfect safety no matter how thick a fog may obscure the ground will be developed and in regular service between such cities as New York and Chicago within five years. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, technical adviser to Pan American Airways, told newspaper men at the company's offices in the Chanin building.

"We may need fields two miles square in which to bring them down by radio control," he said, "but machines of that type are the next logical development. They will have to be proof against forced landings too, for we cannot risk being brought down by motor trouble over the Alleghenies with the mountains obscured by fog."

In his opinion, planes equipped with four dependable motors and carrying only as much load as they can keep up with one or more of these power plants out of commission, can be 100 per cent proof against forced landings. Because of their greater efficiency, he added, he believes land planes of this type more desirable than amphibians or flying boats for passenger transport over "reasonable" stretches of water.

Lindbergh, reviewing his recent flight through the West Indies, South and Central America as well as his exploration by air over the Yucatan jungle for the Carnegie Institution, said he had recommended to Pan-American Airways that, when passenger service is inaugurated over its line from Havana to Panama, a slight detour be made at Cosumel Island in order to fly over the Tulum ruins near the Yucatan coast. These remnants of the Mayan Indian civilization are a magnificent sight from the air and well worth the few minutes time required to fly over them, he said.

Frank Hurley of Denver waxed hot when his 14-year-old daughter got married, and threatened to have her and her husband put in jail. He cooled down, however, when Ma Hurley recalled that he had married her when she was only 13.

Mystery, Deep and Dark on the Mississippi

The principal actors in this mystery drama are shown in the picture. (Left to right upper row) Sam Epstein, steward of the "Creole" who is held as a material witness in the murder of Jack Kraft, artist and fencing master. The jail where Epstein is held. "Ione Ord" pretty New York dancer is also held in the quaint jail at Pointe a la Hache. Recent disclosures strip her of the name "Ione Ord" under which she shipped passage for Hollywood with Jack Kraft and reveal her as Gloria Rouzer, daughter of a wealthy New York family, a debutante from an exclusive boarding school. (Bottom row) Jack Kraft, whose death on the S. S. Creole is still a mystery. John McGouldrick, Second Mate of the "Creole" who is named as the slayer. Judge J. Claude Meraux reading the indictment of McGouldrick.

From Classroom to the Clouds Has Been Her Record

Miss Annie Peck, a mountain climber of thirty years ago, who is planning at the age of 72 a flight over the ancient cities and mountains of South America. At the extreme left Miss Peck is shown in her mountain climbing costume of thirty years ago when she scaled many of the loftiest peaks of Europe, Asia and South America. The scene in the center shows Miss Peck's party of by-gone days when she made her record on the Peruvian peaks. At the right we have a close-up of this daring mountain climber as she is today, still young and willing to undertake tasks which others shirk. The erstwhile school teacher will bring the pleasure of viewing from the lofty heights the mountains which in earlier days she scaled.

FORECASTS "REDS" FAILING IN SOUTH

But John J. Leary, Jr., Labor Editor Says Communism Has Made Big Gains

Washington.—The "Reds" are making gains in the South to an extent unsuspected by most of the people. This is the opinion of John J. Leary, Jr., veteran labor editor and writer for the New York World. He predicts eventual downfall because of failure to "deliver the goods to wit, higher wages."

His statement appears in an article in the World. He believes Communism will make even greater progress after the shock of the Charlotte trial wears off. He ascribes this to the peculiar psychology of the hill man, who is accustomed to settling his troubles with rifle and gun, whose sympathy may be aroused through the claims of Communist that Beal and his crowd shot in self defense.

Mr. Leary describes plans of the Communist party in 1925 to invade the South, and says they progressed to a point that strike could have been set off in a dozen towns during the Charlotte trial, but was not done as one of the lawyers for the defense threatened to withdraw from the trial, if it were done.

Race Equality Talk Fails

The Communists got nowhere in the South with their appeals for race equality and miscegenation, failed completely to interest Negroes, but mill workers were ready to listen to talk about higher wages and liberals in schools and colleges, and some cases in the pulpit gave a certain measure of support, Mr. Leary points out.

Mr. Leary was able to find only the opposition of Mrs. Edwin C. Gregory, daughter of Senator Overman, who as State regent of the Daughters American Revolution led a crusade against the Communist two years ago. Evidently Mr. Leary never heard of General Bowley, former commander of Fort Bragg, who crusaded loudest of all against the "Reds."

Praises Nell Battle Lewis

He describes the verbal duel between Mrs. Gregory and Nell Battle Lewis, the latter ridiculing the cry of alarms by the former, which was looked upon by many North Carolinians as a "hen fight." Mr. Leary refers to Miss Lewis as "the Brilliant Raleigh columnist," but takes issue with her contention that an invasion of the "Reds" occasioned no need for alarm.

He anticipates there will be a few more disturbances in North Carolina, a few lynchings, and the tying up of plans of the American Federation of Labor for organizations of labor unions, but believes eventually the Communistic invasion will burn itself out. With no strong trade unions to oppose the invasion, he says little or nothing has been done to check it.

As the Communists cordially hate the American Federation of Labor it will be pleasing to them if they can block its work.

Mr. Leary points out also that American Federation of Labor leaders will shortly have a meeting, either in Raleigh or Charlotte, to map out plans for organizing the textile workers of the South. The labor leaders know they are up against a tough proposition. They think labor injunctions will be a powerful weapon against unionizing employes, and they also lack capable local leaders for organization work.

Maybe So.

An English tourist was telling an Irish peasant about the immense size of the British Empire.

"Well, Pat, and do you know that the sun never sets on the King's dominions?"

"No, your honor," replied Pat. "Well, such is the case," went on the tourist. "But do you know the reason why?"

Pat immediately answered: "I suppose it is because Heaven is afraid to trust an Englishman in the dark."

Rev. B. L. Martin of London characterized the hymns now sung in churches as "sickly, written by suffers from indigestion."

Wake Forest Gets Missions Money

Wake Forest, Oct. 31.—Wake Forest college has been given $6,500 to be held in perpetuity as a special fund for the promotion of missions. Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Roop, of Wake Forest, made the gift, the terms implying that the income may be used for:

1. The education of candidates for the mission field; or,
2. The further training of missionaries on furlough or leave; or,
3. The stimulation of interest in the actual problems of missions or in the countries where missions or now being carried on or may at any future date be undertaken.
