Bring Dead Baby In Car Here To Secure A Casket For Body

Pedestrians Shocked To See Dead Negro Child Carried In Rear Seat Of Car.

A story of a rather gruesome incident which took place on one of Shelby's business streets Tuesday morning was being related here today.

During the morning two automobile loads of negroes, three men and one woman, pulled up to the curb, stopped, and inquired where they might buy a casket for a dead child. Being given the desired information one of the men purchased a casket, the seller no doubt thinking it would be taken to his home where the body likely was, and walked back to one of the two cars. It was then that pedestrians were shocked at what they saw.

Reaching one of the cars, a coach, the man placed the casket at one side of the back seat, reached over to the other side, picked up the body of a dead negro baby, placed it in the casket and drove off.

Where they came from, where they went, or how the baby died is not known since it was only a customary event to those witnessing it until they saw that the dead child was being carried along in the car.

Back To Books For 8,000 Next Monday

Six Months Schools Open For Year. Others Back After Cotton Picking.

Between eight and nine thousand Cleveland county school children will trek back to their books Monday of next week, about five thousand of them going for the first time since last year, while between three and four thousand will be re-summing school work after spending from four to six weeks in the white cotton fields of the county in helping to pick the county's largest cotton crop.

Teachers To Gather. With practically every school in the county resuming work Monday, County Superintendent J. H. Grigg has called a county-wide meeting of teachers to be held here tomorrow, Saturday, at which time plans will be made for teaching the three "R's" during the entire school year in addition to electing officers for the organization of county teachers.

On Monday all the six months schools in the county will open after having the opening delayed two weeks because of the lateness of the cotton picking season. At the same time 12 of the 14 eight months schools in the county will resume their school work after a recess of from four to six weeks to aid the parents of school children in getting out their big cotton crop.

Last year there were 10,238 children in the rural schools of the county and with only two of the long term schools not resuming work Monday it is estimated that between eight and nine thousand youngsters will next week assemble their books and return to the school room. Of this number a little over 2,000 will be colored children.

Some Delay Opening. One or two of the long-term schools, which closed down several weeks back for cotton picking, will not go back to work Monday because the crop lacks quite a bit of being picked in their section. Two of the long term schools are running this week. Grover resuming work week before last, and Cassar this week.

This year more children enrolled in the long term schools of the county than ever before and whether or not the six months schools will be shy in enrollment as a result cannot be told until a check-up is made on attendance figures at the end of the first school week.

During the recess granted for children to aid in cotton picking it is estimated that the children alone have picked around 15,000 bales of cotton.

Morrison Opposes Simmons But Will Not Finance His Rival

Former Governor Reiterates Opposition To Senator But Not Shouldering Burden.

Although former Governor Cameron Morrison, in a statement to State newspapers yesterday, expressed the opinion that the renomination of Senator Simmons would be "most unwise and make for discord and disruption as no other nomination could" and announced positively that he would not support the senior senator in the forthcoming Democratic primary "if any good candidate runs against him," he declared that he is not going to be "shouldered with the burden, financial or otherwise, of anybody's candidacy against him."

The statement, the former governor declared, was given out to supplement a statement made by him in Raleigh several days ago in which he discussed the probable candidacy of Senator Simmons to succeed himself. It follows in full:

Store Teeth Stray Off From Owner

Shower Bath Patron Leaves Teeth At Local Barbershop. Want To Locate Him.

FOUND—Perfectly good set of store teeth. Owner may have same by identifying and paying for this ad.

The above "want ad" came very near appearing in The Star today signed by a local barbershop. Yesterday morning the shine boy of a Shelby tonsorial and bobbing parlor came to The Star and wanted to know what it would cost to advertise for a man who came to the barbershop and left his store teeth. He failed to return after securing his information, and presumably the owner realized about noon that he had laid his teeth on a shelf while taking a shower at the barbershop.

Will Robinson, of Casar Section, Shot While Resisting Arrest, Message Here States.

Will Robinson, of the Casar section, who left this county several weeks back and has been sought by local officers, was seriously, if not mortally, wounded last night in Chase City, Virginia, when shot by officers there, according to a telephone message to Sheriff Irvin M. Allen here last night from the police chief at Chase City.

The Virginia officer told Sheriff Allen that Robinson, who had been caught by them once and had escaped, was shot while officers there were attempting to arrest him again. Several Charges. Local officers say that they wanted Robinson on liquor charges here as well as for leaving his wife and going off with another woman, who it is said was with him in Virginia. Before leaving this county, it is said that he had shot at officers attempting to arrest him.

A week ago Chase City officers captured Robinson and were holding him on liquor and white slavery charges. May Move Wake Forest Medical School To Winston Hospital

Alumni Favor Joining School With Baptist Hospital And Nurses School There.

Wake Forest college medical school may be moved to Winston-Salem, and coordinated with the Baptist hospital in that city. This developed from conversation and unofficial conferences of alumni here Wednesday and Thursday.

Egbert L. Davis, Winston-Salem, president of the alumni association, and on the board of the Baptist hospital, said that an opinion seems to prevail among alumni with whom the matter was discussed that the whole idea is not feasible but logical, and that developments in the near future may lead to such a move on the part of Wake Forest college officials.

Will Hold Centennial Convention At Raleigh, Aid For Church College Given.

By a standing vote the Baptist state convention Wednesday afternoon approved reports of its committee to permit Wake Forest college to carry forward its building fund campaign for $250,000 and pledged itself to complete the centennial campaign for Christian education.

The denomination called upon its membership to go ahead with "new zeal" in collecting pledges.

The week beginning November 24 was designated as "Loyalty Week" for attention to the centennial fund.

The convention observes its centennial celebration at Raleigh next November and the annual sermon will be preached by Dr. J. R. Jester, Winston-Salem, with Dr. C. H. Durham, Lumberton, named as alternate.

Wednesday evening the theme was missions, especially home and foreign, and the main addresses of the evening were made by Dr. J. E. Lawrence, newly elected secretary of the southern Baptist home mission board, and Edwin McNeill Potest, Jr., Raleigh, just back from 12 years in China. The spiritual force of the messages, and the inspiration of the hour were powerful.

Christian education and business occupied the afternoon session, with D. Y. P. U. being presented by Secretary James A. Ivey. For the educational report M. A. Huggins, secretary of the board, was heard.

Senator Simmons Is Loser In Bank Crash

Washington—Senator Simmons, North Carolina, veteran Democratic tariff leader, revealed Thursday that he is anxious for the senate to adjourn to North Carolina to attend to private business affairs affected by the failure of a New Bern bank.

Simmons said he lost about $3,000 by failure of the bank, which he added is all the money he has outside of his senate salary, though he owns some property in North Carolina. He expressed regret he had not been in North Carolina when the failure occurred.

"I don't know whether I'll ever get any of it back," he said. It is reported that Simmons is not the only senator anxious to return home for business reasons. Several others want to get back to attend to private business affairs, which, in some cases, it is understood, have been adversely affected by the stock market crash and its reaction.

Rev. John W. Suttle Re-elected Vice President, Dr. Zeno Wall New, Potest Speaks.

Shelby not only entertained the State Baptist convention for the fourth time this week, but at the concluding session of the church body Thursday morning two Shelby preachers were named in the election of four convention officers.

Dr. J. Clyde Turner, of Greensboro, was re-elected president of the convention. Rev. John W. Suttle, veteran Baptist minister of Shelby, was re-elected vice president, and the other vice presidents were Dr. Zeno Wall, pastor of the First Baptist church, which entertained the convention, and Dr. J. R. Jester, of Winston-Salem.

Two Conventions. Next year the Baptist of North Carolina, between 1,200 and 2,000 of whom were in attendance at the convention here, will hold two conventions. The first will be at Greenville on March 29, 1930, at which time the church will celebrate the centennial of its birth, the State Baptist convention being organized there 100 years ago. No business will be transacted at this gathering as the regular business convention will be held at Raleigh later in the year.

Potest Speaks. A feature of the final session Thursday, before the hundreds of pastors and delegates boarded buses and trains at noon and left town, in addition to the election of officers was the speech of Dr. William Louis Potest, president emeritus of Wake Forest college, in delivering the report of the committee on public morals.

"As an organized body of Christians we are committed to the Christian standard of morality and the Christian program of individual and social righteousness," Dr. W. L. Potest told the convention as he opened his address on "Public Morals."

"A survey of the business community provides little grounds for hope that greed, will ever acquire self-restraint or industry put its own house in order," he continued. "Recent industrial strife, stained with tragedy and the partial failure of justice, within the bounds of this convention calls for rebuke and a fresh assertion of inescapable authority of Christ's law of brotherhood in the world of business. Wage payers have obligations to face as well as wage earners."

Among the rights of wage payers is the right of protection of property against violence and interference. Among the rights of wage earners is the right to organize just as the owners organize.

Guaranteed To All. "And these rights are guaranteed to employers and employees alike without regard to the opinions which they hold, without partiality in the administration of the law."

The committee, through the address by Dr. Potest, which brought the convention to a close shortly after noon today, anticipated that its report might be declared outside the province of a denominational convention.

Takes Dry Stand. The convention, through that committee also, reaffirmed "its support of the Anti-Saloon League and all the agencies which serve the cause of prohibition" and urged that "the ministers and members of affiliated churches use their best endeavors to create and maintain an
