Nancy Hawkins Dies On Monday Morning

(Special to The Star.) The death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hawkins and took away their darling baby Nancy Caroline, who was seven months old. Little Nancy had been sick for a week or more and was thought to be improving when she took a change for worse and died early Monday morning. The family will miss her much. But she is with the Heavenly Father where there is no death or sorrow.

Injured Girl Home.

Inez Gaskey, small school girl, who was hit by an automobile Monday at noon, left the Shelby hospital yesterday at noon for her home on Lineberger street. She was struck by a car while crossing the intersection where Lineberger street runs into the Cleveland Springs road. There were no fractures, it was said at the hospital, and the girl was unconscious for a short time due to a cerebral concussion.

POLICEMAN'S BULLET PIERCED STEER, HIT MAN IN MOUTH

Kansas City, Mo.—An echo of the battle several policemen fought with a Texas steer in the center of Kansas City's retail district recently was heard in circuit court when a $7,500 suit was filed against the Kansas City Stock Yards company and the Kansas City Live Stock Commission company. The plaintiff was Charles S. Davis, who said in his petition that he saw a wild steer at large, contrary to the laws of the city. A policeman, in attempting to stop the steer, fired a shot which passed through the steer, hit the pavement and then struck Davis in the mouth.

Wilfred Smith, 18, of Pontiac, Mich., was sentenced to five days in jail for stealing five apples. Handsome antique chairs found in the poorhouse in Ipswich, Eng., brought $10,000 at auction.

Merchants Stage Big Dinner Here

(Continued from page one.) dinner at the hotel, which met with unanimous endorsement. Mgr. Blackwell of the Western Union put over an idea which got the enthusiasm of the crowd, to send out five hundred telegrams over the Western Union, of course) to prominent people in town on the rim of the Shelby trading territory. The plan got an endorsement from Rush Hamrick, T. W. Hamrick, J. A. Liles, Charles L. Eskridge in brief speeches, and was put over. Five hundred messages, in the form of invitation to do your Christmas shopping early, and in Shelby, will be sent (that was the number agreed upon last night), which service will cost each merchant only a dollar and a half. Smith, manager of Sterchi's, was the first formal speaker. Mr. Smith told of falling in love with Shelby three years ago, on a trip through here on his way from Asheville to Charlotte. He emphasized the fact that he got a drink going and coming through the town—he said he bought both of them at Frank Hoey's drug store—which may have had something to do with his affection for the place. Now that he is here, and sees the city at close range, has embraced it, so to speak, he thinks more of it than ever. He said he feels more at home in Shelby after some six weeks of residence than he did in Asheville after living in that town four years, (apause.) Diner, (aside)—"What's her name?" Mr. Smith had some serious remarks to make about the furniture business, Sterchi's being the latest; addition to the furniture establishments of the city. He said ninety-two percent of the furniture bought in the United States is bought on the easy payment plan. J. C. Newton made a speech that was a classic. This scribbler will say it was the best brief post-prandial discourse he has listened to since becoming a resident of North Carolina. Boosting for home trading he made this crack: "If a town is good enough to live in, it's good enough to buy in." He paid a tribute to newspaper advertising—which hasn't a thing in the world to do with the commitment paid him in the second paragraph up)—saying a newspaper is the pulse beat of the community, and that local newspaper advertising is unquestionably a great factor for building business. He said he heard it stated from a representative of one of the big mail order houses that where the house finds a town in which the merchants do not advertise in the local paper, they swoop down upon that community with all the force at their command, flooding the city with catalogues, realizing such a place is open for foreign trading. Amongst those present were the following: Henry Mills, E. E. Scott, W. E. Vickery, Dr. S. S. Royster, Charles L. Eskridge, Charles Buice, W. E. Koon, Carr Mull, Mr. Beck of Beck and Pratt; B. O. Hunting Licenses Selling Fast Now

Today is the day that hunters of Cleveland county rally forth after quail and rabbits. With the opening of the two big hunting seasons Mike H. Austell, county game warden, says that for several days hunting licenses have been selling rapidly.
