Whereupon the visitor face are the speeches I have made reached in his vest pocket, hauled out a newspaper clipping, and said "Yes, I have that statement right here." He didn't say so, but one could tell by the twinkle in his eye that he believed that statement held over a few months might give his rival trouble.

No doubt it will, and that is why the colyum classes the visiting candidate as an expert politician. He perhaps has never read after Lloyd George or any other foreign statesman, for North Carolina leaders, as we observe, seldom travel far from home to find a model whereby they may shape themselves. Yet in his political career to date he has reached a conclusion that has also eman-

DENTIST ABANDONS DRILLS

Dodge City, Kan.-When a plan was suggested to have a statue on Boot Hill commemorative of the cowboy who dubbed this town the "cowboy capital," the question of a sculptor came up.

"I'll make a statue," said Dr. O. H. Simpson a pioneer dentist, most of whose modeling had been for artificial teeth.

In three months he completed a

Interesting information comes from Idaho that the State Geographical society of Idaho has formally adopted a suggestion that the highest mountain in the State be named "Mount Borah." In announcing this decision a statement is made that the mountain is part of the Pahsimerel range and "has withstood the shock of many centuries of storm resisting the elements with adamantine vigor."
