PRISONER SECURES FREEDOM AND RICH WIFE IN ENGLAND

Man Paid $30,000 For Wrongful Imprisonment And Announces Wedding Plans.

London.—Oscar Slater, who spent nearly 20 years of his life under sentence and conviction for murder, only finally to be exonerated and awarded $30,000 for wrongful imprisonment, was said by The Daily Mail to be contemplating marriage with a full blooded South African Kaffir woman.
"My fiancée was born in Basutoland," The Mail quoted Slater in an interview given at Glasgow, "where her parents, who are wealthy, have plantations. I met her more than 20 years ago when staying in Paris. She then was scarcely 20 years of age and had just finished her education.
"We wrote to each other occasionally but I did not see her for many years until one day when I was in Peterhead Prison she came from Paris to see me. Her faith in me comforted me tremendously. Throughout long years in prison we wrote and when I was released we met in Glasgow and became engaged. She now is staying in Glasgow where the marriage may take place in April."

Accused Of Murder.
Slater was accused of the murder in 1908 of Miss Mary Gilchrist, an aged woman, although he was not arrested until the following year, when Glasgow agents met him as he stepped from the Lusitania at New York. He was extradited, tried, convicted and sentenced to death. His sentence later was commuted to life imprisonment.
Scottish law at the time did not provide for criminal case appeals but from agitation growing out of Slater's case a special act of parliament was passed creating a court of criminal appeals for Scotland. His friends won international support for his case with representations that although a maid of the murdered woman had identified another man as the slayer this fact was not presented to the jury.

Tells Of Burial Of Robert Lee's Horse
Woman Says Son Of Leader Supervised Interment, Victim Of Lockjaw.

Lexington, Va.—The burial of "Traveler," Gen. Robert E. Lee's war horse, was described here by Mrs. Margaret Letcher Showell, of Letcher avenue, who, as a twelve-year-old girl, was one of the eight persons who made up the funeral cortege.
Mrs. Showell contradicts the common belief that "Traveler" was merely "pushed over the cliff" after his death, and describes his burial as an affair as solemn as that of his master.
"Traveler stepped on a nail," Mrs. Showell explained, "and died of lockjaw a few days later. For several days and nights preceding the horse's death, Gen. Curtis Lee, oldest son of Robert E. Lee, and who succeeded his father as president of Washington college, now Washington and Lee university, and visitors at the Lee home sat beside the wounded animal. Utmost care and attention was given him.
"After Traveler's death, Gen. Curtis Lee, accompanied by three little girls and myself, and assisted by three colored men, buried him under a tree in the ravine behind Washington and Lee university.
"A dead silence was kept throughout the burial. Not a word was spoken from the time we got out from the stable, which still stands behind the president's home, there now, until we left the grave. I shall always remember the tender grasp of Gen. Curtis Lee's face as he stood with bared head beside the grave."
Mrs. Showell explained that a large hole was dug for Traveler's grave. The floor of his hole was covered with boards and the horse was dragged onto this flooring. The carcass was then covered with lime and the sides and a top were fitted to the planking in the bottom of the hole, thus enclosing the horse in a sealed wooden casket.
"Gen. Curtis Lee himself spread Traveler's blanket over him before the top was placed on the box," Mrs. Showell said. "Curtis Lee was as fond of Traveler as father had been. He was very sad as he walked away from the grave."
In 1907, funds to have the skeleton of Traveler mounted were donated by Joseph Bryan of Richmond. The skeleton now stands in a glass case in the basement of Lee Memorial chapel on the campus of Washington and Lee University.
