GOING THROUGH LIFE IN HIGH IS COSTLY

Over-Stimulation of the Emotions, Whether at Work or Play, Causes Numberless Ills, Noted Health Authority Points Out.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
 United States Senator from New York.
 Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

THERE is no doubt that the high tension of modern life has its effect on the health of the public. The emotions are permitted to react too high a tension. Yet it is no, so much the work we do that tires the body organism. The fatigue results from over-stimulation of the nervous system. Over-stimulation of the emotions causes numberless ill. Among them are digestive disorders, high blood pressure, disturbances of the vital organs, diabetes, goitre, and plenty of other troubles. Perhaps the avoidance of over-stimulation of the emotions is not the most important thing in keeping health. But it is so important that physicians now are turning their thoughts and study to it as a basic cause of disease. It is a recognized fact that under some conditions "a strong emotion can inflict a physical injury, just as truly as a knife," as Dr. Charles P. Emerson said at a recent meeting of the Indiana University School of Medicine. "Our emotions are kept under such a high tension," he said, "that they cannot fail to fatigue the organs through which the emotions express themselves physically."

And what follow when you are "tired out" from the day's strain on the emotions? Do you spend the night dancing to jazz music? Do you indulge in any other, exciting pursuit where your laded nerves are kept taut until all hours of the night?

Living in the world we do, we need rest and quiet to offset the noise and confusion of city life. We must have it to overcome the rush of business, or the effect of the contacts we have in whatever environment we are placed.

We know that mind does react mightily on the functions of the body. The person who is always worrying over this thing and that, the one who holds to anger, or fear of things, is most surely going to have ill health sooner or later.

Since the time of Hippocrates, physicians have sought to have their patients use their emotions to better their condition. To keep a cheerful state of mind and a bright outlook helps very much toward recovery in many a serious illness. Keeping a calm, optimistic attitude and a happy heart does something marvelously curative to the body. To transform an unhappy patient into a happy one causes a distinct chemical change to take place in the entire system. Very soon he finds himself better.

Physicians today are making a profound study of these strange emotions. Never before have they been able to deal with many of their problems so efficiently as now.

THANK YOU. Q.—What can be done for laryngitis?
 A.—Remove the source of irritation first of all. Your doctor will outline the necessary treatment.

THANK YOU. Q.—If the back has been affected by decayed teeth how long will it take to notice improvement after the source of the trouble has been removed?
 A.—It depends upon the extent and seriousness of the underlying infection. In some instances there is marked improvement within a short time; in others it takes quite a while before results are noticeable.

THANK YOU. Q.—What causes pains in the calves of the legs at night?
 A.—This may be due to poor circulation, overexertion or constipation.

THANK YOU. Q.—What do you advise for indigestion?
 A.—Correct your diet and avoid poor elimination.

THANK YOU. Q.—I am a girl of 14. I feel ill in fall. What should I do?
 A.—Correct your diet and avoid poor elimination.
