Lighthouses In U. S. Are On The Increase

Wall Street Journal.

When thinking of lighthouses, one usually pictures to himself a dreary promontory on the sea coast, with the turbulent waves dashing against the leadfast rock, on which is perched in precarious-looking position the lighthouse. But the day of progress is here and besides the task of lighting the way for mariners, the bureau of lighthouses, department of commerce, has to see to it that those new sailors the "pilots of the air" are guided unerringly on their way over the air routes of the country. For this purpose the bureau of lighthouses has the airways division. This section of the bureau had in employment on June 30, 1929, 1,189 men. During the fiscal year ended with June 30, last, 10 additional radio beacons were established and 12 stations were under construction, total in operation or June 30 being 64. About 4,268 additional miles of airways were added, covering 17 different routes. At the close of the fiscal year 20,183 miles of airways were provided with aids to navigation, including 1,408 lighted beacons and seven radio ranges.

Mr. Hayne Patterson is seriously ill at his home at Patterson Springs. He is suffering with a long standing stomach trouble and relatives say that during Christmas he was dangerously ill, but rallied somewhat yesterday. Mr. Patterson is one of the leading farmers of No. 3 Township.

R. A. Wilder of Knightdale, route one, Wake county, won the Southern Railway silver trophy cup for the best ten ears of corn produced in the South this season.

NEW DUKE PLANT NEARLY FINISHED

Announcement Made By Dr. Few That It Will Be Occupied In September.

Durham—Announcement was made recently by President W. P. Few, of Duke university, that the new plant of the university, consisting of a large group of stone buildings of Gothic design, will be occupied next September. The new university plant has been under construction for nearly three years, work having been started early in January, 1927.

The moving of all departments of the university to the new home means that the old campus facilities, including its group of 12 handsome new buildings completed three years ago, will be available the next academic year for the uses of the Coordinate College for Women. All other departments of the university will be moved during the coming summer to the new unit that is being built on the adjoining 4,000-acre campus.

First of the structures on the new campus to be used will be the hospital with 400 beds and the outpatient clinic which will begin operation on July 1. The School of Medicine will admit, carefully selected first and third year students on the following October 1. This school has equipment and laboratories for 300 students, and is headed by Dr. W. C. Davison, dean.

The other departments of the university—the college, the graduate and professional schools of law, theology, and arts and sciences—will open at the new plant on September 24, it was stated.

With the beginning of the next academic year the college for women will take over the presently university-occupied plant. The new college will limit to 250 the number of students to be admitted to the freshman class. The processes of selective admission will be used in accepting students for both the colleges and all the graduate and professional schools, thus at another point is the expansion of Duke being carried out in the spirit of the hope expressed by James B. Duke, who said in making his far-reaching gift to the institution: "I recommend that great care and discrimination be exercised in admitting as students only those whose previous records show a character, determination, and application evincing a real ambition for life."

Regarded as the greatest university construction program ever undertaken at one time, the completed university plant will be modern in respect to appointments and equipment, affording students ample facilities for study, research, and recreation in the midst of pleasing surroundings.

Dewey Rollins and Miss Essie Hunt Are Married In Gaffney, Holiday Visitors.

(Special To The Star.) Shelby R-2.—Everybody seems to be having a merry Christmas in spite of the unusually cold weather and snow.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hawkins of High Point spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hawkins.

Mr. Clive Harrill is at home for the Christmas holidays.

Miss Norine Rollins spent a few days in Gaffney recently.

City Schools Will Take Up Again On January 2nd

Pupils of the city schools and 75 teachers are enjoying the Christmas holidays, the out-of-town teachers visiting their homes in various places. On January 2 the city schools will resume their work and on that day, approximately 3,000 school children will trek back to their class rooms.

Superintendent B. L. Smith issues the following greetings and appeal to the patrons of the Shelby schools:

"I heartily extend to you the season's greetings. The schools of Shelby belong to you. They stand ready to serve you every interest to the utmost of their capacity. Every employee from superintendent to janitor is a public servant and as such endeavors to render the highest possible service.

In a changing civilization such as we live in schools must change. It will be the fixed purpose of those who administer the schools and those who teach in them to see to it that they themselves keep pace with the advancing strides of the times.

May I not confidently hope that for the sake of the childhood of this town, you take stock of the educational assets of the community, discard the worthless, and restock with that which will serve the demands and needs of the town? When paved highways, fast automobiles, electric lights, radios, and airplanes are the order of the day, may it not be hoped that the pathways of knowledge and the avenues of thought be made smooth and that the illumination of the spirit be facilitated?

Realizing that educational and spiritual needs of a community stand next to the needs for food, clothing, and shelter, may we not all highly resolve to re-dedicate ourselves to the task of supplying these fundamental and imperative needs.

After short talks from all members of the high school faculty and many students at the very beginning of the meeting as to the value of such a club and the advisability of organizing the following students were elected to be its officers: George Bland, president; Jesse Harrill, vice-president; Ethel McKinney secretary-treasurer, and Kathleen Turner, reporter.

My head would hurt—felt like it would split open. Spells of weakness would last for weeks. I read of Cardui. I sent for a bottle and began taking it. My case was stubborn, and at times I almost lost hope, but I could see a little improvement. At last I began to feel much better. Then I improved rapidly. For the last year I have been in better health than I ever have been before. I give the credit to Cardui, for after I had given it a thorough trial, I got well."

Ellenboro Students Organize A Club

Will Develop Themselves In A Social Way. Banquet Is Planned Letter.

(Special To The Star.)

Ellenboro, Dec. 26.—To develop a better school spirit and the highest social relationship between students the Ellenboro High school students met in the school and organized a Student's Body Club last Friday when Professor Curtis Price who heads the Ellenboro school was presented with a beautiful ink stand and pen, by the teachers of the school, and when the high school students were given a Christmas treat at the expense of the high school teachers.

The purpose of the club is to develop the students in a social way, and to this end a banquet for the whole high school was one of the things discussed to be on the program of work for the year. In addition to teaching reading, writing and arithmetic, surely, it is the duty of our modern high schools to teach students how to conduct themselves at social gatherings, and how to associate with members of our co-operative society in the highest possible standard.

After short talks from all members of the high school faculty and many students at the very beginning of the meeting as to the value of such a club and the advisability of organizing the following students were elected to be its officers: George Bland, president; Jesse Harrill, vice-president; Ethel McKinney secretary-treasurer, and Kathleen Turner, reporter.
