TWINKLES

Our tribute for unadulterated nerve and gall goes to as fellow Rigby, city manager of Charlotte. In addressing a gathering of Charlotte women last week he chose as his subject "Mind Your Own Business." Wonder if he's married?

"Save a little" is Governor Gardner's slogan for 1930. At first glance it may seem to some an insignificant phrase, but follow it during the year and see what happens. The person who spends a little less in 1930 than he makes will be far happier, the governor reasons, and for him the future will have more in store.

RYBURN FIGHTS LEGAL BATTLES IN QUIET OF HIS STUDY

PEOPLE of this section who really know Bob Ryburn will appreciate tribute paid him by the editor of The Lexington Dispatch:

"Shelby lawyers last week elected Robert L. Ryburn as president as of their bar association. The Cleveland Star speaks of Mr. Ryburn as 'one of the best known and most highly respected barristers in this section,' and in doing so it passes no merely hackneyed compliment. It might have gone further and said that he is one of the ablest lawyers in his part of the state. Outside of Cleveland and a few nearby counties Bob Ryburn is virtually unknown, though what schoolboy in North Carolina but has heard of Clyde Hoey, Max Gardner and the Judges Webb, who brought the bar of Cleveland a bright renown.

"Mr. Ryburn is the senior partner of the scintillating Hoey. Publicly he perhaps never scintillated in his life, but in the quiet of his study many a great legal battle has been planned with careful detail. He has been as perfect a complement for Hoey perhaps as few men have had."

EHRINGHAUS COMPLIMENTED

THE NEXT gubernatorial campaign is somewhat in the future and has been made more so by the increasing interest in the Simmons-Bailey race, yet the Democratic drive for the governorship continues to attract attention. In among the other items and opinions centering about the 1932 campaign race is an editorial in the Elizabeth City Independent, the Saunders paper, which pays a double-barreled tribute to J. C. B. Ehringhaus, who lives in Saunders' town. The Independent in discussing the 1932 campaign speaks highly of Ehringhaus and makes mention, too, of the Ehringhaus personality—and those who have met him declare that he has the most winning personality of any man in the State.

MISS COBB SHOWS AN ERROR IN ONE POLITICAL ARGUMENT.

SINCE THE Simmons-Bailey controversy got underway there have been those, unusually Simmons supporters, who charge that the people who support Bailey are none other than those who were "Hyped," to use their own expression, on Al Smith. That statement is certainly erroneous. Of course there will be many Democrats who will not support Simmons because he refused to support the Democratic nominee. But to say that this class will be the only one opposed to Simmons in his own party is to close the eyes and the memory to the past.

Mr. Simmons has never been a great hero with all of his party. Many a hot political argument centered about Simmons years before Smith was thought of as the Democratic nominee. Numerous elections prior to 1923 there were many voters who ordinarily were classed as good Democrats, but were, also, known as reluctant Democrats when the Simmons angle came up. We do not know how many Democrats will vote for J. W. Bailey, yet we know that there will be quite a number who were not ardent Smith supporters, for in this state there are scores and scores of Democrats who voted for the other fellow when Simmons had opposition in the past and would have voted that way upon other occasions had the opportunity presented itself.

It's going a bit too far, if party harmony is to be maintained, to label every Bailey supporter as "a red-hot wet Smith man." Up at Morganton, where Miss Beatrice Cobb edits The News-Herald, is a good example of what we are trying to get over, and it's in Miss Cobb herself. The Morganton editress was a delegate to the Houston convention. She was not for Smith when she left home and she was opposed to Smith at the convention. After the New Yorker was nominated she was still of the opinion that another should have been the standard-bearer, yet in the election she supported the man nominated by the majority of her party. One could hardly label her "a red-hot Smith supporter." Yet when Mr. Bailey announced for the Senate Miss Cobb immediately stated that she would support him, not primarily because Simmons refused to abide the dictates of his party convention but because she believed that 30 years, under Democratic principles, is long enough for one man to hold office. She stated that she could not see how a party could longer be obligated to one who has lived upon it for three decades. She further reasons it out that Mr. Simmons, in one way of looking at it, is a democrat for "What he himself can get out of it." She recalls that Mr. Simmons left the party but now "he has come back into the fold, after falling away from his own preachments, and the only plausible explanation is that he is and has been a Democrat for what he himself can get out of it—a seat in the United States senate."

Many others feel that way, and they felt the same way before the 1928 campaign. Being a Democrat has been a profitable profession for Senator Simmons even though he says he is poverty-stricken after 30 years in an office which now pays a salary close to $1,000 per month. Farmers who are thankful to get 13 cents for their weather-beaten cotton may fail to understand the financial straits of a man with a $10,000 annual salary.

No. All the Bailey supporters will not be recruited from the ranks of original Smithites in North Carolina. What of those who voted against Mr. Simmons in 1912? There will be quite a number of good dry, Protestant votes cast for Mr. Bailey which are not and have never been influenced by Smith sentiment, and they will not appreciate the innuendo that such is not the case.

Nobody's Business

GEE McGEE

Clear The Track For Prosperity. In order that we might carry out Pres. Hoover's prosperity scheme, we must all say—"Every day is every way, business is better and better."

The end of the gamblers orgy in Wall street is going to prove a blessing in the long run. Folks will return to gainful occupations and rid their minds of the crap-shooting bug. A boom in any commodity or locality means utter ruin at the terminus of the rainbow.

Doctors must help in this psychological drive. It shall be their duty to go from patient to patient explaining that the other one is much sicker than you and that collections are fine and that there's more sickness in their respective communities than they ever heard of before and they are as busy as a woman at a bargain counter.

Cotton mills that have been closed down for lack of orders must publish a statement setting forth the fact that the mill is closed for repairs and getting up new machinery. Coal dealers who are peddling out fuel in 50-cent quantities must talk it around that they are too busy to go home for dinner and enter all orders calling for less than a dollar's worth of stuff as 2 tons or more.

Chamber of Commerce can help by sending Mr. Hoover a list of the proposed improvements and building operations in their respective towns, for instance: 64 new filling stations are under construction in our town and vicinity. 14 back piazzas are being floored in West End and the 1799 cars that were without license tags are being gradually tagged an oozing out of their hiding places, thanks to the Intermediate Credit Bank.

Children in school shall be required to say the following 24 times a day: "Every day in every way, pa says business is getting gooder and gooder." Banks shall pile all of their money on the desks just beside where ticks (on the outside) can see it and bank clerks must constantly holler at the president and ask him where to pile that last train load of 20 dollar-bills that has just arrived.

Service clubs should spread the glad tidings of the "business rush" that is now abroad in the land. If a man should be heard to say that business is dull, a member of a service club should be delegated to go and shoot him behind the smokehouse immediately. After each meeting, the president of the club should send Mr. Hoover the following telegram: "Every day in every way, business is better and better."

Yes sir ree, Gentlemen! business is just what we say it is, so don't let anybody hear you grumble. If you take in a dime count it as 10 dollars. Boost everything and everybody. Tote big bundles out of your store or hire somebody else to do so and let them fetch them back through the back door. Every shoulder must be put to the wheel, and push, push, PUSH That's all we need to bring back our wanted prosperity.

Ship Ahoj! The New Year is 20 days old. All of us have had time to take stock of ourselves and our worldly goods. The majority of the people are worse off than they were a year ago. But we are headed for better times.

The sorry crops and low prices of last year will help to return us to our senses.

The farmers will profit by their experiences. They will use less fertilizer and less gas and less extravagance and will grow the next crop for 30 per cent less.

Real estate is flat of its back and has not a friend. The landlords are worse off than the tenants. Whoever a land-owner engages to help him work his farm, he has to agree to adopt that person and his wife and his children into his own family. He must furnish rations, clothing, school books, pills, and coffins for them if they must have such. The time has come when the tenant must learn to do a little looking out for himself.

The present Republican administration has dabbled into everything and has done nothing with anything. It has adjusted the tariff to suit a few and hurt a great many. It has passed a farm relief bill that doesn't relieve. It has shot more "bull than has ever been shot before, but that stuff does not "take" any more. The trend is toward monopoly for the classes and poverty for the great and near great. But that trend can be reversed.

There has been more progress in church building and school expansion and road construction during the past 10 years than materialized during 40 years prior to the World war. We have issued bonds and debentures and mortgages in so great an amount and quantity that our great grand-children will be "swamped" with our obligations. We can not now return to what used to be called normalcy. We have been so opiated with our apparent wealth that we have almost forgotten that all debts, social, financial and moral MUST BE PAID.

But after all, he who works may eat. The time might yet come when a poor man will prefer a home of his own to a car partly his own. A thousand-dollar tract of land will last for all time, but a thousand-dollar job-bug will be junked in 3 years. Most of us are blind, some are running wild, and the rest of us are depending on the other fellow. Just to get to the point before this sheet of paper gives out, I want to say that the time has arrived when every tub must needs sit on its own bottom. That means three things: 1—Work; 2—Work; 3—Work.

GIVEN LESS THAN FIVE YEARS FOR STEALING HALF MILLION New York—Pleading guilty to defalcations totaling approximately $500,000. Cornelius Callahan, former assistant secretary of the Bancitaly corporation, was sentenced to a term of from two and one-half to five years in Sing-Sing prison. In passing sentence Judge Cornelius F. Collins of general sessions said: "His life has been practically blighted by his dishonesty and his family has been disgraced. I am taking this in consideration in passing sentence."
