

Rutherford Bank Crash Has No Effect On Local Banks

so no ill effect will be spread to this section. A number of years ago the Union Trust Co., of Shelby bought the branch bank at Lattimore from the Farmers Bank and Trust Co. at Forest City. Now the Union Bank at Lattimore is a branch of the Union Trust at Shelby and has no connection with our Rutherford county bank.

"The banks of Cleveland were never in a stronger position financially," declared Mr. Blanton, "and they will be able to take care of all legitimate needs in the way of loans to farmers and others. We should go right along as if nothing had happened, for the Rutherford failure has no connection with our county whatever."

Working Wives Need Jobs, Survey Shows

Labor Department Says Husbands Do Not Make Enough Or Are Divorced From Them.

Washington—A cross-sectional tabulation made by the Women's bureau of the department of labor showed, it was announced that nine-tenths of married women seeking employment did so because their husbands either made an insufficient amount to support the family or because the husband had ceased to contribute because of divorce, separation and other causes.

"Do women with husbands to support them take jobs from single women in need of work?" the department's statement set forth. "The vociferous volume of public opinion prone to answer this in the affirmative has been given a staggering blow. The survey just made shows that the discrimination against married women may be unjust and work hardship, as over two-thirds of the married women included in the investigation stated they were without a husband's support."

The investigation was made in Denver by Miss Emily C. Brown of the labor department.

OLD KING IS CHARMED BY ASHEVILLE PIANIST

Daytona Beach, Fla.—For a youthful musician, whose talents have won his admiration, John D. Rockefeller, Sr., has greater rewards than the customary dimes.

Twice within three days he sat attentively on the front seat at piano recitals given by Miss Helen Pugh, of Asheville. After the second concert he presented her with a large basket of red roses. No mention was made of dimes.

Each time Mr. Rockefeller refused to sit in a seat reserved for him in the middle of the hall, insisting on a front row chair so he could "watch her fingers."

"Abraham's Lullaby" seemed to please him more than any of Miss Pugh's numbers. With his face resting on one hand and his eyes closed, he beat time with his fingers on the printed program.

Good Proof.

A gang of men were working on street repairs in front of a woman's house. She seemed quite interested in them and asked one of them, a big burly Celt, "Which is the foreman?"

"O' am, mum," he replied, proudly.

"'I kin prove it, mum," rejoined the Irishman. Then turning to a laborer at hand, he added—"Kelly, y're fired!"—American Mutual Magazine.

Mrs. Agnes Fleming of Belfast burned her motor car while in a rage over a minor auto accident which she caused.

Hoover May Attend Kings Mtn. Event

the Kings Mountain celebration, made a significant reference in alluding to the chief executive's lineage with one Andrew Hoover, a Colonial pioneer in Randolph county, North Carolina.

At the close of the interview, concluded by the president, Mr. Hoover called Governor Gardner to his desk and there told him that this Andrew Hoover was his own great, great grandfather, a fact which had been forgotten through the years by North Carolina and historians generally.

Governor Gardner told this correspondent that President Hoover had made a statement to him even stronger than his expressed hope to attend the celebration, and that the chief executive said in effect that "nothing short of a momentous event, or events, would prevent him from participating at Kings Mountain."

Get Ready For Them.

(From The Chicago News.) In its annual handbook on prisons and reformatories, the National Society on Penal Information suggests by implication that congress and the legislatures of the various states never should enact statutes creating new crimes without authorizing simultaneously additional prison space and providing for industries to keep the prisoners and therefore reasonably contented.

(Special to The Star.) Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—Among the 630 patents issued last week by the United States patent office was one granted to Forest B. Williams, of Shelby, on a novel and improved milk bottle receptacle.

The invention, according to Clarence A. O'Brien, local patent attorney, is adapted to receive both full and empty bottles. It is so constructed that the person delivering the milk cannot remove an empty milk bottle from the receptacle unless he replaces a full bottle. In a similar manner, the full milk bottle cannot be removed unless an empty bottle is deposited in its place.

County Funds In Rutherford Is Safe

Caroleen bank was in good condition.

Rutherford, Feb. 6.—The Chimney Rock Trust company of Chimney Rock failed to open its doors Wednesday morning. The directors decided late Tuesday to close in order to avoid a run and to protect the depositors. This makes six of the county's 12 banks closed in the county within two days, two of those operating being industrial banks, one here and one in Forest City.

On January 1 the Chimney Rock Trust company had a capital of $23,700 with a surplus of $12,300 and bills payable to the amount of $25,000. The total resources were $230,653.74, while the loans and discounts amounted to $205,487.79, L. C. Cobb is cashier.

Five auditors and two state bank examiners arrived here Tuesday night and are busy investigating the six closed banks.

Officials of all the closed banks say they believe depositors will lose nothing while the Farmers Bank and Trust company officials at Forest City announced that they were sure their bank was solvent and that a movement was on foot to sell to strong banking interests with the expectations of opening soon.

There has been no run on the banks at Bostic, Ellenboro, Avondale and Cliffs and all six of the banks new open report their condition to be excellent and have no fear of a run, as they can meet all emergencies.

How Millionaires Were Made.

Monroe Journal. Treasury officials figure that 200 new millionaires were made in the bull stock market in 1928. It must have required the skinning of ten thousand or more persons for each of these millionaires. That would give us something over two million paupers created in the process of setting up the new group of millionaires.

He paid no visits and did not go near Capital Hill, although at both gatherings he greeted members of the North Carolina delegation in congress.

It was while conducting a meeting of North and South Carolinians at the Willard hotel in the forenoon to complete the program for the visit to President Hoover that Governor Gardner saw Senator Simmons. The senator, walking to a chair on the front row, and the governor, behind a table, both saw each other at the same moment. They walked forward and clasped hands, exchanged pleasantries during several moments, and took their seats.
