HOME AGENT HAS AID FOR TEACHERS

Booklets, Songs And Information In Her Office For Live-At-Home Week.

(Special to The Star.) In carrying out the live-at-home program for next week I feel that the teachers all over the county will appreciate some help that I have been accumulating in this line, so I have asked our far-reaching friend, The Star, to print a few of the poems and songs that are applicable, as well as a list of single copy material that I have in my office. I shall leave this on the big table in my office Saturday and all of next week. I will be glad for all teachers who wish to do so to come in and read or copy anything in the lot that will fit her program.

Subjects of material: Milk talk, for upper grades, Building a Body House, Facts about Milk, story of Five Milk Fairies, bulletins on milk and its use in the home, posters prepared by school children in milk-for-health campaign, guide to meal planning, Hob O' the Mill, the Fullback Secret, How Billy Won the Race, They Tried it on the Cats, Little Bill and Big Bill, a Modern Dinner Pail, an Interview with a Cow, Food for Thought (playlet two pages), Milk Rhymes, Acrostic—Drink Milk; Bossy Cow.

In Mother Goose Milk Land, Crowing the Cow, a playlet (four pages) The Milk Fairies of Healthland, True False Test on Milk An Imported Food, Mr. Smith and Mrs. Brown essay suggestions, milk drinking score card, chart for individual. A few copies of the Fairies to be used with the story as illustration. Those teachers who come first will be given these copies.

IRMA P. WALLACE, Home Demonstration Agent.

Mrs. Wallace, also, has in her office numerous songs appropriate for school children during the live-at-home week. One of the songs is re-

Mrs. Wallace, also, has in her office numerous songs appropriate for school children during the live-at-home week. One of the songs is reduced below and others may be copied in her office:

A Farm Song.
Sing oats and wheat and corn
All of an April morn.
Sing gentle rain to sprout the grain,
Sing sunlight keen to make it green,
Sing rain and sun for growth begun.
Sing oats and wheat and corn
All of an April morn.
Sing oats and wheat and corn
All of a harvest morn.
Sing golden grain on farmer's wain,
Sing hay in mow for horse and cow,
Sing meal in pot for porridge hot,
Sing oats and wheat and corn
All of a harvest morn.

The Tax Howl.
(From The Lumberton Robesonian.)
As stated in a news item elsewhere in this issue, a mass meeting of landowners of Robeson will be held in Lumberton Friday of this week for the purpose of discussing and considering ways and means of bringing about a sweeping reform in the matter of land taxes.
