Hoover Losing By Following Coolidge

New York World.
Mr. Hoover does not as yet seem to have grasped the fact that the Coolidge political era, like the Coolidge bull market, is over. It was possible for Mr. Coolidge to lose control of his party in congress, to fall in almost every major policy he recommended to be silent and evasive on troublesome matters like the international obligations of the United States and like prohibition, and still to be considered a great success. For Mr. Coolidge fell upon times when it was possible to sell almost anything at twice its value. Those days are over in Wall street and they are over at the White House. Mr. Coolidge cashed in on the Coolidge policies at the high for all time.

If Hoover examines dispassionately his situation today and the policies debacle which is impending, he will find, we believe, that his troubles are the direct result of his attempt to apply the Coolidge conception of the presidency to an area which calls for a wholly different conception. The Coolidge conception was to drift prosperously with events. It worked admirably while events were drifting prosperously. Mr. Hoover tried to imitate him. In the first few weeks of his administration he set the stage for his present troubles by two decisions made in the Coolidge spirit. One was his decision to let congress work out a tariff without presidential leadership. The other was the decision to smother the prohibition question.

This tariff policy allowed the conservative Republicans to propose the Hawley-Smoot bill, a bill which revived the insurgent-Democratic coalition and made it militant. The Republican party was split. It lost control of the senate. The coalition became the rallying point of the popular discontent resulting from the business depression. His prohibition policy, which was intended to produce tranquility, has instead acted as an irritant on the whole political situation.

Behold the Woodpecker!
(From The Monroe Enquirer.)
A red-headed woodpecker lighted on a dead sycamore tree, tapped lightly with his bill and listened, tapped again and listened, turned his head to one side and chirped, "Nobody at home, and there is room enough inside of this old tree for a whole family of redheads."

So he began to peck, he pecked and he pecked until finally he pecked out an opening, crawled inside, turned around, thrust his head out of his hole and chirped again, "Office hours from sun up to sun down! He specialized in bugs, worms and grasshoppers, picked up a good living, did humanity a great service and you never heard a red-headed woodpecker chirp hard luck in all your life.

Now the average person ought to be able to compete with this little wood carver of the forest. If he can peck an opening out of a dead tree, most any young man, with a little wood-pecker ambition, should be able to peck one out of a live town, a living forest or the rich soil of a productive farm. If he fails, it is likely because he did not use his head.

Washington Will Hear About The Political Rows

Will Be Dumping Ground For All Political Dope In Coming Campaigns.

Washington.—As soon as the tariff bill gets out of congress—the senate is now putting on its own finishing touches before the bill goes to conference—Washington will become a dumping ground for all the political dope from the campaigns leading up to the congressional primaries and elections.

Already some of this dope is trickling in and, for what it may be worth, tends to favor some of the more outstanding senators among those who are up for reelection this year for another six-year term. For instance, Couzens of Michigan; Walsh of Montana; Norris of Nebraska and Grundy of Pennsylvania. On the other hand, from Alabama one hears that the skids have been pretty definitely placed under Tom Heflin.

Prohibition Issue Rises.
The wet and dry issue apparently is going to figure as importantly in congressional elections as it has in any non-presidential election year since prohibition, if not more so.

—Out in Nebraska, George W. Norris, the notorious independent progressive Republican, now faces the pleasant prospect of a divided field of opponents. The candidates definitely entered against him for nomination in the August primaries are State Treasurer W. M. Stebbins and Lieut.-Gov. George A. Williams. Both Stebbins and Williams insist that they will stay in the primary fight to the bitter end, but there have been recent reports that former Governor Samuel R. McKelvie, a member of the federal farm board, may after all decide to enter the race.

In that case sufficient pressure might be brought on Stebbins and Williams to cause them to withdraw and leave the situation a two-man fight between Norris and McKelvie. The recent drop in wheat prices, however, was calculated to dampen McKelvie's hopes.

The anti-Norris candidate or candidates will have the support of Anti-Saloon league officials who want Norris punished for supporting Al Smith in 1928, and the support of public utility and other corporations and standpat Republicans who resent the incumbent senator's failure to take orders from President Hoover. Other members of the Nebraska congressional delegation believe Norris is reasonably sure to be returned, but think the contest may develop into an interesting fight.

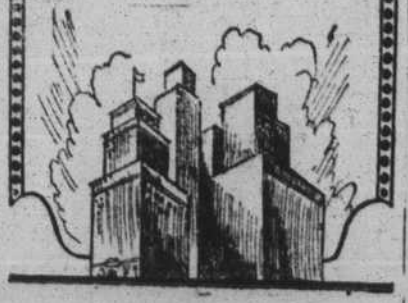

Governor Bert Green of Michigan threatens to oppose Senator James Couzens for renomination, but has made no announcement. There is a more or less popular theory in the state that Couzens is unbeatable; his constituents seem to like his independence, although he has no real political machine and spends little money in campaigns despite his wealth. Green would have the state G. O. P. machine. He has always run as a dry.

There seems to be a feeling among Montana politicians that Tom Walsh will come back to the senate. He may not be opposed for renomination. On the Republican side, O. H. P. Shelley, a dry, former Bull Moose and once state prohibition administrator, has filed for the nomination, and Supreme Court Judge Albert Galen may go in as a wet. If Galen were nominated against Walsh he might hope to capture some of the wet Democratic vote and the main menace to Walsh seems to lie in the possibility of such a wet-dry fight.

After eating nine cans of sardines, several boxes of soda crackers, a half helping of spare ribs, and a quart of buttermilk at one sitting, an Anderson, S. C. negro died from acute indigestion.

MacDonald Regime Is Given a Defeat

Will Accept Verdict When Vote To Censure His Party Is Taken—Makes Warm Retort

London, March 11.—Prime Minister MacDonald's second labor government went down to defeat in the house of commons tonight. The margin of defeat was 8 votes, one less than the margin by which the combined opposition forces on February 27.

It had been evident for a week that the liberals were lining up their strength and stiffening the party discipline in preparation for an attack against labor's controversial coal mines bill and unemployment program.

Today they joined the conservatives and successfully pushed through an amendment to the coal bill by 282 votes to 274.

Immediately after announcement of the result, Prime Minister MacDonald made it plain that he had no intention of resigning until he was beaten on a major issue. He said he intended to go on with the coal bill because the amendment carried by the opposition made no essential change in the main structure of the measure.

Cotton Market

Cotton was quoted on N. Y. exchange at noon today: March 18, 18; Oct. 14 1/2; Yesterdays, close, Mar. 18; 19; Oct. 14 1/2.

Journal of Commerce Review says at ten spot markets past week only 42,000 bales against 124,000 last year and 70,000 year before in spite of prices $35 per bale cheaper than a year ago. Memphis reports spinners buying only to fill urgent needs. Unsold stocks larger. Basis remains high. Farm work made satisfactory progress. Houston reports improved inquiry. Most business is against old orders, basis advanced again. Little Rock reports much cotton delivered to co-operatives on farm board land basis.

Charlotte reports mills hit hard by chaos in markets, government interference held responsible. New Bedford says shippers willing to sell remaining stock at any reasonable offer. Worth street quiet. Probably get further advance today on cables and correcting technical position.

Behind the Scenes in Hollywood

(By DOROTHY HERZOG.)

Hollywood, Cal.—It seems that Mrs. Rudolph Schildkraut, wife of the w. k. actor, decides to become an American citizen. To the proper destination traipsed she and her husband. Among the questions asked was: "Who is the governor of California?"

Paragraph here to a necessary detour. Mrs. Schildkraut, prior to a few weeks ago traded at Young's market. Now, however, she markets at the Hacienda.

Paragraph back to the verbal citizenship query. "Who is the governor of California?"

Mrs. Schildkraut's eyes strayed. For the life of her she couldn't recollect the governor's name. Her husband could stand the suspense no longer.

"Der name of der market, Mama," he reported as crying. "Der name of der market!"

Mrs. Schildkraut beamed and replied: "Hacienda."

Young, however, had it. Wherein there may be an advertising moral.

Eastward, Ho!

March 18th sees the departure of Gus Edwards, Armida, and several other dancers and singers for New York. Gus has contracted to play four weeks of vodvil, hitting Chicago, Cleveland, Milwaukee and Manhattan. Armida, I presume, will share honors with him in the two-day act.

Whether or not the little Mexican returns to Hollywood with Edwards et al is doubtful. This department is told that Armida is wanted to succeed Lili Damiti in the Jack Donohue musical comedy, "Sons-o'-Guns." While the vodvil act is playing New York, Armida, between shows, will rehearse the Damiti role.

Lili is supposed to hit back to the glid coast and make a flick. Her stage leave was extended but the extension nears a close. So here's a historic inst. of w. k. Paul Jones.

In Preparation.

Without any ballyhoo, Julane Johnston and partner, Danny Darling, have been rehearsing these past few weeks every a. m. at the Montmartre. Rehearsing a dance act. Which they plan to terpsichore into vodvil. Toher eve, at ye Montmartre Julane was guest-of-honor. She and Darling gave an exhibition
