King's Appeal Will Go On To Supreme Court

Dismissal Motion Is Overruled

Judge Henry Gives Rafe King Attorneys Extension of Time In Appeal.

Chester, S. C., Mar. 17.—The motion by state counsel to dismiss the appeal before the state supreme court for a new trial of Rafe King, now in the state penitentiary under sentence of death for the murder of his wife, was overruled here Saturday by Judge J. K. Henry, who allowed extension of time for filing return to April 1.

The hearing, held in chambers, followed action of Solicitor Harry Hines a few days ago in moving for dismissal of the appeal. Counsel for both state and defense presented arguments.

King was sentenced to die last September following conviction of slaying his teacher-wife, Faye Wilson King, at their home in Sharon last winter, but a stay was granted pending efforts of his attorneys to obtain a new trial.

Judge Henry's order issued follows:

"This matter comes on to be heard before me upon motion by the solicitor and other counsel for the state to dismiss the appeal to the supreme court heretofore noticed on the ground that the return had not been filed as required by law. It being made to appear before me that the only reason that the return has not been heretofore filed is because of the fact that the voluminous record did and does not permit the completion of the printing there of prior to April 1, 1930; now, therefore, it is ordered that the time for filing return be and hereby is extended to April 1, 1930; that the motion to dismiss the appeal be refused; and if for any unforeseen cause the printing of the record and filing of return cannot be done by April 1, 1930, counsel may apply for further extension of time within which to file return."
