County Democrats In Precinct Meets

Various Sections Name Committees, Delegates To County Meet.

The Democrats of Cleveland county held their precinct meetings Saturday, named their precinct committees and their delegates to the county convention to be held here the coming Saturday afternoon in the court house.

Harmony apparently continues to prevail in the Democracy and the precinct meetings were quiet affairs. Oliver Anthony, chairman of the party in the county, hopes to have Clyde R. Hoey or some other well known speaker for the county convention here Saturday, which, it is hoped, will be attended by delegates from every precinct in the county.

Pellagra On Increase Over Cleveland, Said

Alarming Gain In Cases Reported

Importance Of Good Food And Plenty Of Milk Pointed Out By Doctors.

A marked, if not an alarming, increase in pellagra cases is reported throughout Cleveland county by the physicians of the county.

Shelby and county physicians state that many new cases have developed, or come to their attention this spring. The cases, it is said, are not confined to any one section, but seem generally scattered in Shelby and in the rural sections of the county.

Preventive Diet.

Much can be done to prevent the dreaded disease by the eating of good food and the drinking of plenty of milk, physicians state. In years gone by pellagra baffled medical science for a time, but now cases when detected in time can be checked and often cured. This, too, depends upon the diet. All citizens who have not been taking proper nourishment, or have indications of pellagra are urged to consult their family physicians, determine their status, and begin following a correct diet as outlined by them.

"Above all," physicians say, "drink milk—plenty of it."

Cuts Self In Jail Here On Rum Count

White Man Uses Broken Mirror In Apparent Attempt At Suicide.

George Edwards, white man, apparently attempted suicide in the county jail here early Saturday morning, but failed to succeed in the attempt.

Shortly after midnight Edwards was jailed by two city policemen on a liquor charge. Just when he cut himself is not known, but Saturday morning he was found in weakened condition due to the loss of considerable blood from self-inflicted cuts on the arm.

Several Places. In cutting himself Edwards had used a piece of broken mirror. His arm was slashed in several places from the wrist up. After his condition was discovered he was taken to the county physician, the wounds sewed up, and he will recover.

Some weeks ago he was arrested, officers say, on a non-support charge and sent to Eastern Carolina, but returned after several days to Shelby.

Doll, Which Aided Woman In Chicken Stealing, Is In Jail

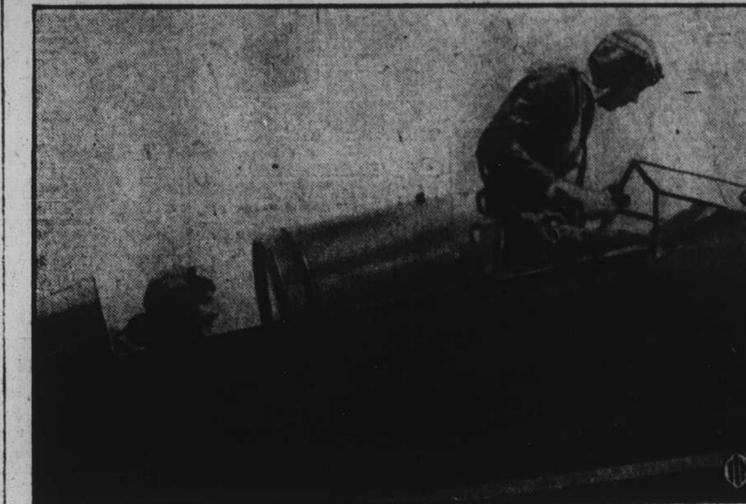

Vernie Butler, Convicted In Chicken Gang, Used Doll As Ruse.

A doll, a baby doll, one of the type good little girls have left for them on Christmas by Santa Claus is in the county jail here because it was one of the chief assets of a chicken-stealing gang which has for months, it is said, been working Cleveland, Rutherford and neighboring counties.

The doll is not serving a sentence, but the doll's owner, Vernie Butler, white woman, is just ninety days.

For weeks and weeks chicken roosts of this and adjoining counties have been raided. Little by little officers closed down on the alleged thieves. Week before last they apprehended Bob Towery, a man of parts, and connected him

Young Shelby Golfer Loses In Semi-Finals But Gets The Glory

Fred Webb In First Big Tourney Given Wide Praise For Brilliant Golf.

Fred Webb, Shelby's 15-year-old golf sensation, came home from his first major golf tournament, the Southern amateur, played at Greensboro, Friday night after being defeated in the next to the last championship round, but he brought with him more praise than any other participant in the biggest of Southern tournaments.

After qualifying the Shelby boy defeated three veteran golf stars, known all over the South, fought his way to the semi-finals and was only one match away from the coveted championship when he was forest to bow to the brilliant shooting of Emmett Spicer, former champion of Memphis. His first victim was Alan Smith, bride of Asheville goldfom, and so sensational was the play of the Shelby left-hander, the youngest player in the tournament, in that match that it caused the major portion of the gallery to follow him until he was eliminated. On the next day he defeated Chastain Harris, of Memphis, rated as one of the four favorites to win. Then on Friday morning he took another Memphis golfer, Tom White, for an easy win, ending the match on the fifteenth holes, being five holes ahead at the time. It was considered the sparkling play of the tournament. Had the Shelby boy saved a little bit of his morning brilliance for the afternoon round he might have won.

Game Come-Back. As it was the youngster drew round after round of applause from the gallery in his match play with Spicer by his game come-back and determined spirit which would not give up even after Spicer won the first four holes in a row. He kept shooting brilliant golf and at the end of the seventh hole was just one hole behind with one to play. His chance to tie the match went glimmering, however, when Spicer dropped a shot to the pin for a sure birdie on the eighteenth.

The stroke score for the round was 72 for Spicer and 74 for Webb.

This time Fred, the youngster who was the sensation of the Southern amateur tournament last week is defending his junior Carolinas golfing crown at the annual meet in Greensboro, while Pete, who has held the same title himself, will play with his brother in the pro-amateur qualifying round. They were accompanied to Greensboro today by Claude Brown Rippey, Shelby High baseball player, who is no dub at the game of golf himself. The tournament continues through Thursday.

Details of the incident were not learned. It is understood that her husband came into the house about 10 or a little later and found her extremely sick. She vomited, it was said, before she reached the hospital, and this, no doubt, prevented the dose from being fatal within a few hours.

The arsenic was in powder form, it is understood, but whether it was taken intentionally or accidentally was not stated. Her husband, it was said, stated at the hospital that she had been extremely nervous.

Lucile Parks, colored woman, of the Fallston section, was taken to the state hospital for the colored at Goldsboro today by Mr. John A. Borders. The woman, mentally deranged, was brought to the county jail here Saturday.

Mr. Bill Love of Charlotte was a Shelby visitor today.

Edgar Ross, young negro man, is in the county jail and Lawrence Camp, 18-year-old negro boy, is in the Shelby hospital with a fractured skull as the result of a row between them yesterday afternoon in jail alley, near the county jail.

Ross, it is alleged, struck Camp in the head with a brick. At the hospital today it was stated that Camp's skull was fractured, but he appears to be somewhat improved and is conscious. Just what the brawl was about officers have not definitely learned.

Hundreds of Shelby and Cleveland county people have taken their first "shots" of the typhoid vaccination in recent days, according to physicians.

An example of how citizens of the county are protecting themselves against a typhoid epidemic was that one physician vaccinated 360 people within two hours and a half in one of the textile mill villages.

Funeral services for Mrs. Hester Jones, wife of Mr. C. P. Jones, were held this afternoon at Grassy Pond church in South Carolina.

Mrs. Jones died Saturday, at the age of 70 years, after an illness of three years. She was a member of Zoar church for years, a noble woman, and highly respected by all who knew her.

Surviving are the husband, five children, 25 grand children, and 12 great grand children. The children are Messrs. E. W. Jones, Fred Jones, Victor Jones, Eford Jones, and Mrs. Alta Jones, of Gastonia. Mrs. Jones lived just southeast of Shelby.

It was announced in a recent issue of The Star that the morning service at the West Shelby Methodist Protestant church on the 29th would open a series of revival services to be held there. It is learned today that this revival has been indefinitely postponed.

With some of the chicken stealing. A bit of sleuthing brought out the information that a woman had been traveling about with Towery on his alleged raids—a woman and a "baby." And that had helped them get by. The woman sitting in the car with what appeared to be a baby always threw suspicion away from the car in which she and Towery were said to make their trips. Then the officers located the woman, Vernie Butler, at Forest City, brought her here for a hearing. She drew ninety days. And the "baby," the store doll, which had helped them get by for weeks, is in the jail house with her.

Lone Eaglet Is Born To Lindy, Anne On Sunday

Famous Flier Calm About Son

Young Lindbergh, Unnamed Yet, Born On Birthday Of Mother.

Englewood, N. J., June 23.—A son was born yesterday to Col and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh in the same house at the top of a high hill in Englewood, where Mrs. Lindbergh, the daughter of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, first saw the light of day exactly 24 years ago.

The baby, weighing almost eight pounds, arrived at about 2:30 p. m. Mrs. Lindbergh and the child were reported in fine condition today. Colonel Lindbergh, it was said, took the event calmly whereas Ambassador Morrow, who has just been nominated Republican candidate for senator from New Jersey, was described as jubilant.

Child Of The Century.

The formal announcement of the birth of a boy was made late Sunday afternoon by a "friend of the family." From other sources it was learned that Mrs. Lindbergh had invited several intimate friends for a quiet celebration of her birthday yesterday. This party had to be put off for the birthday in advance as the "child of the century."

All immediate members of the family remained in the Morrow home—in which Anne Spencer Morrow and Charles Augustus Lindbergh were married May 27, 1929—through the day. The watchers who had been posted outside of the gates for several days in anticipation of the event were unaware of the arrival of the stork just as they had missed the wedding after a long siege.

Congratulations Pour In.

Just before evening they were told the news by the army of messenger boys who arrived loaded with flowers and congratulatory telegrams that undoubtedly had been ordered by friends and well-wishers weeks ago.

There was a rush for telephones and then the reporters returned for more details only to find for the time being, at least, none was to be forthcoming. A complete statement was promised "later" by one of Ambassador Morrow's secretaries.

Name Yet To Come.

No indication of what the Lindbergh baby will be named was given. It seems safe to assume, however, that it will be christened Dwight Morrow Lindbergh.

Mrs. Lindbergh, despite her approaching motherhood, clung to her custom of accompanying her famous husband on his flights. Only last Thursday they flew together to Hartford from Teterboro Airport, N. J.

This trip was made in the same Lockheed Sirius low-winged monoplane in which Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh made their record-breaking flight from Los Angeles to New York Easter Sunday. Colonel Lindbergh at the time declared his wife did the greater part of the work on the flight, acting as navigator and co-pilot.

To Insane Hospital.

Little Interest Now In Second Primary

Sisters Meet First Time In 53 Years Here

Shelby last week had a couple of visitors, two sisters, who are not much on visiting about.

Mrs. Martha Ann McDaniel, of Kings Creek, S. C. came to Shelby to visit her daughter, Mrs. Will Spencer. While she was here her sister Mrs. Tom Dodson, of Black Mountain, came down to the Spencer home. It was the first time the two sisters had seen each other in 53 years, since Mrs. Dodson married and left home.

The two women, in their seventies, were reared in the Cherokee Falls section of South Carolina.

Star Editor Sees Wisconsin Grandeur

Silvery Lake Country, Black Hawk Region Beautiful Scenery.

(By LEE B. WEATHERS.)

Madison, Wis., June 23.—Members of the National Editorial association, of which the writer is a member, on an education tour of Wisconsin following the convention proper in Milwaukee, arrived in Madison, "The Four Lake City Built on an Isthmus" last Thursday night after spending the day at the famous Wisconsin River Dells at Kilbourn about 55 miles north of here.

We were met at the railroad station in Madison by members of the Madison association of commerce who took us for an auto tour of the city. Following the tour we returned to the Loraine hotel where we were guests of Consolidated Water Power and Paper company at a banquet at which President Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin addressed us on a topic concerning American newspaperdom. Mr. George Meade, president of the Consolidated Water Power and Paper company, our host, bade us welcome.

Following the banquet we were entertained at an informal dancing party in the Crystal ballroom of the Loraine hotel. Breakfast the following morning was served to us at the Park hotel by the Madison association of commerce during which Mr. Paul Stark, acting president of the association bade us welcome and Godspeak during our continuing educational tour of the state.

Transportation for the tour of Madison was furnished by 60 members of the association of commerce who turned their private automobiles over to us for the evening.

Madison is the capital of Wisconsin and the seat of the state university with a population of 57,815 (1930 census.) In addition some 10,000 students from nearly every civilized country in the world live in Madison the year 'round.

Madison is in Dane county, said to be the tenth richest agricultural county in the United States, and the richest dairy county in America.

Madison—that "lovely gem of the first water, set in the clasp of four silvery lakes"—to quote Ella Wheeler Wilcox—is also a mecca for the tourist, a fact which can be read-

Light Vote Forecast For July 5

Enthusiasm May Pick Up, However Not Equal To 1928 Run-off.

With the second Democratic primary campaign of the year now on in Cleveland county interest in politics is at a low ebb, and political observers believe that on Saturday, July 5, there will not likely be more than 4,500 or 5,000 votes cast, if that many.

The attempt is being made, with very little success, to arouse the Democrats of Cleveland over two races: the contest between J. Clint Newton and Solicitor P. Cleveland Gardner for solicitor of recorder's court, and the fight between Maj. A. L. Bulwinkle, of Gastonia, and Attorney Hamilton C. Jones, of Charlotte, for the congressional nomination.

A total of 5,919 votes were cast in the first primary on June 7 and a prediction of 5,000 votes for the second primary July 5 would be only 900 votes less than cast in the first primary. In that neither of the races has the county stirred up to any extent it does not appear as if the 5,000 mark will be reached.

Different In '28.

In 1928, however, it was another matter, but that year voters took their ballot-tossing seriously, very seriously. In the first 1928 primary 7,550 votes were cast, 1,631 votes more than in the first primary this year. But the surprising thing in 1928 was that the second primary for sheriff, with Irvin Allen and Frank Hoyle as candidates, drew more voters, a total of 7,709, to the polls than did the first primary.

There is a possibility that the second primary this year will do the same thing, but it is a dim possibility, a very unlikely one.

In the solicitor's race in the first primary this year 5,861 votes were cast. The vote two weeks from Saturday, for Messrs. Gardner and Newton, will do well, it is believed, to come within 1,000 of that mark. A total of 5,772 votes were cast in the first congressional primary, and the second primary vote in this contest will in all probability be about the same as in the Newton-Gardner race, for the voters who go to the polls that day will do all the voting there is to do while there.

Campaigning Now.

The four candidates are in the midst of their campaign now. The candidates for solicitor are moving rapidly about the county talking to voters. They realize that the big task will be to get the voters out. Since the second congressional race became rather definite, Maj. Bulwinkle had been to Shelby and in the county. Mr. Jones is expected soon.

And in reviewing the prospects of the approaching primary one angle should not be overlooked: in general conversation among voters one hears that the high men in the first race have the odds in their favor, but there is another side to that view. Two years ago the second man in the primary for sheriff won the run-off race.

Miss Fannie Fronberger, who once lived in Shelby and was a first cousin of the Hoey's, died Tuesday night in Asheville after an illness of some time. The following item concerning her death, which will be of interest to friends and relatives here, appeared in a Knoxville newspaper:

"Miss Fannie Fronberger, formerly of Knoxville, died at her home in Asheville Tuesday night. The body was brought to Knoxville for funeral and burial. Funeral services were conducted at New Gray cemetery. Dr. Walter C. Whitaker, rector of St. Johns Episcopal church, of which Miss Fronberger formerly was a member, officiated.

"Miss Fronberger resided in Knoxville for several years. After the death of her parents, she moved to Asheville with her sister, Miss Augusta Fronberger and two brothers, Louis B. Fronberger and Breward Fronberger, who were prominently identified with business interests in Knoxville for years. They now reside in Asheville."

Former Candidate For President Writes A Letter To Senator Simmons

(J. A. Livingston in News and Observer.)

Washington.—Twice an unsuccessful candidate himself William Gibbs McAdoo would place Senator Simmons in the White House if he could have his way.

Simmons has made public a letter from the former Secretary of the Treasury, written from his law office in Los Angeles, Calif., expressing his grief over the recent defeat of the North Carolinian.

"I am forced to believe that this was merely a punitive expedition against you and that it was engineered largely from the outside," Mr. McAdoo wrote Senator Simmons.
