The Eternal Exile.
"Dominion over every living thing is yours," God said. "The fowl with feathered wing,
Scarlet and silver fish beneath the deep,
The beasts four-footed and the snakes that creep
In Eden's grassy, my creatures great and small
Are less than man—be master of them all."

But far from Eden, quaking and afraid
Walks Adam, lord of all his Lord has made;
Piles brick on brick to wall himself away
From empty meadows and the open day,
Or fearing ancient forests, fearfully
In little ships goes down to the wide sea.
From early dawn until the day is done
He weaves, to cloak himself from wind and sun,
Yet daylight over and his labor spent
Must still at evening, to lie well content,
Lock out the great night with small keys and bars,
To light false moons and temporary stars.

Notes on Fashions.
Brief notes from Paris advise that the newest thing for evening wear is the snaky, vampy, close-fitting princess dress. These dresses simulate some fullness by the use of shaped flounces running up and down the skirt.
Favorite colors and fabrics for evening wear are pale shades of pink in satin or tulle. For sports clothes combinations of beige and green, brown and green, or red and green flecked with yellow are most popular. Eggshell and cream still remain the most desirable colors for blouses, with suits of any color.

Entertain For Guests.
Misses Ruby and Agnes McBrayer were attractive hostesses on Thursday afternoon at an informal, neighborhood party, in compliment to Mrs. Glenn Clotworthy, of Atlanta, Ga., house-guest of Mrs. T. W. Hamrick. The rooms where the three tables were placed were made bright with sun flowers. The guests found their places with attractive little place cards, and bridge was enjoyed for a pleasant hour or so. After the play, the hostesses served a refreshing salad course with punch. The honoree was presented with a pretty lace handkerchief.

Hostess At Bridge.
Mrs. C. B. Suttie was hostess at a charming, informal party at her lovely home in Cleveland Springs estates, on Friday morning when she entertained the several attractive visitors in town and their hostesses. Three tables were in play, and at the end of the morning, Mrs. Suttie served a delicious luncheon plate followed by an ice course. She was assisted in serving by Mrs. Jack Dover and Mrs. Hobson Austel.

Mrs. Lineberger Hostess.
One of the loveliest parties of the season was that given by Mrs. J. D. Lineberger at her beautiful new home, Vauxhall, on Friday afternoon at 4:30. The spacious rooms of the lower floor were thrown together and were made more lovely by bowls of summer flowers. Nine tables were arranged for play and the guests were directed to their places, upon their arrival, by attractive little ladies, used as tallies. Bridge was played throughout the afternoon and after several progressions, Mrs. Lineberger was assisted by Mrs. Carl Thompson and Mrs. Julius Suttie in serving a delicious salad course with punch.

Fortnight Club Meets.
The members of the Fortnight bridge club were delightfully entertained on Friday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoey acting as hosts. Bowls of zinnias and other bright summer flowers were used as decorations. Contract bridge was played at four tables during the evening. At an intermission between games during the evening Mrs. Hoey served sandwiches and tea, accompanied by an ice course. She was assisted by Mrs. Oliver Anthony and Miss Isabelle Hoey.
At the close of the evening, when scores were added, it was found that Mrs. W. L. McCord had scored high and she received a green teardrop necklace. Mr. Oliver Anthony, who scored high for the men, was awarded a necktie.

Wedding Of Interest.
A wedding of interest throughout the state took place Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock, when Miss Marge DePriest was quietly married to Mr. Blaine Eugene Baker at the First Baptist church in Shelby. Dr. Zeno Wall, pastor of the bride, officiated using the impressive ring ceremony. The wedding was witnessed only by members of the immediate families. The bride, a lovely brunette, wore a becoming costume of navy blue georgette with natural accessories and a shoulder corsage of pink roses showered with valley lilies.

The couple left immediately after the ceremony for a bridal tour through the mountains of western N. C., Virginia and Tennessee.

Mrs. Baker is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. C. DePriest. She was educated at N. C. C. W. She has been one of the popular teachers of the city schools for the past two years.
The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Baker of Fallston. He was educated at the University of North Carolina and is now located at Fallston where he is a successful farmer and business man.
The following announcements have been received:
"Mr. and Mrs. A. B. C. DePriest announce the marriage of their daughter, Marge, to Mr. Blaine Eugene Baker, Saturday the nineteenth of July, nineteen hundred and thirty, Shelby, North Carolina."

Mrs. Logan To Be Hostess
The Spanish War Auxiliary will meet with Mrs. H. A. Logan on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at her home on N. Morgan street. All members are urged to be present.

Millican-Hamrick Announcement
The following announcement will be of much interest to a wide circle of friends and relatives: "Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Hamrick announce the marriage of their daughter, Virginia, to Mr. Edgar A. Millican, Sunday, July the twentieth, nineteen hundred and thirty, Danville, Virginia." At home Belvedere hotel, Reidsville, N. C.

Mrs. Hennessa Hostess at Bridge
Mrs. Brevard Hennessa was an attractive hostess to the members of the Contract bridge club and a few invited guests on Friday afternoon, when she entertained at the home of Mrs. P. L. Hennessa. Bowls of mixed summer flowers made the rooms attractive, and decorative little tallies were used to direct the guests to their places. Bridge was played at four tables, and after several progressions had been made the hostess was assisted by Mrs. Henry Edwards and Mrs. Hugh Plaster in serving a salad course with punch.
Mrs. Frank Kendall was fortunate enough to be winner of the high score prize and Mrs. Hugh Plaster won second high. The three recent brides who were present, Mrs. C. R. Roberts of McAdenville, Mrs. Hopson Austell and Mrs. Holland Eskridge were all honored by being presented with guest prizes.
The guests outside the club who enjoyed this lovely party, were Mesdames. Hopson Austell, Aaron Quinn, Holland Eskridge and C. R. Roberts.

Wedding at Danville
A wedding of interest to a wide circle of friends in North Carolina and Virginia took place at 5:15 on Sunday, July 19, at Danville, Va., when Miss Virginia Hamrick, of this place, was married to Mr. Edgar A. Millican, now of Reidsville. Miss Hamrick has been visiting friends in Winston Salem, who accompanied her to Danville for the ceremony which took place at the home of friends there, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beasley. The ceremony was witnessed only by the bride's mother, Mrs. B. O. Hamrick, who accompanied her to Danville, and by a few intimate friends. The bride was lovely in a handsome costume of capusine crepe with eggshell accessories, and wore a corsage of orchids and sweetheart roses. The wedding was characterized by beauty and simplicity. There were no attendants and the bride and groom entered the room, where the ceremony was performed, together. Immediately after the ceremony they left for a wedding trip.
Mrs. Millican, the attractive and talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Hamrick, is popular with a wide circle of friends throughout the state. She was educated at Peace Institute at Raleigh, where she graduated with honors in expression. Her graduation recital was given at the Capitol theater in Raleigh at that time. Since graduation she has been a very successful teacher of expression in the city schools of Shelby and has been much in demand for her readings at clubs and other social functions.
Mr. Millican, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Millican, of Wilmington, has been manager of the Charles Store here for the past two years, and has recently been transferred to Reidsville, where he is now in charge of the Charles Store at that place. Mr. Millican, while in Shelby, created an excellent place for himself, both in social and business circles, and is much admired by friends and associates here.

Upon their return from their wedding trip, the young couple will make their home at the Belvedere hotel, at Reidsville.

"Misuse" Of Money Claimed In Raleigh

Printing Money Goes In Salaries In Office Of Secretary Of State

Raleigh, July 21.—On the ground that the office of the Secretary of State "misused" part of its printing appropriations for salaries during the last fiscal year, the State Budget Bureau has not allotted the department its funds for the present quarter, it was learned last week.

Relations between the office and the bureau are, to say the least, strained but Governor Gardner, as director of the budget and Secretary of State Hartness are expected to settle the differences in time to meet the payroll at the end of the month. In the meantime, the secretary's office force considers itself lucky in having enough stamps on hand.

The total appropriation of the Secretary of State last year was $23,180, but on account of economy, the expenditures were cut to $22,204. Nevertheless, Henry Burke, assistant director of the budget, says that the office spent $636 too much for salaries last year and left outstanding printing bills of $293 which, he says, should have been paid out of last year's funds. The present quarter's allotment is being held up until it is decided who will pay the $293 and with what.

In the meantime, the office of the Secretary of State has not made its reduced budget for the present year. This is another matter that will have to be settled soon. The Governor has already taken a position against reduction of salaries as opposed to reduction of personnel and the greater part of the secretary's budget concerns salaries.

Shelby Mill Wins Avondale Contest

The Shelby mill baseball team made it two out of three by defeating the strong Avondale team Saturday 6 to 5 in a 11-inning contest. Avondale secured 14 hits while Shelby was getting only seven, but the hurling of Simmons in the pinches brought victory to his team. The local hurler helped cinch his own contest with two hits, one for two bases.
The battery for Avondale was Grant and Goode, for Shelby Simmons and McEntire.

Former Patrolman Here In Hearing

Monroe, July 21.—State Highway Patrolman K. B. Mann was given a hearing here Friday in recorder's court and bound over to the superior court on the charge of an assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill Floyd Helms.
The state offered evidence that several months ago Officers Mann and Shaw overtook a car on the Monroe-Charlotte highway about 12:30 o'clock at night. When officers stopped the car, the prose cutting witness, Helms, jumped out, ran and was shot in the back by Officer Mann. The defendant Mann offered evidence that Helms and those in the car with him were drunk and that when he stopped the car Helms ran; that he overtook him and shot in self-defense, Helms having reached into his pocket as if he were going to draw something.
Mann was formerly patrolman in this section, making headquarters in Shelby and living at the Isaac Shelby hotel.

Webb Theatre Wins In A Sound Contest

Recently the Exhibitors Herald-World of New York conducted an impartial investigation of sound perfection in motion pictures over the nation. In this investigation, the Webb theatre of Shelby was awarded first prize for the most perfect sound. A beautiful bronze plaque, now on display in the lobby of the theatre reads as follows: "Mark of Honor has been awarded this theatre for the high quality of its reproduction of sound picture by Exhibitors, Herald-World."

Rattaree's Wife At Celebration Of 1880

Charlotte, July 21.—S. C. Rattaree of Kings Mountain was in Charlotte last week and says the people of his town are looking forward with keen anticipation to the sesquicentennial celebration this fall. Mr. Rattaree said that his wife was at the centennial celebration of the battle 50 years ago. She tells him 12,000 people were present. "Of course, we expect many more than that this year," he added.
Before moving to Kings Mountain Mr. Rattaree was postmaster a number of years at Grover.

Investor Kills Banker in Court on Coast

Motley H. Flint, financial advisor to motion picture leaders and brother of the late United States Senator Frank P. Flint, was shot to death in a Los Angeles court by Frank D. Keating, real estate man. Keating said the loss of his life savings prompted the act.

"Spook" Burglar Of Shelby Held In N. Y.

Ernest Doster Held By New York Probation Department, Poston Queried
Ernest Doster, the 19-year-old boy who broke the window of the Alexander jewelry store here in 1928 and attempted to make away with jewelry taken from the window, is now being held by the probation division of the New York city police department.
Police Chief McBride Poston last week received a letter from the probate chief there asking about Doster's record, but did not inform why he was being held there, except to say that he gave his age as 18.
Doster, it will be remembered, was arrested by the late Policeman Cook in the jewelry store robbery which took place about the time Shelby homes were being terrorized by a nocturnal thief termed "the spook burglar." In court, however, it was impossible to connect Doster with any theft except the jewelry robbery.

Seven Foot Snake Ranges In Cleveland

B. B. Cabaniss Finds His Skin, Shedded In The Woods Near His Home
You've seen big snakes and lone ones, but perhaps the longest snake in Cleveland county is a seven footer which ranges in the neighborhood of the Cabaniss school house. You might wonder why its size and length are so well known when this snake has not been seen. At least, no one has ever reported having seen it.
The snake shed its skin and the skin was found by Mr. B. B. Cabaniss who brought it to The Star office Saturday where it has been placed on display. It measures seven feet long from mouth to tail and is in perfect condition. This means that there are no breaks in the skin, transparent skin. If snakes don't frighten you, try to capture this monster. Many circuses have shown lesser snakes and charged for seeing them. There might be a profitable sale for this seven footer.

Will Hoey Be Candidate For Overman Seat?

olds, Aubrey L. Brooks, of Greensboro, and Governor Gardner.

"For at least fifteen years," comments the Greensboro News, "friends of Clyde R. Hoey have talked him as a good senatorial prospect. Within that time he has served in Congress, retired voluntarily, canvassed for Al Smith and a united party, prosecuted communists and kept himself continually in the public gaze." But still the Greensboro paper knows no more about Hoey's plans for 1932 than the average citizen of Hoey's home town, and that is nothing whatsoever.

No Persuading
Mr. Hoey goes blandly along, handing out a smile and a word of appreciation for all who mention the race to him, but saying nothing at all of a definite nature. Of course, his home-town section would thoroughly enjoy seeing him in the Senate, but he is of the type one doesn't persuade to do things; and the section for which he has done considerable thinking, and leading is still content with the belief that he is capable of making his own plans.
What the other prospective candidates will do is equally as puzzling. Mr. Morrison is dodging the Carolina heat wave in Canada. Mr. Brooks is attending to his legal affairs in Greensboro. Governor Gardner keeps right on at his governing job, and Mr. Bob is bobbing about in regular form. Mr. Overman is speaking over radio and the political dopesters are guessing.
Morrison and Hoey appear to be the strongest prospective contenders. Hoey has been a prospect for 15 years; Morrison almost as long, since he was governor; Reynolds took a fling at unseating Overman in 1926, and Mr. Brooks tried it in 1920. That the latter two have senatorial ambitions is evidenced by their candidacies in the past, and one or two things have cropped up to indicate that Morrison and Hoey have felt the bee in their bonnets. Mr. Morrison said in 1926, or 1928, he would not oppose Senator Overman, but might be a candidate later. At the time he was of the opinion, no doubt, that Overman would not be a candidate in 1932. Now that the veteran plans to run again, the Morrison attitude is not known.

In the hectic 1928 convention at Raleigh bystanders recall that Morrison met Hoey in the Sir Walter lobby, walked up to him and said, "Clyde Hoey, I hope somebody takes a notion to put you on the Superior court bench, in the cabinet or somewhere before 1932, and remember this, I'll help you get the job."

It was a bit of good-natured bantering between the two big political leaders, but it is likely that each looked upon the other as his most formidable opponent in a senate contest.
The Bailey-Simmons affair did not alter the standing of the two to any appreciable extent. Both supported Bailey as they supported Smith, and it was their support, as two of the chief lieutenants in the old Simmons palace guard, which had much to do with the outcome. "Only one thing," muses the Greensboro News, "is certain in connection with Overman's seat: it will go to somebody else shortly, whether he is removed by death or the electorate."

But the News doesn't venture to say to whom it will go. Neither does anyone else in a definite way; one guess seems as good as another.
And if outsiders keep questioning Shelby people about it, it might pay the civic clubs to erect big billboards on the several extremities of the town informing, in big letters: "We don't know whether Clyde Hoey will run for the Senate or not; but come in and see us. He's a pretty hospitable, cheerful fellow, and the town boasts that it has the same characteristics."
