

Nobody's Business

GEE McGEE—

FOLKS WE LOVE—TO SHOOT
I make it a rule to try mighty hard to love everybody, especially blondes and brunettes, but there are some folks that I just naturally love (?) more than I do others, as follows:

My heart goes out to the man, woman or child that parks his or her car so's I'll have to tear my fender off if I try to back out—while they are off somewhere trying to buy something on credit.

And the guy that parks his car behind mine while he runs into a store to swap something and incidentally stops and chats with some friend who hasn't got anything to do that day either—why, I just adore him.

And at the picture show, my affection is immensely warm for the person who sits in front of me and wiggles and wobbles his or her head at the rate of 99 wiggles and 98 wobbles per minute—while the leading lady is being hugged by the chauffeur.

And my love is very, very strong and tender for the pimp who has the chicken (fried) passed to him just before it is passed to me and he yanks the fork-bone and the gizzard out of the platter—when he knows darn well that the doctor told me not to eat anything except fork-bones and gizzards.

But the sweetest man in the world is a so-called friend who stands right up against your dum-dum and tells you an old joke that he has already told you 44 times and slobbers large streams of slobbers right betwixt your eyes—and when he gets through telling the said joke, he does all the laughing and increases his slobbering.

But speaking of darlings, did you ever have anybody drive up behind you when you were going fast enough for any decent man to drive, and toot and toot his horn and then shoot by you and before going 50 feet turn into his own yard? Well, 9 of just such fellers as them had their lives saved last week just because I didn't have my shotgun with me.

And then, there are others. The open-faced couger and sneezer, and the pimp who likes to blow stands right up against your tumber who picks hairs off your coat collar while your wife is talking to her, and the soup sprayer, and the tooth-sucker, and the "I told you so's."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
During the past few weeks, I have received numerous questions from the love-sick and heart-broke readers of Nobody's Business. Really and truly, those requests should have gone to Dorothy Dix, but since these folks selected me, I will do my best, so here goes:

Q. My mother insists that my present sweetheart is a flapper and she detests flappers. I do not agree with her. How can I tell whether or not Sudie Lee (Bless her dear soul) is a flapper?
I. C. L.

Ans. If Sudie Lee (Dern her little hide) trots her fingers up and down your striffront imitating a girl counting your buttons, she's a flapper as sure as Reno is in Nevada.
G. M.

Q. My husband has been staying out late at night for nearly 3 months and it seems that he takes a special pride in neglecting me and the children. He has been seen several times with a grass widow at the swimming pool. What would you advise?
Worried.

Ans. On husbands like yours, wives use shotguns in Ohio, poison in Texas, sash weights in Iowa, bombs in Chicago, and Rough on Rats in Georgia. Take your choice. Either remedy will bring relief if your aim is good.
Gee

Q. How old must a girl be, in your opinion, before she may receive boy friends with propriety? How long should a girl of 16 wear her dress? Should a father make any remarks to a young man calling on his daughter if he should stay till midnight?
Cooling Dove.

Ans. A girl should be at least 12 years old in these backward days before having would-be sweethearts call on her with or without propriety. (Candy beats propriety a city block). A girl should wear her dress at least 2 weeks; that seems to be long enough, as thin as they are. No, a father should not make remarks to a cake-eater who sits and sits till midnight. He should quietly walk into the room and catch the little insect by the nape of his neck and pitch him out the window.
G. McGee.

Q. How might I tell I am in love. I am 17 and a blond. I have been going with Billy for 4 years and my heart gets no kick when he hugs me.
Doubtful.

Ans. Stop hugging Billy this minute. You don't love him at all.

Your heart should flutter like a whirly-gig when Billy embraces you, if you loved him. A girl in love always looks like a fool, acts like an idiot, talks like a sick cow, gazes like a mummy, and disobeys her ma and pa. You are the judge.
Gee McGee.

Over a Billion-Deadly Germs in a Single Drop of Water
Germs are so small that there may be as many as one billion, seven hundred million of them in a drop of water. And just a few of these tiny germs, if they get into your blood through a cut in your skin, may make you so sick you will be in bed for weeks—may cause the loss of a limb through blood poisoning—may even infect you with that most dreadful and fatal disease, lockjaw.

Just because you can see no dirt in a cut does not mean that it is clean. You cannot see germs. The only safe and sure thing to do, is to thoroughly wash every cut, no matter how small, with Liquid Borosone, to kill the germs, and then dust it with Borosone Powder, to hasten the healing. Liquid Borosone costs 30 cents, 60 cents, $1.50; Borosone Powder, 30 cents and 60 cents, and can be had at PAUL WEBB & SON AND CLEVELAND DRUG CO. (adv.)

SHE'S A DECENT DOG, BUT GOOD WITNESS

Evanston, Ill.—In reply to all charges that she is a barking dog, Josie, the spotted Terrier at J. A. Woodburn's house, maintains a dogged silence.

In magistrate Porter's court where neighbors had her brought for disturbing the peace, Joe took the stand.

Mr. Woodburn addressed the court. "I will show you," he said, "that the talk by five neighbors to the effect that Josie awakens them with her howls, is balderdash and poppycock."

He walked over to where Josie sat. "Speak!" he commanded, sternly.

Josie paid no attention. "You see?" said Woodburn. "I've got her trained. She simply will not bark, even when I ask her to."

The court was impressed, but suggested that Mr. Woodburn appear with some witnesses that do speak, so they can tell the court more about Josie than Josie seemed willing to tell about herself.

WHITE BROTHERS MUST DIE FOR KILLING NEGRO COUPLE

Atlanta.—The Georgia supreme court has decided that two young white brothers must die because they killed two aged negroes.

The court upheld the conviction and death sentence of Harvey Bradberry, Oconee county youth, for the murders of Doc Elder and his wife. On Monday it affirmed the conviction and sentence of his brother, Wayman Raymond Cooper, another white youth, who was tried jointly with the Bradberry brothers, and sentenced to life imprisonment.

They lured the aged negro from his cabin and beat and stabbed him to death last year. They returned and cut his wife's throat and stole the negroes' savings.

WHAT TO DO FOR POISON SNAKE BITK

Numerous Venomous Snakes In North Carolina. Sportsman Tells Remedy.

(By Mariowe In Greensboro News)

North Carolina has its share of venomous snakes in addition to the harmless kinds that serve a purpose. Most of us fear snakes and a timely discussion of the matter at this time is important, for many well informed sportsmen are in the woods with no clear idea on the subject in addition to thousands of neophytes who know nothing at all about it.

Carlos Avery, president of the American Game Protection association, prepared the following article for general distribution. North Carolina is included in the sweep for we have rattlers and all kinds of water moccasins, being capable of causing death.

I hope this piece will be read and passed about where sportsmen gather so that all may read and learn.

If you are bitten by a venomous snake don't run or get overheated, excited, or take alcoholic stimulants for either of these conditions speed up the blood stream and distribute the poison much quicker throughout the system, lessening your chance of life. Apply first aid measures, bleeding and suction of the fang wounds, and get a doctor to see as soon as possible.

Thus Carlos Avery, president of the American Game Protective association, epitomizes advice gathered from many sources, in an effort to reduce the danger of snake bite. More than 1,000 cases of - venomous snake bite were reported last vacation season. More are expected this season because of the increase in numbers that take their vacations in the outdoors and also a marked increase in the number of venomous snakes, attributed to increase in agriculture, which favors snakes.

Venomous snakes of the United States are the rattlesnake, the copperhead, the cottonmouth or water moccasin, and coral snakes. These snakes and their sub-species range in practically every state; only Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont are nearly or quite free of them.

Contrary to belief, venomous snakes range where population is thickest. The rattlers and copperheads are notoriously thick in five of the most densely populated states, New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, according to Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, recognized as one of the greatest authorities on snakes. Water moccasins inhabit the entire south, living principally along along streams and swamps; the coral snakes are southerners by choice. Copperheads range in the eastern, southern and southwestern states; and the rattlesnakes cover practically the entire country.

"Most snake bites are on arms or legs," Mr. Avery says a survey of treated cases show. "And because of this a lone person can usually administer first aid to himself. This should consist of applying a ligature or tourniquet a few inches above the bite; most any strong cloth will do, or even a shoe-ace. Do not apply it too tightly, but firmly enough to retard circulation returning through the veins toward the heart. The tourniquet should be released every 10 or 15 minutes for about a minute, else gangrene may set in.

"A cross cut incision should be made at each fang mark. Use a clean knife or razor blade and cut all the way through the skin about one fourth inch deep and one inch long. Some of the venom will escape with the induced bleeding. Then apply strong suction to these incisions. Many sportsmen now carry an ordinary breast pump that can be bought at any drug store for a few cents; if the mouth is used there is danger of re-poisoning through bad teeth or raw places in gums or walls of the mouth. With either method suction should be kept up for 20 minutes of each hour for 15 continuous hours or until swelling ceases. In any event get a doctor as soon as possible.

"Other advice given is not to take any alcoholic stimulants because alcohol increases circulation, and distributes the poison much more rapidly. Many authorities now condemn an old method, that of injecting potassium permanganate, which is now said to be of no value as an antidote, and don't for your sake, depend on snake bite "cures" or home remedies; most are founded upon fiction or superstitions.

"Remember these are only first aid measures and recommended as such; play safe and get a doctor as soon as possible." Mr. Avery emphasizes in conclusion.

It is none of our business out here, but it seems that the maintenance of that New Jersey Anti-Saloon League office would be classified as a non-profitable enterprise.—The Terre Haute Star.

Nurse Tells How CARDUI Helped Her

Mrs. W. A. Cox, a well-known professional nurse, of Burnside, Ky., writes: "I was in very bad health, and only weighed 110 pounds. I read in the papers about Cardui, and thought I would give it a try-out. After I had taken one bottle, I could see that I was improving. After I had taken it a month or two, I began to gain, and I weigh at present 166, and have weighed that for some time. I am now 55 years old, and can do as much work as the average middle-aged woman can."

"I would advise any woman, who is weakly and in a run-down condition, to try Cardui, but not to expect one bottle to make her well. I take two or three bottles a year, now, and I feel fine."
