Hamrick Has Novel Stunt At Whiteway

Water Seems To Come From Nowhere And Run Down String. Attracts Many.

All this morning bewildered faces have been seen staring in the front window of the Whiteway Dry Cleaning company. Some would guess, some would calculate and others would question: "Where is that water coming from?"

There seemed to be a faucet-size stream of water running down a small string suspended from the ceiling, into a shiny brass faucet which emptied into a little keg on the floor. The back of the faucet is corked tight so no water can seem to enter or escape. Yet there is a continuous stream of clear water gushing from the spigot into a small hole bored into the head of the little barrel. A drain pipe inserted near the top of the barrel serves to carry off the overflow of water that comes from "nowhere." The stream issuing from the spigot is fully twelve inches long and, in diameter, of the size that comes from the ordinary kitchen faucet.

Louis Hamrick is to be commended for his ingenuity in constructing this novel display. He says he worked until two last night before he could coax the "water to run down the string." Lou's suggestion to visitors and spectators is "try to figure where the water is coming from."

Hull Is Leading In Tennessee Race

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 7.—With approximately one-fourth of the state's 2,040 precincts heard from, Governor Henry H. Horton tonight had a lead of 12,600 over L. E. Gwinn for the Democratic nomination for governor of Tennessee.

Cordell Hull, running for the Democratic nomination for the Senate, was 9,990 ahead of A. L. Todd, while W. S. Dodson was running a very poor third.

Episcopal Service.

Morning prayer and communion service will be held Sunday morning at 11 o'clock at the Episcopal church here. Rev. J. B. Sull, of Rutherfordton, will be in charge.

C. V. York, Jr. Held Under $1,000 Bond

Driver Of Automobile Which Killed Miss Proctor, Cousin Of Mrs. McKnight Is Held.

Although the coroner's jury rendered a verdict of unavoidable accident with nobody criminally liable, Justice of the peace R. H. Kehoe at New Bern, declined to accept this verdict and ordered C. V. York, Jr., of Raleigh, held under $1,000 bond for his appearance in fall superior court to answer to a charge of manslaughter as a result of a collision Sunday night, July 27, near Fort Barnwell, when Miss Eva Proctor, of Davidson, was fatally injured.

Miss Proctor was a cousin of Mrs. John S. McKnight of Shelby.

Troy C. Honesly, of Maysville, was driving the Ford coach in which Miss Proctor was riding. He testified that they were riding about 30 miles an hour around a long curve, when they saw coming towards them a Studebaker driven by Mr. York, traveling at a rapid rate of speed on the wrong side of the highway. He said that he pulled partly off the highway in a vain effort to avoid the collision. Miss Proctor was thrown out of his car and was killed by the impact of the Ford which struck her on top of her head.

The couple was to have been married in October, it is reported.

Three other witnesses were examined for the state. York did not take the stand. Six witnesses all from Raleigh, testified to his good character.

Fish In Catawba Dying In Drought

Officials In Gaston Asked To Do Something About Stench And Odor.

Fishing parties from this section to Bridgewater and elsewhere have talked recently about how the fish are suffering due to low waters caused by the drought. However it was not known how bad the situation was until a report was made to the Gaston county commissioners this week.

Concerning the problem the Gastonia Gazette says:

Fish are dying by the hundreds and thousands in the backwaters of the Catawba river in the oases and depressions left by the receding waters, as the streams of the county are drying up from the drought.

This report was brought to the county commissioners Monday at the regular meeting by a man from the South Point section of the county.

"The situation is one that is a serious menace to the health of the community," he told the commissioners. "The odor and stench from the hundreds of dead fish is becoming almost intolerable. Most of the fish that are dying are smaller fish less than six inches long. The larger fish follow the water out through the drain canals and channels and were not left high and dry in shallow pools and basins. The water in these places, being very shallow, has gotten mighty hot during the recent heat wave and the fish have literally died by the thousands."

The commissioners decided that this was a question that ought to be brought to the attention of the Duke Power company and also to state board of conservation. The board thought that the power company had made ample provision for the draining of these backwater pools.

Record Cotton Crop In Sight In County

Talking about general business conditions, Mr. McMurry expects things to pick up generally, and likely in the fall of the year. "Things cannot go down forever. Every well has a bottom, and somewhere there is a turning point for business. Seems to me that we should be getting pretty near there by now," he said.

Much of the present depression he blames upon Hoover's failure to not preventing Wall street from being more particular about Federal Reserve regulations. "The Federal Reserve banks," he said, "are our hope. If it should ever be that Wall street could completely control the banking facilities and financial source of the United States again, it would be just too bad for us. Then we couldn't be sure that there was a turning point somewhere for hard times. Yet I believe a change for the better is coming."

Mrs. Moore Says Gas Came From Basement

Mrs. J. I. Moore, S. DeKalb street, who was burned about the hands and arms and whose dwelling was damaged by fire early Wednesday morning, says the gasoline which she poured in her cook stove to start her breakfast fire, came from her own basement. Her son bought an inflammable material to clean a bicycle some months ago. She thought it was kerosene but it proved to be gasoline and when the stove burst into flames she attempted to throw the cook stove through the door, but it struck the door facing, splattered the kitchen floor and walls and this caused the fire to damage the house.

If You Want To Be Remembered—

ADVERTISE

How Much To Spend

ONE of the most costly errors made in advertising is to stop advertising. It costs you real money to quit. It penalizes you every time you slow up or "ease off." Stopping and starting is the most expensive thing in railroading. Every railroad man will tell you that the through train that runs long distances without stops is the most economical train to operate. So it is in advertising. It should be a through train to be resultful.

The public is quick to forget. A man may be a hero one day and a tramp the next. One of the most pathetic things about our present day heroes is the fact that we forget them in a few weeks and turn to a new and fresher one.

The public will forget any store that does not keep in the limelight. There is a true old saying: "If you want to be remembered you must stay alive." The cemeteries are filled with people long since forgotten. Only the tombstones and monuments serve to remind us of departed great men.

If a merchant wants to pass out of the public mind all he needs to do is to discontinue his advertising. It is better never to start than to stop.

Competitors are eager to take advantage of the store's failure to stay out in the bright light of publicity.

The man who says that he cannot afford to advertise continuously makes a grievous business error. He cannot afford not to advertise. He cannot afford to follow an in-and-out policy with his advertising. He cannot afford to scatter his forces and run an "occasional ad."

If your business does not justify a large expenditure in advertising then use a small one. Spread the butter a little thinner on the bread but by all means spread it. Small space continuously used may be made effective if the right thought and care is given to planning and writing the ads. If you cannot do it yourself call in an expert or enlist the services of your newspaper. Make an appropriation for advertising and spend it—every cent.
