Around Our TOWN Shelby SIDELIGHTS

By RENN DRUM.

A CYNICAL editorial writer in the Rocky Mount Telegram says, "one should not take too seriously the early mention of Governor Gardner," referring to mention of the Shelby man's being a candidate for vice-president in 1932.

But, old fellow, the home town must take it seriously. Perhaps it'll never get any farther along than mention, and the next thing to having a president or a vice president is almost having a president or a vice president. Just as they say that near beer is the next thing to beer, although it isn't.

A DAY IN SHELBY: Aroused from slumber early and despatched for a loaf of Mr. Bost's bread to be used as an accessory with one egg and a strip of bacon. Wonder, after parking the petrol wagon at the curb, if all the folks one sees up town at 6:45 are early risers every day in the week. Eventually to the stint of scrivining this and that, curious meantime to know if Star subscribers really read this column, the one written by T. W. H., and also that by G. McG. or if they merely say they do in order to be pleasant. Methinks perhaps they do as The Star runs only one comic and there is very little other funny matter in the paper. Find, after missing a month, that my favored magazine, Plain Talk, is again on the newstand at Ebelott's. Listen, while drinking a coke at the Cleveland drug soda fountain, to a group of men discussing the South Carolina election, numerous ones among them expressing sorrow over the defeat of Hon. Coley Blaise, and chance to think that we cannot for some reason share the regret with them. Voters have so far this year refused to send two senators back to Washington just as we hoped, and there is a third we are harsh enough to wish the same fate—Tommy Heflin down in Alabama. Chance to see a proud farmer in the First National bank showing Mr. George Blanton, the banker, a two-pound ear of corn, which grew on his place drought or no drought. Eventually end the day's grind, shoving the old type machine to one corner and sallying forth to the city field of athletics to view Casey Morris' football boys in the midst of their training, wishing all the while that the lads by some wily juggling of the pigskin might beat the high and mighty Charlotte eleven on the 26th of this good month. So home and to bed after peering into the great news journal started by Pulitzer, The New York World, and deciding it isn't such a great paper wen hRollin Kirby, the editorial cartoonist, is away on vacation. And there be times, too, when F. P. A.'s column in that journal does appear as pointless as this one often does.

call the story, he noticed several other of his friends wandering around the park as if they were seeking someone who had an unusually sweet voice over the telephone. Finally one of them said, "Lady friend of mine said she wanted to see me down here, but dinged if I can spot the jane anywhere."

"Right there," Sronce wrote, "was where the light broke for a keen editorial intellect. Romance was shot all to pieces and a quarter spent for a ball game that was all lopsided."

In other words, that's the method the shrewd promoter used to get the men to the game.

In view of which we would suggest, if Secretaries Charlie Burrus, Pat McBrayer and Robert Wilson will listen, just this: On your next meeting night have some sweet-voiced young lady—the one now serving the Rotary club would do—to telephone each member who doesn't attend regular and suggest in an innocent sort of way that he meet her at a certain room at Hotel Charles. Then have Sir Dick Brabble, the hotel man who has the only good-looking bald head we've ever seen, hang a sign on that particular door reading:

Come On Downstairs, Boys, To the Luncheon Club Dining Room; That's Where the Fun'll Be.

We'll be seeing you again some time.

BIRTHDAY DINNER SEPT. 21 AT ROCKDALE SPRING

There will be a birthday dinner at Rockdale Spring, September 21, 1930, in honor of Mrs. Jane London and Mrs. Leila Devinney. The public is invited to attend.

Health for school children is important. Parents should see that physical handicaps are not causing their children to suffer undue penalties at school.

Williams Beats Lot in National Net Tourney

R. Norris Williams showed George Lott, second ranking player of the United States, a variation of tennis at Forest Hills, L. I., N. Y. The 39-year-old veteran upset the Davis Cup player in a national match, 7-9, 7-5, 7-5, 6-1. (International Newsweek)

Wise children are beginning to forget all that they have heard about Santa Claus, and the so-called head of the house will soon hear some questions about how does Santa Claus, do, etc.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Royster and son, Leland, spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Royster of near Fallston.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Spangler visited Mr. and Mrs. Eubert Spangler Sunday p. m.

Mr. Leland Royster expects to leave next Tuesday for Furman university at Greenville, S. C. where he takes up third year work, having finished Boiling Springs college last spring.

Indian summer is a plan of nature to give the flappers a chance to land another if the vacationist has rolled off the line.

The other day we received a new letter from a certain section of the county. It had no name signed to it. Puzzle: where did we throw the letter?

Double Shoals News Of the Current Week

Cotton Slows Up With Cool Weather. To Take Offering For South Mtn Institute.

(Special to The Star.)
Double Shoals, Sept. 10.—The farmers are beginning to pick and gin cotton. The continued hot weather until last Monday causing the cotton to open very fast. The damp weather now will cause a let-up in opening.

A business transaction of considerable interest was made a few days ago when the Double Shoals Mfg. company sold their gin to a company of farmers. The buyers were Tom and Clyde Cornwell, A. D. A. L. A. P. C. M. and C. R. Spangler. The new owners have taken charge and the gin is being operated by Ed Spangler.

Mrs. Eubert Spangler has been sick for the past few days, but is improving now.

Mr. Ramond Eskridge is working at Spindale while his family still lives at Double Shoals.

J. W. Costner returned from Hillsboro last Saturday p. m. where he directed a class in simultaneous training in the Mt. Zion association.

The Double Shoal Sunday school expects to take an offering next Sunday for the South Mountain Institute. This institution is in need now of funds to enable them to pump water to the building from a spring.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Royster and son, Leland, spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Royster of near Fallston.
