

Cotton, per pound 27 1/2
Cotton Seed, per bu. 27 1/2

Fair Saturday.

Today's North Carolina Weather Report: Fair tonight and Saturday. Not much change in temperature.

Another Flight.

Harbor Grace, N. F., Oct. 9.—Another transatlantic flight was under way tonight. Two men who have never made the voyage were winging their way to England in the tried and true Columbia, which flew the ocean three years ago.

Coroner Blames Shelby Man For Woman's Death

Says Dr. Hicks' Car Hit Woman. Witness Says Car Stopped, Moved On.

Charlotte, Oct. 10.—A coroner's jury Wednesday blamed Dr. R. C. Hicks, of Shelby, for the death of a few nights ago, of Essie Thompson, negro woman, on West Trade street.

After the sister of the dead woman had testified, along with four others, the jury decided that Essie Thompson was struck by a car driven by Dr. Hicks.

The Shelby dentist was taken into custody within an hour after the woman was hit. A charge of manslaughter was placed against him at police headquarters. He was released the following day on bond of $3,000.

Dr. Chas. E. Madry presented the co-operative program, outlining conditions in regard to the centennial campaign and the distress which confront the state mission board.

The annual sermon was preached by Rev. Hartsell of Kings Mountain who traced the history of the American people, coming to this country for religious freedom.

Archibald McMillan presented the cause of the Baptist orphanage at Thomasville, now known as the Mills home.

Wallace Grove church applied for membership in the association, but since Mulls Chapel was established nearby and there is some division in the section, the matter was held over for further consideration at today's session.

Mr. W. Y. Weathers, of Shelby was the victim of pickpockets while attending the welcome celebration at Kings Mountain this week for Mr. Hoover.

The board of education and district committees have practically decided on that date, according to Supt. J. H. Grigg, provided the weather remains good until that time.

Due to the fact that the rural schools are now closed the board of education had one of its quietest monthly sessions here this week.

Mr. Willie Buff succumbs to stroke of paralysis. Buried at Olive Grove.

Special to The Star.

Mr. Willie Buff of Casar route 1, died suddenly Wednesday morning when he suffered a stroke of paralysis. His funeral was conducted Thursday at 10 a. m. at the Olive Grove Baptist church.

Mr. Buff was about seventy years of age and has lived all his life in upper Cleveland. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Kate Bunnard, and the following children: Mrs. Robert Short, Mrs. John Walter, Mrs. Alec Sigman, Mrs. Bruce Selman, Mrs. Will Gales and Messrs. John and Peter Buff, and one sister, Mrs. Rob Buff of Georgia. He was preceded to the grave by three sisters and one brother, all of them died, he, within a few hours after a stroke of paralysis.

The Cleveland Star

VOL. XXXVI, No. 122

SHELBY, N. C.

FRIDAY, OCT. 10, 1930

Published Monday, Wednesday and Friday Afternoons.

By Mail, per year, (in advance) $2.50
Carrier, per year, (in advance) $2.00

Suttle Heads Baptists Again; Adjourn Today

Patterson Springs Host To Meet

Elected Moderator of Kings Mountain Association. J. V. Devenney Is Made Clerk.

Rev. John W. Suttle, one of the most popular pastors in the Baptist denomination in Cleveland county, was elected moderator of the Kings Mountain Baptist association yesterday at the annual meeting held at Patterson Springs.

Devenney Made Clerk. Rev. J. V. Devenney was made clerk succeeding G. C. Page who is away doing Sunday school work.

A great throng of people, estimated to be larger than that which attended the association a year ago at Bolling Springs, gathered at the Patterson Springs church of which Dr. Davis is pastor.

The residence referred to is that known as the Judge Webb home where for years prior to his death Judge James L. Webb and his family lived.

Today the house was closed for the winter, after which it may be reopened, as Mrs. Webb and her daughter, Mrs. Madge Riley, moved to Raleigh to spend the winter with Gov. and Mrs. Gardner.

Such a prominent role has the big house, almost hid from the street by evergreens, shrubbery, and trees, played in the life of Shelby that it's closing, even temporarily, will be of town-wide regret.

Other features to be provided for the evening entertainment will include music by a band and a battle royal boxing match.

Kings Mountain Democrats hope to make the meeting one of the most enthusiastic held here during the campaign.

Should it be raining Saturday evening at the scheduled hour the speaking and meeting will be held at the East End school.

Dr. D. A. Garrison of Gastonia and Carrol P. Rogers, lieutenant governor of Kiwanis zone No. 1 were the speakers last night at the weekly Kiwanis luncheon at the Hotel Charles.

While entertainment has been provided, the fair officials have not overlooked the importance of a variety of exhibits in horticulture, agriculture, crafts, livestock, cattle and swine, sheep and goats, poultry, home economics, pantry supplies, household arts, antiques and plants.

A football game between Lincoln academy and the high school from Hickory will be a feature on the Friday program. The game will begin about 3 o'clock and racing on this day will start at 1 o'clock instead of 2 o'clock.

Big crowds are expected, not only from Cleveland, but from adjoining counties and an excursion of automobiles will visit the fair one day from Asheville.

Fair officials are N. J. Pass, president; W. J. Ezell, vice president; A. W. Foster, secretary-treasurer; C. M. Montgomery, S. P. Hemester, W. DeGree, James Camp, Hugh Harshaw, E. S. Beam, D. H. Kearse, Sherwood Enloe, A. Hord, P. B. Falls and W. E. Hicks, directors.

Regarding the introduction the Charlotte News says editorially: "Commend us to the two-sentence introduction speech of Governor Max Gardner as he presented the President of the United States to the vast assemblage at Kings Mountain."

"Nobody, of course, expected him to deliver an oration. Almost everybody knows better than to do a thing like that when the president is on hand as the designated speaker of an occasion, but the governor was down almost before he got up. He expressed in one sentence his appreciation of the honors of the day which came his way and his next line was that of presentation, whereupon he very properly took his seat.

"You don't ever catch 'Max' doing the wrong thing."

Neat and Well Done Speaking of the same incident, the Gastonia Gazette says: "Governor Richards came very near pulling a Col. Kirkpatrick stunt in his preliminary remarks. It looked as if he would never present Max Gardner, and the North Carolina governor must have sensed the same feeling, for he introduced the President in two short sentences, one of the shortest introductions ever accorded the Chief Executive. The crowd gave Max a big hand for this gracious gesture. It is a funny thing how some speakers will overdo a thing like that. Governor Richards was in a fair way to set the crowd all on edge. They did not want to hear a governor or even two governors; they came to see and hear the President of the United States and the South Carolina governor tried to give a summary of the battle of Kings Mountain before getting to his job in hand, which was to present Max Gardner. But our Max did the thing just right. He spoke of the

After being confined for 15 months in the death row of the South Carolina prison, right in the shadow of the electric chair to which he had been sentenced, Rafe King, well known Shelby man convicted of the killing of his wife, a former Shelby school teacher, learned yesterday that he would be given a new trial and a new chance at life.

On July 9, 1929 the Shelby man was convicted of murder at a special court term held in Chester, South Carolina. Judge J. K. Henry, who presided, sentenced him to the death chair, setting September 20 as the date. The trial had been moved by a change of venue from York to Chester. Soon after the passing of the death sentence King's lawyers made an appeal to the South Carolina supreme court. The appeal had been before that body for several months before the decision was handed Wednesday evening. The Shelby man during that time had been confined to the state prison in Columbia.

Trial In January. Today Clyde R. Hoey, one of King's two Shelby attorneys—the other is B. T. Falls—stated that he expected the new trial would be held in Chester at the court term which begins on January 12. Mr. Hoey expressed the belief today that King might be sent back to the Chester jail in that he is not now a state prisoner.

So far no attempt has been made to have King released on bail, and press dispatches from York stated that Thos. F. McDow, one of the defense counsel, had expressed the opinion that bail would not be sought for King prior to the new hearing.

Shelby People Elated. The granting of a new hearing for the man yet fairly young in years, who had lived all of his life in Shelby except for a few months prior to his wife's death when he lived in South Carolina, was joyfully received in Shelby. During the hearing of the case, which was of a sensational nature, opinion was divided as to his guilt, but in King's home town the prevailing belief was that he was not guilty of the crime.

Some weeks ago his counsel here expressed the firm belief that a new trial would be granted, but this was not definitely known until yesterday and the announcement brought joy to King's aged father and mother, other members of his family, and many friends here.

Error Of Judge. Columbia.—The South Carolina supreme court Wednesday reversed the decision in the case of Rafe F. King, sentenced to be electrocuted for the murder of his wife, Faye Wilson King, and remanded it to the Court of General Sessions of Chester county for retrial.

While various exceptions of the defense were granted by the supreme court, it dealt particularly with those concerning the charge of the presiding judge, J. K. Henry.

"A reading of the entire charge and the judge's modification of requests to charge, and his comments as to those requests, show clearly, in our opinion, that the honored circuit judge departed many times from the usual instructions given in a homicide case. Doubtless this

(CONTINUED ON PAGE TWELVE.)

Jabez Hamrick, 84, Buried Today At Boiling Springs

Aged And Respected Farmer, And Last of His Family, Wife And 3 Children Survive.

Mr. Jabez Hamrick, age 84, one of the county's old and most respected citizens, died at 6 o'clock Thursday evening at his home at Boiling Springs. He had been in declining health for several months and real sick for several days.

Mr. Hamrick was a thrifty, industrious farmer who lived a plain, outdoor life, practicing the teachings of Christianity in his daily life. He lived close to his friends and his church and lived an honorable upright life. He is the last of his family of three brothers D. J., A. J. and Dr. T. G. Hamrick, all of whom preceded him to the grave.

Surviving are his wife who before marriage was Miss Alice Sarraff of Gaffney, two daughters, Mrs. Meredith White and Mrs. Drewry Hamrick and one son Ed D. Hamrick. He was a staunch member of the Boiling Springs Baptist church where the funeral takes place this afternoon at 3 o'clock service conducted by Rev. J. L. Jenkins, pastor.

County Cotton Ahead Of 1929 15,000 Bales

The Cleveland county cotton crop was 15,000 bales ahead of the 1929 crop according to ginning figures for the county announced today by Miles H. Ware, ginning agent.

To October 1 the first this year 17,279 bales had been ginned in the county as compared with 2,357 to the same date last year.

Predictions of two weeks ago that the total crop would not go over 45,000 bales are being altered, and now many observers are expecting a crop of around 50,000 bales.

Colonial Webb Home Closed

The doors to one of the finest old Colonial mansions on state-ly South Washington street; one of Shelby's oldest and most exclusive residential avenues, were closed today and the house vacated for the first time in many years.

The residence referred to is that known as the Judge Webb home where for years prior to his death Judge James L. Webb and his family lived.

Today the house was closed for the winter, after which it may be reopened, as Mrs. Webb and her daughter, Mrs. Madge Riley, moved to Raleigh to spend the winter with Gov. and Mrs. Gardner.

Such a prominent role has the big house, almost hid from the street by evergreens, shrubbery, and trees, played in the life of Shelby that it's closing, even temporarily, will be of town-wide regret.

Other features to be provided for the evening entertainment will include music by a band and a battle royal boxing match.

Kings Mountain Democrats hope to make the meeting one of the most enthusiastic held here during the campaign.

Should it be raining Saturday evening at the scheduled hour the speaking and meeting will be held at the East End school.

Dr. D. A. Garrison of Gastonia and Carrol P. Rogers, lieutenant governor of Kiwanis zone No. 1 were the speakers last night at the weekly Kiwanis luncheon at the Hotel Charles.

While entertainment has been provided, the fair officials have not overlooked the importance of a variety of exhibits in horticulture, agriculture, crafts, livestock, cattle and swine, sheep and goats, poultry, home economics, pantry supplies, household arts, antiques and plants.

A football game between Lincoln academy and the high school from Hickory will be a feature on the Friday program. The game will begin about 3 o'clock and racing on this day will start at 1 o'clock instead of 2 o'clock.

Big crowds are expected, not only from Cleveland, but from adjoining counties and an excursion of automobiles will visit the fair one day from Asheville.

Fair officials are N. J. Pass, president; W. J. Ezell, vice president; A. W. Foster, secretary-treasurer; C. M. Montgomery, S. P. Hemester, W. DeGree, James Camp, Hugh Harshaw, E. S. Beam, D. H. Kearse, Sherwood Enloe, A. Hord, P. B. Falls and W. E. Hicks, directors.

Regarding the introduction the Charlotte News says editorially: "Commend us to the two-sentence introduction speech of Governor Max Gardner as he presented the President of the United States to the vast assemblage at Kings Mountain."

"Nobody, of course, expected him to deliver an oration. Almost everybody knows better than to do a thing like that when the president is on hand as the designated speaker of an occasion, but the governor was down almost before he got up. He expressed in one sentence his appreciation of the honors of the day which came his way and his next line was that of presentation, whereupon he very properly took his seat.

"You don't ever catch 'Max' doing the wrong thing."

Neat and Well Done Speaking of the same incident, the Gastonia Gazette says: "Governor Richards came very near pulling a Col. Kirkpatrick stunt in his preliminary remarks. It looked as if he would never present Max Gardner, and the North Carolina governor must have sensed the same feeling, for he introduced the President in two short sentences, one of the shortest introductions ever accorded the Chief Executive. The crowd gave Max a big hand for this gracious gesture. It is a funny thing how some speakers will overdo a thing like that. Governor Richards was in a fair way to set the crowd all on edge. They did not want to hear a governor or even two governors; they came to see and hear the President of the United States and the South Carolina governor tried to give a summary of the battle of Kings Mountain before getting to his job in hand, which was to present Max Gardner. But our Max did the thing just right. He spoke of the

After being confined for 15 months in the death row of the South Carolina prison, right in the shadow of the electric chair to which he had been sentenced, Rafe King, well known Shelby man convicted of the killing of his wife, a former Shelby school teacher, learned yesterday that he would be given a new trial and a new chance at life.

On July 9, 1929 the Shelby man was convicted of murder at a special court term held in Chester, South Carolina. Judge J. K. Henry, who presided, sentenced him to the death chair, setting September 20 as the date. The trial had been moved by a change of venue from York to Chester. Soon after the passing of the death sentence King's lawyers made an appeal to the South Carolina supreme court. The appeal had been before that body for several months before the decision was handed Wednesday evening. The Shelby man during that time had been confined to the state prison in Columbia.

Trial In January. Today Clyde R. Hoey, one of King's two Shelby attorneys—the other is B. T. Falls—stated that he expected the new trial would be held in Chester at the court term which begins on January 12. Mr. Hoey expressed the belief today that King might be sent back to the Chester jail in that he is not now a state prisoner.

So far no attempt has been made to have King released on bail, and press dispatches from York stated that Thos. F. McDow, one of the defense counsel, had expressed the opinion that bail would not be sought for King prior to the new hearing.

Shelby People Elated. The granting of a new hearing for the man yet fairly young in years, who had lived all of his life in Shelby except for a few months prior to his wife's death when he lived in South Carolina, was joyfully received in Shelby. During the hearing of the case, which was of a sensational nature, opinion was divided as to his guilt, but in King's home town the prevailing belief was that he was not guilty of the crime.

Some weeks ago his counsel here expressed the firm belief that a new trial would be granted, but this was not definitely known until yesterday and the announcement brought joy to King's aged father and mother, other members of his family, and many friends here.

Error Of Judge. Columbia.—The South Carolina supreme court Wednesday reversed the decision in the case of Rafe F. King, sentenced to be electrocuted for the murder of his wife, Faye Wilson King, and remanded it to the Court of General Sessions of Chester county for retrial.

While various exceptions of the defense were granted by the supreme court, it dealt particularly with those concerning the charge of the presiding judge, J. K. Henry.

"A reading of the entire charge and the judge's modification of requests to charge, and his comments as to those requests, show clearly, in our opinion, that the honored circuit judge departed many times from the usual instructions given in a homicide case. Doubtless this

(CONTINUED ON PAGE TWELVE.)

Shaw Presides Over Term Of Court On 27th

Jurors Drawn For Court Session

Is State's Veteran Judge Since Webb Death. Will Retire This Year.

Judge Thomas J. Shaw, of Greensboro, who will preside over the term of superior court which convenes here Monday, October 27, is the dean of North Carolina superior court jurists since the death of Judge J. L. Webb.

Both Judge Webb and Judge Shaw were to have retired at the end of the year. Judge Webb held his last term of court here during the summer, and it may be that the term here this month will be the final one for Judge Shaw before he retires at the end of the year.

Jurors Drawn. At the meeting of the county commissioners this week the following jurors were drawn for the term: First Week.

E. T. Jones, L. J. Blanton, James Moore, S. J. McCluney, J. M. Ponder, J. A. Davis, O. P. Seapaugh, Carl W. Davidson, W. D. Baker, W. T. Weir, J. E. Lipford, J. L. Crocker, J. M. Williams, Joe Kendrick, J. Clyde Carpenter, J. F. Roberts, J. William Osborne, H. A. Harris, C. C. Hamrick, C. T. Warren, J. Boyce Dellinger, J. Q. Earls, C. C. Dalton, T. A. Bridges, S. C. Crawley, Pink Lovelace, C. S. Withrow, Leroy Ivester, Guy Peeler, Josh Crowder, J. Cletus Royster, Vance Royster, Hoyle Costner, R. A. Bingham, Floyd Willis, Grady McNeely.

Second Week. Rush McCraw, W. A. Lattimore, James Allen, T. C. Bennett, Harry Falls, Marcus C. Beam, C. L. Delinger, A. B. C. DePriest, G. B. Kendrick, J. H. Whitworth, W. H. Gardner, W. D. Harrill, B. P. Jenkins, C. V. Short, Brantley Dellinger, Marvin E. Elliott, Thomas C. Propst, W. J. Self.

The South Carolina Supreme court this week gave Rafe King, well known Shelby man pictured above, a new chance at life by ruling that he should have a new trial. The second hearing will be held at Chester, S. C., about January 12.

The granting of a new hearing for the man yet fairly young in years, who had lived all of his life in Shelby except for a few months prior to his wife's death when he lived in South Carolina, was joyfully received in Shelby. During the hearing of the case, which was of a sensational nature, opinion was divided as to his guilt, but in King's home town the prevailing belief was that he was not guilty of the crime.

Some weeks ago his counsel here expressed the firm belief that a new trial would be granted, but this was not definitely known until yesterday and the announcement brought joy to King's aged father and mother, other members of his family, and many friends here.

Error Of Judge. Columbia.—The South Carolina supreme court Wednesday reversed the decision in the case of Rafe F. King, sentenced to be electrocuted for the murder of his wife, Faye Wilson King, and remanded it to the Court of General Sessions of Chester county for retrial.

While various exceptions of the defense were granted by the supreme court, it dealt particularly with those concerning the charge of the presiding judge, J. K. Henry.

"A reading of the entire charge and the judge's modification of requests to charge, and his comments as to those requests, show clearly, in our opinion, that the honored circuit judge departed many times from the usual instructions given in a homicide case. Doubtless this

(CONTINUED ON PAGE TWELVE.)

Bulwinkle Speaks At Kings Mountain

Candidate For Congress Appears At Cora Mill Saturday Night

(Star News Bureau.) Kings Mountain, Oct. 10.—Major A. Lee Bulwinkle, Democratic candidate for congress, will be the chief speaker at a Democratic gathering to be held at the Cora mill here Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock.

Other features to be provided for the evening entertainment will include music by a band and a battle royal boxing match.

Kings Mountain Democrats hope to make the meeting one of the most enthusiastic held here during the campaign.

Should it be raining Saturday evening at the scheduled hour the speaking and meeting will be held at the East End school.

Dr. D. A. Garrison of Gastonia and Carrol P. Rogers, lieutenant governor of Kiwanis zone No. 1 were the speakers last night at the weekly Kiwanis luncheon at the Hotel Charles.

While entertainment has been provided, the fair officials have not overlooked the importance of a variety of exhibits in horticulture, agriculture, crafts, livestock, cattle and swine, sheep and goats, poultry, home economics, pantry supplies, household arts, antiques and plants.

A football game between Lincoln academy and the high school from Hickory will be a feature on the Friday program. The game will begin about 3 o'clock and racing on this day will start at 1 o'clock instead of 2 o'clock.

Big crowds are expected, not only from Cleveland, but from adjoining counties and an excursion of automobiles will visit the fair one day from Asheville.

Fair officials are N. J. Pass, president; W. J. Ezell, vice president; A. W. Foster, secretary-treasurer; C. M. Montgomery, S. P. Hemester, W. DeGree, James Camp, Hugh Harshaw, E. S. Beam, D. H. Kearse, Sherwood Enloe, A. Hord, P. B. Falls and W. E. Hicks, directors.

Regarding the introduction the Charlotte News says editorially: "Commend us to the two-sentence introduction speech of Governor Max Gardner as he presented the President of the United States to the vast assemblage at Kings Mountain."

"Nobody, of course, expected him to deliver an oration. Almost everybody knows better than to do a thing like that when the president is on hand as the designated speaker of an occasion, but the governor was down almost before he got up. He expressed in one sentence his appreciation of the honors of the day which came his way and his next line was that of presentation, whereupon he very properly took his seat.

"You don't ever catch 'Max' doing the wrong thing."

Neat and Well Done Speaking of the same incident, the Gastonia Gazette says: "Governor Richards came very near pulling a Col. Kirkpatrick stunt in his preliminary remarks. It looked as if he would never present Max Gardner, and the North Carolina governor must have sensed the same feeling, for he introduced the President in two short sentences, one of the shortest introductions ever accorded the Chief Executive. The crowd gave Max a big hand for this gracious gesture. It is a funny thing how some speakers will overdo a thing like that. Governor Richards was in a fair way to set the crowd all on edge. They did not want to hear a governor or even two governors; they came to see and hear the President of the United States and the South Carolina governor tried to give a summary of the battle of Kings Mountain before getting to his job in hand, which was to present Max Gardner. But our Max did the thing just right. He spoke of the

After being confined for 15 months in the death row of the South Carolina prison, right in the shadow of the electric chair to which he had been sentenced, Rafe King, well known Shelby man convicted of the killing of his wife, a former Shelby school teacher, learned yesterday that he would be given a new trial and a new chance at life.

On July 9, 1929 the Shelby man was convicted of murder at a special court term held in Chester, South Carolina. Judge J. K. Henry, who presided, sentenced him to the death chair, setting September 20 as the date. The trial had been moved by a change of venue from York to Chester. Soon after the passing of the death sentence King's lawyers made an appeal to the South Carolina supreme court. The appeal had been before that body for several months before the decision was handed Wednesday evening. The Shelby man during that time had been confined to the state prison in Columbia.

Trial In January. Today Clyde R. Hoey, one of King's two Shelby attorneys—the other is B. T. Falls—stated that he expected the new trial would be held in Chester at the court term which begins on January 12. Mr. Hoey expressed the belief today that King might be sent back to the Chester jail in that he is not now a state prisoner.

So far no attempt has been made to have King released on bail, and press dispatches from York stated that Thos. F. McDow, one of the defense counsel, had expressed the opinion that bail would not be sought for King prior to the new hearing.

Shelby People Elated. The granting of a new hearing for the man yet fairly young in years, who had lived all of his life in Shelby except for a few months prior to his wife's death when he lived in South Carolina, was joyfully received in Shelby. During the hearing of the case, which was of a sensational nature, opinion was divided as to his guilt, but in King's home town the prevailing belief was that he was not guilty of the crime.

Some weeks ago his counsel here expressed the firm belief that a new trial would be granted, but this was not definitely known until yesterday and the announcement brought joy to King's aged father and mother, other members of his family, and many friends here.

Error Of Judge. Columbia.—The South Carolina supreme court Wednesday reversed the decision in the case of Rafe F. King, sentenced to be electrocuted for the murder of his wife, Faye Wilson King, and remanded it to the Court of General Sessions of Chester county for retrial.

While various exceptions of the defense were granted by the supreme court, it dealt particularly with those concerning the charge of the presiding judge, J. K. Henry.

"A reading of the entire charge and the judge's modification of requests to charge, and his comments as to those requests, show clearly, in our opinion, that the honored circuit judge departed many times from the usual instructions given in a homicide case. Doubtless this

(CONTINUED ON PAGE TWELVE.)

A New Chance For Life

The South Carolina Supreme court this week gave Rafe King, well known Shelby man pictured above, a new chance at life by ruling that he should have a new trial. The second hearing will be held at Chester, S. C., about January 12.

Negro Fair Will Run For Five Days Here, Beginning Oct. 21st

Sixth Negro Fair Will Be Featured With Farm Exhibits, Midway Races and Fireworks.

Cleveland county's sixth annual negro fair will begin at the fair ground on Tuesday, Oct. 21, according to an announcement made today by N. J. Pass, president and A. W. Foster, secretary-treasurer. The fair will run for five days and the officers are confident they will have the best shows this institution has offered here.

Some of the features are horse racing that will take place each afternoon beginning at 2 o'clock, a midway composed of seven or eight shows, five rides and thirty-five concessions, thrilling free acts before the grandstand between the race heats in the afternoon and each evening. Fireworks will be a night attraction on each of the five days, beginning at 7:45.

Many Exhibits. While entertainment has been provided, the fair officials have not overlooked the importance of a variety of exhibits in horticulture, agriculture, crafts, livestock, cattle and swine, sheep and goats, poultry, home economics, pantry supplies, household arts, antiques and plants.

A football game between Lincoln academy and the high school from Hickory will be a feature on the Friday program. The game will begin about 3 o'clock and racing on this day will start at 1 o'clock instead of 2 o'clock.

Big crowds are expected, not only from Cleveland, but from adjoining counties and an excursion of automobiles will visit the fair one day from Asheville.

Fair officials are N. J. Pass, president; W. J. Ezell, vice president; A. W. Foster, secretary-treasurer; C. M. Montgomery, S. P. Hemester, W. DeGree, James Camp, Hugh Harshaw, E. S. Beam, D. H. Kearse, Sherwood Enloe, A. Hord, P. B. Falls and W. E. Hicks, directors.

Regarding the introduction the Charlotte News says editorially: "Commend us to the two-sentence introduction speech of Governor Max Gardner as he presented the President of the United States to the vast assemblage at Kings Mountain."

"Nobody, of course, expected him to deliver an oration. Almost everybody knows better than to do a thing like that when the president is on hand as the designated speaker of an occasion, but the governor was down almost before he got up. He expressed in one sentence his appreciation of the honors of the day which came his way and his next line was that of presentation, whereupon he very properly took his seat.

"You don't ever catch 'Max' doing the wrong thing."

Neat and Well Done Speaking of the same incident, the Gastonia Gazette says: "Governor Richards came very near pulling a Col. Kirkpatrick stunt in his preliminary remarks. It looked as if he would never present Max Gardner, and the North Carolina governor must have sensed the same feeling, for he introduced the President in two short sentences, one of the shortest introductions ever accorded the Chief Executive. The crowd gave Max a big hand for this gracious gesture. It is a funny thing how some speakers will overdo a thing like that. Governor Richards was in a fair way to set the crowd all on edge. They did not want to hear a governor or even two governors; they came to see and hear the President of the United States and the South Carolina governor tried to give a summary of the battle of Kings Mountain before getting to his job in hand, which was to present Max Gardner. But our Max did the thing just right. He spoke of the